PARADE IS SET TOMORROW BY BONUS FORCES

500 More Arrive Here and Swell Veteran Ranks to 2,500.

DEADLOCK UNBROKEN ON EVACUATION PLEA

"Big Push" to Gain Votes for Cash Payment Will Be Started Today.

The Bonus Expeditionary Forces will stage their "big parade" tomorrow night to impress upon Congress that their rapidly swelling ranks are unified in their determination to obtain passage of the $2,000,000,000 bonus bill or to occupy the Capital until it is enacted.

Their policy of passive resistance to any evacuation process remains adamant and is shared by the 400 former doughboys who arrived yesterday and increased the organized ranks to 2,500 with prospective recruits, estimated between 6,000 and 10,000 converging on the seat of the National Government.

The payment of the soldier bonus through a tax on beer was proposed yesterday by Representative Kleberg, Democrat, of Texas. In a formal statement, Kleberg served notice that when the Patman bill to pay the bonus in cash is brought before the House, he will offer an amendment providing a tax of 3 cents a pint on 2.75 per cent beer, the proceeds to be used to meet the interest and sinking fund of the bond issued proposed in the measure.

Neither the District Commissioners nor the doughboys yielded any ground on the question of evacuation suggested by the offer of the Commissioners to transport the veterans 50 miles from the District limits at 8 a. m., Thursday—the "Zero Hour."

"Big Push" for Votes.

Today begins the "Big Push" to corral votes for the bonus when the measure is called from the ways and means committee to the floor of the House—which has been virtually assured by obtaining 145 signatures to the petition to bring the bill to the floor.

Increased activity on the part of the veterans' police caused the arrest of two alleged women Communists, the infliction of fifteen lashes on the back by a "kangaroo court-martial" which convicted one of the veterans of distributing radical literature, and the expulsion of one of the veterans for panhandling and intoxication.

Not only will the veterans lobby today for the passage of the bonus bill, but they will try to assure themselves of a majority vote to prevent adjournment before June 13, which, under the rules, is the last day that the bonus bill may remain with the committee.

Raps Refusal to Leave.

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby termed the veterans' decision to spurn

Byrd Best Choice, Breckinridge Says

Lawyer Asserts Democrats Should Earnestly Consider Virginian.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Henry Breckinridge, prominent New York attorney and close personal friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, issued a statement today calling on Democrats to give "earnest consideration to the supreme fitness and availability" of former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia as a presidential candidate.

Predicting a Democratic victory in November, he said the choice of a standard bearer at Chicago by the party this month "may well decide the history of our country for many a year to come." He called Byrd "one man above all to whom destiny points."

"He has the confidence of all our agricultural population," the statement continued. "Business men trust him. His people love him. * * * He is involved in none of the factional disputes that mar the party unity in this section or that. Unlike many of our leaders, he has not passed the sixtieth year on the downward slope of life to old age. He still carries the courage, hope and optimism of youth."

Windstorm in Texas Unroofs Small Houses

Laredo, Tex., June 5 (A.P.).—High winds unroofed several small structures, damaged light and power lines and blew much half-grown fruit from citrus trees in this section last night.

A vivid electrical display appeared in Mexico, but apparently the disturbance centered about Laredo.

G.O.P. Group Predicts Resubmission Plank

Senator Moses, Speaking for 15 Leaders After Conference, Is Confident That Proposal Will Be Part of Platform.

(Associated Press.)

Out of a conference of Republican chieftains yesterday came the definite prediction from the group's spokesman—Senator Moses, of New Hampshire—of a prohibition resubmission plank in the party's platform.

"There will be a resubmission plank," Moses said to newspapermen after the extraordinary conference of party leaders on the eve of the national convention. But he emphasized the details had not been agreed upon.

James R. Garfield, of Ohio, who will preside over the convention resolutions committee, also stressed the point that the party platform, and particularly the prohibition plank, would not take definite form for several days.

Garfield heard every shade of opinion in the Republican congressional ranks at yesterday's parley, held at the Congressional Country Club, among the quiet hills of Maryland, in contrast to the smoke-filled hotel rooms where party platforms usually are shaped at conventions.

Postmaster General Brown, manager of the preconvention campaign for the administration, joined the "best minds" of the party from Capitol Hill at the meeting. Almost every one of the Republicans from Congress present are members of the resolutions committee for the convention. Prospects of failure of Congress to adjourn, however, in time for the meeting led to the party conclave.

Senator Moses spoke for the group which included Senators Watson, of Indiana, the party leader; Smoot, of Utah; Dickinson, of Iowa; Bingham, of Connecticut; Hastings, of Delaware; Robinson, of Indiana; Patterson, of Missouri; Glenn, of Illinois; Hebert, of Rhode Island; Kean, of New Jersey, and Representatives Snell and Fish, of New York, Senator Fess.

CHILEANS MAY SEIZE FOREIGN PROPERTIES

U. S. Investors Alarmed at Confiscation Threat With French and British.

Santiago, Chile, June 5 (A.P.).—The revolutionary junta, which deposed President Juan Esteban Montero yesterday, moved swiftly today to rebuild the government structure along Socialist lines under Provisional President Carlos Davila.

It prepared numerous decrees enabling the "First Socialistic Republic of Chile" to take over immediately the productive forces of the nation redistribute wealth by the imposition of confiscatory taxes on large incomes and seize various private capitalistic enterprises, foreign or domestic.

Alarm was expressed in foreign industrial, business and commercial quarters at the declaration of a government spokesman that "we must get Chile out from under the yoke of capitalism, whether foreign or domestic, but chiefly foreign domination."

The foreigners said they expected wholesale seizures of their property, particularly public utilities, mines and industries, which are largely American-owned, although the English, German and French also have large interests here.

The American investments have a paper value of $1,000,000,000 and a market value of $700,000,000. It is these investments, including the nitrate industry, copper mines and utilities, which might be taken over by the new state.

The new cabinet formed by Provisional President Davila last night, after the junta seized power in a peaceful coup d'etat, is expected to take the oath of office tomorrow.

The government then expects to dissolve Congress and convoke as soon as possible a constitutional assembly. It next would call general elections to name deputies, senators and a constitutional president for the republic.

Col. Marmaduke Grove, as minister of defense, is likely to be the "strong man" of the country. It

New Cabinet in Greece Is Headed by Venizelos

Athens, Greece, June 5 (A.P.).—Eleutherios Venizelos succeeded today in forming a Cabinet in which he will serve as premier and minister of justice. Andreas Michalacopoulos becomes foreign minister. The functions of the new ministry will be administrative only. New elections will be held in August.

The veteran Venizelos succeeds Alexander Papanastasiou, who resigned Friday, after holding office for only a few weeks. Preceding the Papanastasiou ministry was a cabinet headed by Venizelos.

WET LEADS IN VOTE IN NORTH CAROLINA

Reynolds Ahead of Senator Morrison as Candidate for Nomination.

Charlotte, N. C., June 5 (A.P.).—Robert R. Reynolds, candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination on a wet platform in traditionally dry North Carolina, led four other candidates tonight when the balloting in the primary from 1,355 of the State's 1,823 precincts had been determined.

The race was almost altogether between Reynolds and Senator Cameron Morrison, militant prohibitionist, and in those 1,355 precincts Reynolds had a lead of 1,884 votes.

Thomas C. Bowie, former superior court judge, and Frank Grist, State commissioner of labor, received scattering ballots, while the vote for Arthur Simmons, poultry fancier of Burlington and the fifth candidate, was negligible.

Here is the Associated Press tabulation of the vote in the first 1,343 precincts from which it received reports:

Reynolds, 118,546; Morrison, 116,662; Bowie, 24,639; Grist, 21,619; Simmons, 2,319.

J. C. B. Ehringhaus, attorney of Elizabeth City, led a three-cornered race for the Democratic nomination as governor, but failed to attain a majority.

The tabulation of the vote in 1,376 precincts showed Lieut. Gov. R. T. Fountain in second place with A. J. Maxwell, State commissioner of revenue, third. Those precincts gave Ehringhaus, 131,521; Fountain, 86,876; Maxwell, 81,124.

Youth, 21, Feared Drowned in River

Potomac Is Being Dragged for F. E. Walsh, Lost on Trip in Canoe.

The treacherous waters of the Potomac are believed to have claimed another life yesterday when police reported the river was being dragged for a person believed to be Frank E. Walsh, 21, 3902 Windom place northwest.

Walsh, accompanied by George Kopf, a friend, hired a canoe at Stop 30, Conduit road, and paddled to Snake Island, 1 mile above the District line. While swimming at the head of the island, Kopf said he saw the canoe adrift and he swam to the vicinity where Walsh was last seen, sitting atop a rock holding the canoe.

Kopf told police he swam around trying to locate Walsh and then recovered the canoe. He paddled to shore to notify police. The river was being dragged by the Glen Echo Volunteer Fire Department.

ROOSEVELT MEN BACK WALSH AS 1932 CHAIRMAN

Support Montanan Over Shouse for Permanent Post at Convention.

EARLY SHOWDOWN WITH SMITH SEEN

Democratic Chieftains Here Foresee Bitter Fight as Result of Decision.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Friends of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt have determined to support Senator Walsh, of Montana, for the permanent chairmanship of the Democratic national convention, James A. Farley, field marshal of the Roosevelt forces, announced today.

Their conclusion was made known in the face of the recent recommendation of the convention arrangements committee, which chose Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, as temporary chairman and recommended Jouett Shouse, the party's executive committee chairman, to be permanent convention chairman.

The statement of Farley follows:

"The governor's friends have come to the conclusion that they will urge the selection of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as permanent chairman of the Chicago convention."

Lunches With Roosevelt.

Farley spoke after a luncheon with Gov. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y. Farley declined to amplify the statement in any particular.

There has been considerable speculation on the possibility of the Roosevelt forces opposing Shouse since the recommendation was made by the committee. Shouse, who took a position against instructed convention delegations, has been labeled by the governor's followers as unfriendly to the New Yorker.

However, John J. Raskob, national Democratic chairman, once took occasion to deny emphatically that he and Shouse and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith had joined together to "stop Roosevelt."

At the time of the arrangements committee's report the impression was general that the unprecedented recommendation of a permanent chairman (Shouse) was the result of a compromise by which the committee members had agreed upon Barkley, stanch Roosevelt supporter, as temporary chairman and keynoter.

See Controlling Position.

In recent weeks the Roosevelt forces have let it be known that they regarded themselves in a position to control the convention and the selec-

Hitlerites Gain Seats In German State Diet

Schwerin, Germany, June 5 (A.P.).—Continuing its upward march, the National Socialist party of Adolf Hitler was notably successful today in the election of a new diet for the state of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

The Fascist Nazis increased the number of their seats in the diet from two in 1929 to 29 today, or just one-half of the 58 seats filled by the election. The Social Democrats, hitherto the strongest party with 20 seats, kept only 18. The Nationalists won five and the Communists four.

MOSES TO SEEK VOTE TODAY ON FURLOUGH PLAN

Last Effort to Be Made to Defeat 10 Per Cent U. S. Pay Slash.

PROPOSAL PROVIDES EXEMPTION OF $1,200

New Personnel Provisions, Reducing Annual Leave, Nearing Action.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A last effort to defeat 10 per cent Federal pay cuts in the Senate by substituting the President's compulsory furlough plan may be made late today.

Senator George H. Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, will press for a vote on the furlough amendment when the economy bill again is called up. It will be laid aside at noon for the tax bill conference report.

Senator Moses fought a losing battle to bring the furlough plan to a vote Saturday before the Senate approved the economy committee's 10 per cent slash on Federal salaries above $1,000.

As a complete substitute for "Title 1" of the bill, the chair ruled it could not be considered until the title was completed. The pay cut vote gave economy committee members, who opposed substitution of the furlough system, a tactical advantage over adherents of the plan.

Less Hardship Claimed.

Senator Moses argues 30-day enforced furloughs without pay will work less hardship on Federal workers than the flat cut, obviate wholesale discharge of workers, maintain existing wage standards and save between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 for the Treasury.

Opponents contend it would not operate in all branches of the service; that in many agencies a direct pay cut of 8.3 per cent will have to be applied. They hold it would not offer as great a saving as the committee plan and might result in disorganization of the services.

Federal workers and labor organizations have fought both pay cuts and furloughs with equal zest. Although a division of sentiment exists, the latter plan is believed more Government Retailing Said to Be Threatening Existence of Such Cities as Leavenworth, Seattle and Vallejo; Women's Pink Pajamas Sold at Post Exchange.

Proponents of the movement to evict the Government from the fields of business formerly occupied by private enterprise have held the view that with the growing centralization of governmental affairs in Washington, this city was suffering proportionally greater than other cities in or near which Federal retail establishments operate.

Voluminous reports filed with Representative Shannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the newly created House committee to investigate Government in business, indicate that the very existence of several formerly prosperous cities and towns is threatened by Federal encroachment.

Illustrating the general extent of Government retailing, Representative Shannon has at random called attention to existing conditions in Leavenworth, Kans., Seattle, Wash., and Vallejo, Calif., as reported to him by merchants' associations of those cities.

Vallejo is a city of 20,000 situated just across the channel from the Mare Island Navy Yard and, according to its merchants, is almost entirely dependent on the Government station for its existence.

For a number of years a small commissary was operated on Mare Island to take care of the sundry needs of enlisted men, restricting its sales to tobacco, shaving articles and other small items.

From this modest beginning competition has grown until now several establishments in the Navy Yard are said to be selling from candy bars to clothing, jewelry, hardware, motor car supplies and any other article that might be mentioned at prices as low, and in most cases lower, than the local retailers of Vallejo can buy at wholesale.

Such sales are supposedly restricted to enlisted men but it is the contention of Vallejo merchants that even if the restriction was rigidly adhered to, the competition would still be unethical detrimental to private business. It is further pointed out that it is no problem to have an enlisted man purchase whatever may be wanted for transfer to civilians

Bedell, Accused in Legation Liquor Holdup, Is Arrested

William E. Bedell, 35, indicted here last winter in connection with the robbery of liquor at the Salvadorean Legation and the assault on Minister Don Carlos de Leiva, then charge d'affaires, on May 12, 1931, was arrested in Baltimore yesterday and brought to this city to face trial.

Bedell was arrested on a warrant issued by Chief Justice Alfred Wheat of the District Supreme Court. It is understood that police here received a tip that he could be found in Baltimore and sent word there for authorities to hold him.

Department of Justice agents, it was learned last night, intend to interrogate Bedell as to his possible connection with a powerful narcotic ring operating along the Eastern seaboard. The Federal agents, it was learned, will also quiz the legation attack suspect on the Colonial Tea House shootings.

Detectives also desire to question Bedell about the slaying of Jack Cunningham, well-known gambler, in a downtown alley a few days after the robbery at the legation.

Just when Bedell will come to trial

PROGRAM OF 4 POINTS TO END ECONOMIC ILLS MAPPED AT RAPIDAN

White House Statement On Parley at Rapidan

(Associated Press.)

The text of the White House statement after President Hoover's conferences at his Rapidan camp, dealing with the relief question, follows:

The following are the conclusions of the Rapidan conference between President Hoover and the directors, Gov. Meyer (of the Federal Reserve Board), Gen. Dawes, Messrs. Jones, Couch, McCarthy, Bestor and Ballantine, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

They spent some hours yesterday (Saturday) and this morning reviewing the work which has been accomplished since the corporation was established on February 2 and discussed the board's plans and recommendations for the future. They also discussed methods further to coordinate all economic agencies engaged in assistance to business, employment and agriculture.

The review of the work of the corporation showed that in the fourteen weeks of its life loans of about $500,000,000 were authorized to something like 4,000 banks, agricultural credit corporations, life insurance companies and other financial institutions, and in addition thereto about $170,000,000 to railroads.

An analysis of the institutions and the purposes served showed that:

First—Of nearly 3,000 borrowing banks, more than 70 per cent are located in towns of 5,000 in population or less, while 84 per cent are located in towns of 25,000 in population or less; and that only 4.5 per cent of money loaned to banks has gone to institutions in cities of over 1,000,000 in population.

In all these communities, these banks have been able to meet the demands of their depositors and to minimize the necessity of forced collections, foreclosures and sales of securities and have thus contributed to protect community values. One hundred and twenty-five closed banks have either been reopened or their depositors paid out. And bank failures which amounted to nearly 100 a week

FEAR FOR HAUSNER'S SAFETY IS GROWING

Fate Remains Unknown as No News of Flier, Long Overdue, Is Heard.

London, June 5 (A.P.).—Europe was anxious tonight as no word was heard of Stanislaus F. Hausner, Polish-American flier missing since he soared over the Atlantic alone Friday with Warsaw as his goal.

His fate remained unknown to Poland, France and Great Britain.

Warsaw was greatly worried over the complete absence of news from the young adventurer since he left the North American mainland, said a dispatch from the Polish capital.

Air authorities there repeatedly telephoned to various European air fields, but in vain. Hausner's relatives eagerly awaited news from the overdue aviator at their homes near Warsaw.

No word of his progress from any point at sea had reached England since he started on his great adventure from New York, and Le Bourget Field, near Paris, also reported no news.

The realization that his gasoline must by now be exhausted brought considerable anxiety as to his safety. The overcast weather which prevailed over the British Isles for the past two days made it possible for a plane to pass over Great Britain without being observed, but the lack of any report

Student, 25, Dies As Car Hits Tree

Indiana Matriculate at University of Maryland Killed on Rockville Pike.

Robert J. Kilroy, 25-year-old student at the University of Maryland, was instantly killed last night when his car turned over and crashed into a tree on the Rockville pike near Garrett Park, Md.

The accident occurred in front of the home of Mrs. Charles A. Corby, who heard the impact, which she thought was a tire blowout. The car was demolished. Kilroy was taken to Georgetown Hospital by John B. Capoe, a taxicab driver who was following the student's car.

ASSASSINATION PLOT AIMED AT DUCE FAILS

Man With Bombs and Pistol Confesses After Arrest at Premier's Office.

Rome, June 5 (A.P.).—A frustrated plan to assassinate Premier Benito Mussolini was revealed today with announcement that a young Italian, armed with a pistol and two bombs, had been arrested outside the office of Il Duce in the Palazzo Venezia.

The would-be assassin, who was arrested yesterday, confessed, police said, that he sought to kill the premier during the Garibaldi anniversary celebration because Garibaldi was a symbol of liberty.

The first announcement of the arrest, made by the official government press bureau today, said the man was a 25-year-old Italian, whose name was Angelo Sbardellotto. He carried a Swiss passport, which bore the name of Angelo Gabini, but the press bureau said the document was a clever forgery.

The police said the prisoner was a member of an organization, called "Justice and Liberty," which was pledged to violent action. Many of its members had been arrested and condemned, the police added.

The prisoner was quoted as saying that he carried the two high explosive bombs for the attempt against Mussolini and the pistol to kill himself. His pockets were loaded with the weapons when he was arrested.

He was believed to have come from Cannes, France, by way of Tivoli, which is near Rome, for his contemplated attack on the premier. He was arrested in the Piazza Venezia, a public square fronting on Mussolini's office, when he attracted the suspicion of a detective on duty in the square.

A bomb search of a thoroughness rarely seen here was conducted overnight to protect King Victor Emmanuel, who this morning reviewed

Prosecution of Seabury Is Demanded by Hastings

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Prosecution of Samuel Seabury on a charge of violating the State constitution by accepting preferential steamship rates was demanded today as the Hofstadter committee counsel began summarizing for Gov. Roosevelt the evidence he has adduced concerning Mayor James J. Walker.

Seabury, who plans to have an analysis of the Walker testimony in Mr. Roosevelt's hands about the middle of this week, was accused by State Senator John A. Hastings of having traveled to Bermuda and back in accommodations worth $1,010, but for which he paid only $460.

Hastings, the Brooklyn Democrat, whose name figured prominently in the Hofstadter committee's investigation and who himself was subjected to Seabury's questioning, demanded that Seabury be prosecuted on a misdemeanor count.

In a letter to District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, Hastings declared Seabury bought accommodations

LOANS TO FARMERS INCLUDED IN PLANS

Democrats Ready to Speed Garner Bill; Snell Calls Meeting to Fight It.

(Associated Press.)

Out of intensive conferences at the presidential lodge in Virginia yesterday came a general administration program for economic rehabilitation, while the relief progra. moved toward another seething congressional battle before adjournment.

President Hoover, with President Dawes of the Reconstruction Corporation, and the organization's directorate, canvassed the economic situation thoroughly discusing "methods further to coordinate all econ mic agencies in assistance to business, employment and agriculture."

Through Saturday, Saturday night and early yesterday the dicussions went on, and then, from the White House, a lengthy statement was issued setting forth the following four-point program:

1. To stimulate employment and stiffen the whole agricultural situation, extend the authority to the Reconstruction Corporation to increase its issues of securities to the maximum of $3,000,000,000.

Permission to Buy Bonds.

This was designed to permit it to buy bonds from political subdivisions of public bodies or corporations to start construction of income producing self-liquidating projects to increase employment; to make loans upon security of agricultural commodities so as to assure the carrying of normal stocks of these commodities and thus by stabilizing their loan value, steady their price levels; to make loans to the Farm Board for extension of loans to farm cooperatives and loans for export of agricultural commodities to quarters unable otherwise to purchase them; authority to loan up to $300,000,000 to States unable to finance themselves for distress.

2. Enactment of administration-recommended legislation creating the system of home loan discount banks as a "necessary complement to the Reconstruction Corporation."

Holding Down Expenditures.

3. The joint committee of industry and finance now being created by the Federal Reserve System in each district for the purpose of organized application of the credit facilities now available through the system to be developed in other cities and coordinated with the work of the corporation.

4. Holding down Government expenditures to within the tax income now provided and undertaking no programs of expenditures which can not be paid for from current tax income.

In addition to the President and Gen. Dawes, those sitting in the conferences were Gov. Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board, Jesse H. Jones, Wilson McCarthy, Harvey C. Couch, Paul Bestor, of the Farm Loan Bureau, and Undersecretary Ballantine.

HOOVER DUE TO GET REVENUE BILL TODAY

Adjournment of Congress to Be Delayed by Relief Insurance Program.

(Associated Press.)

Congress concludes this week its most stupendous peace-time task—balancing of a billion dollar Treasury deficit—but adjournment will probably wait another week for enactment of a gigantic relief insurance program.

The $1,118,500,000 revenue raising bill goes through its last congressional move today when the Senate considers the conference report adjusting differences between the two branches. Leaders confidently predicted last night the bill would be sent to President Hoover before nightfall today.

Mr. Hoover, who spent the week-end in the Virginia mountains with the financial leaders of the Government studying the national unemployment and farm relief problems, will sign the revenue measure immediately. The score of new excise taxes will go into effect within fifteen days and continue until July 1, 1934.

A contest faces the revenue measure today in the Senate. A point of order will be made against the modification agreed to by conferees in the electrical energy tax. The 3 per cent rate was made to apply on consumers rather than on the power companies.

Nevertheless, there is a will to end the onerous tax raising job and Senate leaders insisted last night the bill would be sped to a conclusion of its troubled trip through Congress by tonight.

Refusal of the Senate to revive the controversial sales tax was credited by the congressional chieftains with aiding in the swift ending of the tax contest. However, that levy still is considered seriously on Capitol Hill and probably will be called up in days to come.

Foes of Huey Long Push New Revolt

Second Delegation Will Be Named to National Convention.

New Orleans, June 5 (U.P.).—A battle over Louisiana's 20 votes at the Democratic national convention at Chicago brewed today as bolting party leaders prepared for a "rump" State convention which will select a second and rival group of delegates for the national meeting.

It was a new revolt against the control of Senator Huey P. Long, former governor and self-styled "kingfish" of Louisiana politics. The State executive committee met in New Orleans several weeks ago and selected delegates for the national convention.

Saturday four members of the State central committee, backed by ten parish executive committees, issued a call for a "rump" convention at Shreveport June 14. The "insurgent" convention will be preceded by parish mass meetings on June 11 to name State convention representation.

RAPIDAN CONFEREES DRAFT AID PROGRAM of the Treasury, all directors of the corporation.

The party will return to Washington early today.

The statement from the White House was issued as the scant Democratic majority in the House laid plans to rush the $2,000,000,000 Garner relief program through to the Senate tomorrow despite opposition from Republicans.

The Garner plan, which President Hoover has assailed in biting language, provides more than $1,000,000,000 for public works.

Again bringing the administration cudgel into play against an enlarged public works program, the White House statement yesterday said:

"Expansion of nonproductive works requiring the issuance of Government securities for any other lines of expenditures would at once create a deficit and again unbalance the budget, and would render financing of the operations of the Reconstruction Corporation extremely difficult, it not impossible and would increase rather than decrease unemployment."

Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, has called a conference of his colleagues for this afternoon to decide upon a campaign against the Garner proposal. Earlier, the Democratic leaders, including the Speaker, will go before the rules committee to urge consideration of the relief proposal under procedure that will expedite House action and place the $2,230,000,000 bill on the Senate's doorstep the following day.

Defections Are Expected.

Although the Democrats are bound by the tight caucus rule to support the Garner program, several defections are expected. Representatives Lozier and Cannon, of Missouri, and Rankin, of Mississippi, have served notice they will not support it. However, independent Republicans, headed by Representative LaGuardia, of New York, have informed Garner they will throw their strength behind the bill.

Tomorrow morning Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, and Snell will greet in Speaker Garner's office a committee of mayors from big cities, who are coming here to petition President Hoover and Congress for Federal relief. The committee is headed by Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit.

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, advocate of the administration's relief program to increase the borrowing authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by $1,500,000,000 and to loan $300,000,000 to States for direct relief and to promote disposal of farm surpluses in foreign markets, will seek to have it substituted by the House for the Garner program. He does not hope for much success, he indicated, but administration leaders are more hopeful of success in the Senate.

Warning of Appeal to Voters.

The joint committee on unemployment in a formal statement yesterday said the two major parties had failed to enact relief legislation and warned it would appeal directly to the voters in every congressional district.

The committee, headed by Prof. John Dewey, advocates a program calling for a Federal gift of $500,000 to the States and other political subdivisions; a $5,000,000,000 public works construction program; reorganization of the housing corporation; Federal subvention to State unemployment insurance systems; old-age pensions; shorter work week; and payment of all unemployment costs by increased income taxes.

when the corporation began are now down to about the casualties of normal times. It is estimated that altogether over 10,000,000 individual depositors and borrowers have been benefited by the margins provided by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to these banks.

Benefit to Thousands.

Second: Over 250 building and loan associations have borrowed from the corporation in order to enable them on the one hand to make their routine payments to their depositors and participants, and on the other to avoid the foreclosures of mortgages. The result against has been benefits to hundreds of thousands of individuals.

Third: In the agricultural field, the corporation has underwritten or subscribed for issues placing $68,000,000 of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank debentures, the whole of which are loaned directly to farmers for production and marketing purposes. Loans have been made to a number of agricultural, market and live stock finance corporations, which in turn has enabled them to extend and continue loans particularly upon live stock and loans to a great number of farmers. Beyond this, loans to the extent of $75,000,000 have been made directly to about 450,000 farmers for seed purposes through the Department of Agriculture. Altogether probably 1,000,000 individual farmers have been directly or indirectly helped.

Employment Increase.

Fourth: The net result of approximately $170,000,000 authorized loans to railroads has been on one hand to increase employment by continuing necessary construction work, and on the other hand by preventing receiverships, and thus safeguarding the great investments of the trustee institutions such as insurance companies, savings banks, &c. The deterioration of service and other standards which accompany receiverships have also been avoided.

Generally about $670,000,000 of loans authorized to date have filtered through to the use and protection of a very large segment of the whole country. An encouraging feature is that the repayment of loans has begun, some $30,000,000 having been repaid.

The conference conclusions as to immediate policies necessary to speedy economic recovery embrace four principal items affecting the reconstruction corporation.

Increase in Issues.

In order at once to stimulate employment and to stiffen the whole agricultural situation to extend the authority to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to increase its issues of its securities to the maximum of $3,000,000,000 to enable it (a) to buy bonds from political subdivisions or public bodies or corporations so as to start construction of income-producing or self-liquidation projects which will at once increase employment; (b) to make loans upon security of agricultural commodities so as to assure the carrying of normal stocks of these commodities and thus by stabilizing their loan value and thereby at once steady their price levels; (c) to make loans to the Federal Farm Board to enable extension of loans to farm cooperatives and loans for export of agricultural commodities to quarters unable otherwise to purchase them; (d) the authority to loan up to $300,000,000 to such States as are unable to finance themselves for distress.

It was considered desirable that temporary nonpartisan committees should be set up to pass upon loans to States for distress and of engineers to pass upon loans for income producing works. Both of these committees to function in much the same way as the Interstate Commerce Commission now acts in passing upon loans to railroads.

Construction of New Homes.

2. The enactment of the legislation which has been recommended creating the system of home loan discount banks. Surveys by the building and loan associations and the Department of Commerce show, that these institutions would not only protect great numbers of homes from foreclosures, but that they would immediately stimulate from five hundred million to a billion dollars of construction work in new homes in many under-built localities and in renovations. It was considered that these institutions were a necessary complement to the Reconstruction Corporation and could well be financed by the corporation from its funds if the legislation creating that system is enacted.

3. The joint committee of industry and finance now being created by the Federal Reserve System in each district for the purpose of organized application of the credit facilities now available through the system to be developed in other cities and coordinated with the work of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Would Unbalance Budget.

4. That Government expenditures must be held down absolutely to within the tax income now provided, and that no programs of expenditure should be undertaken which can not be paid for from current tax income. Expansion of nonproductive public works requiring the issuance of Government securities for any other lines of expenditures would at once create a deficit and again unbalance the budget, and would render financing of the operations of the Reconstruction Corporation extremely difficult, if not impossible, and would increase, rather than decrease unemployment.

The board presented to the President a high tribute to the thousands of members of committees and of the staff of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, working in every city and located in every part of the Union, who have given their undivided time and service to enabling the corporation to function on such an enormous scale and so effectively in the short period of less than three months.

Vertiginous Education Just the Thing Today

By JOHN J. DALY

TO relieve congestion in classrooms and dormitories, some of the institutions of higher learning, especially those in the larger cities, are planning to erect skyscrapers, Columbia University leading the way.

The first proposed structure of this kind will be 30 stories in height, others to go as high as 50, with some eventually to be higher than the Chrysler and the Empire State buildings, the Washington Monument looking like part of a miniature goal-post beside them.

As the plan is unfolded, the freshmen, entering college on the ground floor, will be kept to the lower stories. Sophomores will be just one layer higher, the senior or graduating class, nearer the top—the upper stories reserved for the faculty and the associate professors.

All this is as it should be—a gradual ascension to the realm of higher learning—the reverse of transcendentalism—living in the cellar and thinking in the attic.

The postgraduates, in these big buildings, would probably be shot through to the roof, their doctorates conferred by the learned professors at roof-garden commencement exercises.

THE entire program is symbolic of democracy and the opportunities presented by the Republic, where a man worth his salt starts at the bottom and works up, though he does not always use an elevator. Really, it demonstrates more than that. This is a concrete illustration of what it means to get on, and up, in the world. The student in the sky-scraper halls of learning start low and ascend step by step, floor by floor, until they have acquired their quota of knowledge, experience, and, as the bon mot has it, what have you.

When education was on the level, so to speak, before the rush skyward, most of the giants came direct from the little red schoolhouse on the hill, the highest point of learning in the days of the three R's. After graduation, that unsophisticated mob chose their professions and went at it, hammer and tongs, helping to build an empire. Beg pardon, a Republic.

Nowadays, the boys and girls go out to get their sheepskins, taking an elevator to get somewhere in the higher ranks of educated men and women.

The world, you see, is on the up and up.

REYNOLDS, WET, LEADING IN NORTH CAROLINA BALLOT

and "long" terms were at stake in the senatorial primary. The long term is the regular six-year term beginning next March 4, while the short term is from the election next November until March 4.

The count which gave Reynolds the lead was for the long term. Many precincts did not report the short-term count and figures for it were wholly indecisive, but those reported gave Morrison a lead.

For the short term the vote tabulated from 865 precincts was Morrison, 75,771; Reynolds, 70,060; Bowie, 15,978; Grist, 15,945. Simmons was not a candidate for the nomination for the short term.

Reynolds, an attorney of Asheville, and former district solicitor, stumped the State during the campaign on the prohibition issue. He urged repeal of the dry laws and a tax on alcoholic drink to "give the Government the money the bootleggers are getting now."

Reynolds asserted his was a temperance campaign and that there was no question of "bringing liquor back because it has never left us."

It was the first time the prohibition issue had been raised in North Carolina since the State voted dry 25 years ago.

Morrison, an elder in the Presbyterian Church and friend of prohibition and who was Governor of North Carolina from 1921 to 1925, lives in Charlotte. He has been a leader in the Democratic party for over 30 years and is national committeeman from this State. He was appointed to the Senate two years ago by Gov. O. Max Gardner upon the death of Senator Lee Slater Overman.

Grist charged Morrison was subservient to "the big interests," and attacked him for refusing to pledge himself to vote for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Bowie attacked the senator for voting to confirm the nomination by President Hoover of Frank McNinch as a member of the Federal Power Commission. McNinch led the anti-Smith campaign in North Carolina in 1928.

If a second primary is held, it will come on July 2.

There were contests for the Democratic nomination in only three of the congressional districts, and on the basis of incomplete returns the two incumbents who had contests appeared to have won.

Representative C. L. Abernethy was head of Rivers Johnson, a State senator, in the Third District, and Representative Zebulon Weaver had a majority over two opponents in the Eleventh, which prior to the reapportionment of Congress was the Tenth. His opponents were J. O. Gilkey, of Marion, and C. S. Davis.

The other contest was in the Sixth District, created from the old Fifth when North Carolina was apportioned another congressman. Seven candidates filed for the office. Incomplete returns gave W. B. Umstead, of Durham, district solicitor, the lead with Norman C. Boren, an attorney of Greensboro, second.

SAVINGS BILL JOKER WILL ADD TO SLASH

Furlough Plan, as Well as Pay Cut, Is Included in Present Measure.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

A joker in the so-called economy bill may cost Government employes much more than the proposed 10 per cent reduction in pay, and, with other provisions, may demoralize the Government service.

Although public attention has been centered on a proposal by Senator George H. Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, to substitute a furlough plan for the pay cut bill drafted by the so-called economy committee already contains a general furlough command, the effect of which no one can foretell at this time.

The committee's furlough provision commands all executives in the Government to furlough employes at their discretion in order to keep within the limit of the appropriations for their departments and bureaus. As first written, this committee furlough provision, which is in addition to the cut in pay, directed that furloughs should begin with the higher paid employes, but this was changed at the last minute to except higher paid employes when to furlough them would cause injury to the service.

Limit Not Specified.

The committee furlough plan contains no directions anent equal distribution of the furlough burden, nor does it specify any length of time which shall be considered as a proper furlough.

What will be the effect of this provision, if finally accepted by Congress under the present lash to speed hastily considered measures to enactment, can not be forecast because no one knows what will be the provisions of the various appropriation bills. It is proposed that the total of each appropriation measure shall be slashed 10 per cent.

Under the furlough command of the so-called economy committee it would be necessary for each department and bureau to lay off employes to a sufficient number and for a sufficient length of time to save the 10 per cent it is planned to cut from the appropriations.

The 10 per cent direct slash in salaries, of course, would come on top of this furlough.

Personnel experts, who have studied the so-called economy bill, point out other illogical discrepancies in the measure. Although the measure has been advanced as an emergency one, it contains several permanent changes in existing law. One of these, for example, is the proposal to reduce the traveling allowances for everybody in the Government but members of Congress.

Argument for Reduction.

Reduction in per diem travel allowances, it is argued, is justified by the decrease in prices since the country was gripped by the depression. But the very same measure makes no allowances for any decrease in living costs when it comes to charging Government workers forced to live on station.

The Senate committee disagreed with the House and included in the total on which pay slashes were to be computed allowances for subsistence, quarters and light. The House did not. But the Senate committee, which insisted that living costs had decreased so greatly that travel allowances should be cut down, made no proportionate reduction in the amount the Government charges its employes whom it compels to live in quarters provided by it.

Furlough of Government workers, incidentally, already has been going on for some time. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington has been working under a furlough scheme for a long time. One of the most recent instances to come to light is an announcement by the United States district attorney at Chicago. Employes in his office, he said, would be required to take three days off without pay this month in order to save $1,206.

The district attorney said he had received instructions from the Attorney General in Washington to furlough employes to save money. That, incidentally, is under appropriation bills enacted last year. How many employes will be furloughed for how long under the appropriation bills now under preparation can be guessed at.

FURLOUGH IDEA VOTE TO BE SOUGHT TODAY

generally popular with employes themselves than the 10 per cent slash. Labor groups approve of the "five-day week" principle incorporated in the proposal, but do not think Government employes should bear all of its burden.

$1,200 Exemption.

The amendment proposed by Senator Moses would cut the salaries of the Vice President, the Speaker of the House, representatives and senators 10 per cent. It would exempt workers drawing less than $1,200 from the furlough provisions.

Sponsored in the House by Representative C. William Ramseyer (Republican), Iowa, who boosted the exemption to $1,500, the plan was voted down.

Leaving "Title 1" behind, the Senate next will take up other controversial provisions affecting Government personnel, many of which were approved by the House in its $42,000,000 economy bill.

Dropped by Senate Group.

The House provision for enforced retirement of superannuated employes was dropped by the Senate committee. Another provision greatly modified was the section authorizing dismissal of either husband or wife, where both are employed in the Federal service. The Senate vote will be on whether the Civil Service Commission in hiring workers should give preference to persons other than those whose husband or wife already is in the service.

New personnel provisions inserted by the Senate committee, which will reach a vote today or tomorrow, would permanently reduce to fifteen days annual leave of Government workers. Another gives heads of departments the right to furlough workers in order to stay within appropriations.

Other provisions of this "tie, vigorously fought by Federal workers, abolish pay for overtime and night work, suspend automatic pay increases and no filling of vacancies except on written consent of the President. A new provision provides that retirement deductions from pay be based on the regular salary rate, instead of income received after the cut.

Roumania Is Still Without Cabinet

Titulescu Admits Inability to Organize; Vaida-Voevod Asked to Try.

Bucharest, Roumania, June 5 (A.P.).—After two days of negotiations with various party leaders, Nicholas Titulescu announced today that he was unable to form a cabinet to succeed the ministry of Nicholas Jorga. M. Titulescu said he was convinced he could not form a government unless he received the support of the Liberals.

After a conference with M. Titulescu, King Carol summoned Alexander Vaida-Voevod and asked him to constitute a cabinet.

M. Vaida-Voevod accepted the mandate and expressed hope that he would be able to carry it out with the assistance of the Liberals and the National Peasant party.

SHORT-TERM FUNDS OUTFLOW IS RECORD

European Financial Crisis of 1931 Is Blamed for $765,000,000 Total.

(Associated Press.)

Largely as a result of the European financial crisis in the second half of 1931, the United States saw a record net outflow of $765,000,000 in short-term funds during last year.

A total of $1,275,000,000 in deposits and short-term investments were withdrawn from the United States by foreigners. At the same time Americans withdrew from foreign markets the much smaller total of $510,000,000.

The Department of Commerce announced the figures yesterday on the basis of compilations by Dr. Amos E. Taylor, who writes the department's annual review of the balance of international payments of the United States.

Emergency Credits Effect.

"The year's short-term international capital movements were influenced not only by foreign withdrawals," Dr. Taylor said, "but also by the extensive volume of emergency credits granted by American banks to Europe. In addition to small credits established by the Federal Reserve banks in favor of Austrian and Hungarian central banks, similar credits of $25,000,000 and $125,000,000 were granted to the German Reichsbank and the Bank of England, respectively."

A potential volume of slightly more than $100,000,000 of these credits, the report added, was still outstanding at the end of the year.

Foreign Deposits Here.

Among credits advanced by private banking interests and either partly or wholly unliquidated at the end of the year was one of $200,000,000 extended late in August to the British treasury for support of the Bank of England, then being drained severely of its gold reserve; another $50,000,000 made available to the German Gold Discount Bank; and a substantial portion of the credits still frozen under the terms of the August standstill agreement.

"It is evident therefore," the report said, "that a relatively large portion of the total of $1,292,000,000 in short term funds held abroad by United States lenders at the end of 1931 was represented by British and German obligations created as a direct result of the European financial crisis."

Dr. Taylor found that despite the tremendous withdrawal of short term funds by foreign creditors from the American markets, foreign deposits in the United States showed a relatively smaller decline than did American deposits abroad.

Lifeboats Rushed To Grounded Ship

Food Is Taken 28 Men on Board Freighter; No Immediate Danger, Report.

Charlevoix, Mich., June 5 (A.P.).—The freighter Morris S. Tremaine, her forward compartments punctured and flooded, lay helpless on a reef south of Fox Island in Lake Michigan today, and Coast Guard lifeboats stood by to remove the crew of 28 men, if necessary.

The Tremaine piled on the reef late boats from North and South Manitou Islands and Charlevoix were sent to her after distress calls were received, and the tug Favorite and a lighter yesterday in a heavy fog. Coast Guard were dispatched from St. Ignace and Sault Ste. Marie, respectively, to remove the cargo of coal and attempt to pull the freighter off the reef.

The Charlevoix Coast Guardsmen returned to their station this morning and reported that the crew is in no immediate danger. Provisions were left on the stranded vessel.

Mississippi Names Her 20 Tomorrow

Senator Harrison Favors Uninstructed Delegates Leaning to Roosevelt.

Jackson, Miss., June 5 (A.P.).—On the eve of the State Democratic convention, to be held here Tuesday, capitol political circles speculated as to which candidate the Mississippi delegation will support at the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

This interest was intensified tonight by a letter from Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, in which he announced his desire that the State's Democratic delegation "go uninstructed," but unite as a body for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Harrison's expression places both Mississippi senators on record as supporting the candidacy of the New York governor.

Junior Senator Hubert D. Stephens several months ago expressed himself as favorable to Roosevelt's nomination, but at the same time urged that the Mississippi delegation not be instructed. Mississippi will send twenty delegates to the convention. Sixteen will be selected from the eight congressional districts and four from the State at large.

U. S. AWAITING DATA TO RECOGNIZE CHILE

Stimson Studies Precedents of Other Revolutionary Governments.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Recognition of the new government in Chile, established by the coup d'etat of Carlos Davila, former Chilean Ambassador here, is expected to be extended by the State Department as soon as formal application is made. Up to a late hour last night no formal steps had been taken by the new government and the present charge d'affaires of the embassy, Oscar Blanco Viel, was without instructions.

The dramatic action of Senor Davila had not been totally unexpected by officials here as it was generally known that Chile's "Man of Destiny" as Davila was sometimes called, had long been preparing the coup d'etat.

Secretary Stimson was studying the precedents under which American recognition of other revolutionary governments in South America had been made. It was recalled that the Brazilian insurrection headed by Gen. Getulio Vargas, which eventually became the present Brazilian federal authority had received formal recognition from Secretary Stimson as soon as normalcy had been restored.

Cruchaga in Mexico.

The State Department had not yet received complete reports from the American diplomatic and consular officers in Santiago and Secretary Stimson will reserve all action until he is in possession of the facts.

Chilean Ambassador Miguel Cruchaga is now in Mexico and is not expected to return to his post here until the end of the month. Ambassador Cruchaga is chairman of the various mixed claims commissions now sitting in Mexico and he recently went there to wind up the final details of the wartime litigation.

It was recalled here that Ambassador Cruchaga may very probably continue on in office here due to his tactful aloofness from all political activity both here and at home and also on account of the gesture he made when five years ago he made the trip especially to New York to greet Senor Davila, who was then coming to Washington to succeed the post he had resigned.

When the dynamic personality of Carlos Davila strode on to the stage of world prominence as the author of the most recent coup d'etat, there were many here in Washington who recalled him and his fateful belief in his own star of destiny.

No cheap political opportunist is the Chilean statesman, but a figure reminiscent in stature of Napoleon, in ruthlessness of Marius, the terror of the Roman aristocracy, and in politics, of Danton. With this modernistic conception of the role of the State in the life of the individual Davila may well bring into the political sphere of Latin-America a new conception of the roles of the individual and the state.

For five years Davila was ambassador here and during that time he handled, under directions from the Chilean government in Santiago, the formation of the Cosach nitrate combine, which he will in all probability now proceed to dissolve. He traveled extensively from East to West popularizing his country and contributed to numerous newspapers and magazines.

Spoke English Fluently.

In appearance, Davila was below medium height, but with a dynamic forceful personality that completely dispelled the impression of physical insufficiency. His eyes were large, brilliant and piercing, his forehead prominent and high, his chin powerful and aggressive. He spoke English with great fluency and eloquence and was a great admirer of the United States in world politics.

However, there was about him a cold ruthlessness that really became apparent whenever he spoke of the doctrines of Nietzsche, the politics of Lenin or the achievement of Mussolini.

Chile has been proceeding from bad to worse, due to the general economic depression all over the world, but more especially to the decline in prices of practically the sole important items of Chilean foreign trade—nitrate and copper. The rapid development of synthetic nitrate facilities in the United States and in Germany has practically wiped out the foreign market for Chile's natural product and the glut of world markets in copper and the more recent tariff placed on copper imports by the action of Congress has contributed to the general economic paralysis of the Chilean government.

The political situation in Chile reflected the economic instability. The government of President Montero was threatened with revolt on several occasions and shortly before the Davila coup and successful uprising had caused him to be arrested and imprisoned with several of his followers.

Conception of Politics.

Davila during his stay here often spoke of his conception of the role of the State in modern political life, a conception which was an American compromise between the Marxist theories of Lenin and Stalin and the personal government of Benito Mussolini. Davila admired both concepts of the dictator and often expressed his regret that the broad sphere of democracy had perforce to include in its political unit the politician as well as the patriot.

Before becoming ambassador here Senor Davila was the editor and owner of one of the most affluent newspapers in Santiago. Since he returned to Chile he has added to his newspaper enterprises a news magazine and has called it Hoy ("Today").

Senora Davila was one of the most charming hostesses in the diplomatic corps, but was more at home with the intelligencia rather than the purely social elements of the diplomatic set. She was an artist of great talent, and some time before her departure for Chile held an exhibition of her paintings in the Roerich Museum, in New York, which was highly praised by the critics.

Industrialists Back Fund for State Relief

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Establishment of a $300,000,000 fund to be loaned through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the various States, which in turn would use the money to finance unemployment relief, was advocated today by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The association announced opposition to "extensive programs of public construction through bond issues since these would imperil the national credit and increase the tax load upon already overburdened shoulders."

was he who led the army air corps and a large number of infantrymen in the march of historic Moneda Palace, official residence of the president.

The establishment of this, Latin America's first socialistic republic, was hand-written on the political wall many weeks ago. But the sudden seizure of power yesterday startled the country, which had not expected an overturn of the government for some time.

Chile had been gradually swinging to the left with dissatisfaction at the failure of the Montero group to solve the unemployment, trade and financial problems and with the refusal of the Montero cabinet to quit experimenting with the control of foreign exchange.

People who had seen their national wealth dwindle to little through mining and industrial conditions were in a mood to welcome the Socialist regime, so that labor groups have turned to the junta, indicating that plans for a general strike may never be attempted.

The move toward the Left started last September with a Communist revolt in the navy. The leaders of that revolt are expected to be pardoned by the new regime.

Influence of Soviet.

The northern provinces have been the chief centers of agitation among thousands of unemployed nitrate and copper workers. The workers have sought not so much outright communism as state socialism on a moderate scale, which the Davila-Grove junta expects to give the nation.

As far as could be ascertained, the junta would gather much inspiration from some of the works of Soviet Russia in state control and various other matters, but would mold such ideas to suit Chilean conditions.

The junta, too, might draw on such men as Premier Mussolini, of Italy; Adolf Hitler, the Fascist leader of Germany, and Mustapha Kemel Pasha, Nationalist president of Turkey, for ideas as to how to operate the state.

Personnel of Cabinet.

The new cabinet is:
Gen. Puga—Interior.
Luis Barriga—Foreign affairs.
Dr. Pedro Fajardo—Justice.
Alfredo Lagarrigue—Finance.
Victor M. Nevarrete—Industry.
Carlos A. Martinez—Lands.
Col. Marmaduke Grove—Defense.
Dr. Oscar Olfuentes—Welfare.
Ramon Alverez—Labor.
Guillermo Azocar—Agriculture.
Eugenio Gonzalez—Education.

The minister of welfare and education are Communists and the minister of lands is a socialist. The rest are members of various other Chilean parties.

With appointment of the new cabinet, the government of Senor Davila, who formerly was Ambassador to Washington, told just what happened in the successful coup.

Various troops gradually joined the movement yesterday morning, and by noon the junta controlled the situation from its headquarters at El Bosque Airport. Then the junta demanded that President Montero resign and deliver power to it.

Steps in Revolt.

The revolutionaries were given to understand that this would be done. In the afternoon former President Arturo Alessandri, who had been a political opponent of President Montero, had an unsuccessful conference with the junta at the airport.

The troops, which had been held back, then were ordered to march on the palace.

With Col. Grove at their head, the junta entered the palace, went to the second floor, faced President Montero and his cabinet and demanded compliance with their ultimatum.

President Montero replied that, in view of the armed forces having failed to support his government, he had no alternative but to leave, which he did with his cabinet. Junta immediately assumed power and appointed Fernando Jaramillo as governor of Santiago Province.

While the junta had not yet completed its official program, it was learned from a reliable source that it probably would include the following points:

1. Dissolution of Congress and the calling of an assembly to write a new Socialist constitution.

2. A heavy tax on large fortunes and incomes, to produce at least 500,000,000 pesos.

Small Nitrate Plants.

3. General organization, distribution and control of foodstuffs by the state, using the army for this purpose.

4. Dissolution or social organization of the vast Cosach nitrate combine, now American controlled, and the reopening of small nitrate plants.

5. Reorganization of the production and sale of nitrates, with possible price wars with competitors abroad.

6. State monopolies for oil, matches, tobacco, iodine, alcohol, sugar, foreign commerce and possibly internal commerce.

7. Division of large estates now paying no taxes and their colonization with the aid of the army.

8. Progressive steps toward full socialization of credits.

9. Reorganization and reduction of the armed forces and the diplomatic and consular services.

10. Negotiation for new treaties, with the elimination of a duty on Argentine cattle and wheat.

11. Recognition of the Soviet Russian government.

12. Prohibition of the importation of luxury articles such as silks, automobiles and perfumes.

The junta assured "social elements" that it desired nothing more than to "grant the poorer classes the health and welfare to which they have a legitimate right as the builders of all riches."

"Different governments in recent years have failed completely," said a manifesto addressed to the nation. The working classes had suffered greatly, it added.

The new regime would solve the problems by organizing the producing forces under the control of the state. The junta said it intended to build a "better society," giving all activities "an impulse of energy, youth, efficiency and discipline."

Cooperation Is Asked.

It called for the public's cooperation "so that no reactionary force may destroy the plan."

Credit would be controlled by the state for the benefit of the community to avoid the exploitation of workers by capitalism, the manifesto continued.

The government would not accept a stoppage of activities by national or foreign organization under the pretext of protecting their interests or profits. As for foreign markets, it would incline to free Chilean economy of the "yoke of international and national capitalism."

If necessary the government would take charge of the importations of sugar, petroleum, gasoline and other necessities. It would demand from domestic and foreign firms a declaration of their stocks and merchandise.

To Feed Everybody.

The government would "use all the means in its power" to feed everybody in Chile. It would make work compulsory so that everybody would have a sufficient purchasing capacity.

Measures would be taken to give the people food, clothing and shelter.

Public education would be reorganized.

William S. Culbertson, American Ambassador, discussed the situation with American business leaders at the embassy today. He had little sleep last night as he devoted the hours to investigating the program of the new government in order not only to guide the American interests but advise Washington on the question of recognizing the new government.

Eugenio Matte, a well-known lawyer in his thirties, and Gen. Puga, a middle-aged militarist, with strong disciplinary convictions, are the others in the junta who are ruling with Provisional President Davila and Col. Grove.

An authoritative source said tonight that several leading foreign interests had been assured they would be given cooperation and protection by the government, which would make no attempt for the present to confiscate their property.

It was generally understood, however, that the nitrate combine would be nationalized.

Break in Levee Floods Cotton.

Mexicali, Mexico, June 5 (A.P.).—A 50-foot break in the Rodrigues levee, 45 miles south of here, poured water from the flooding Colorado River over 1,200 acres of cotton land today. A force of 350 men had the flow almost under control tonight.

MEXICO MAY HELP PERILED PROPERTY

Indicates State Laws for Expropriation Will Be Federally Curbed.

Mexico City, June 5 (U.P.).—Two developments over the week-end were interpreted here as forecasting the Federal Government's intervention in favor of property owners against the effects of the State of Hidalgo's expropriation decree and a similar law enacted by the Vera Cruz State Legislature which is expected to be placed in effect shortly. These state laws provide for the governors to take over private properties for the good of the state when needed.

El Nacional, the government party's organ, today editorially condemned the Vera Cruz measure, declaring that "Communism is simpler and more logical," and demanded respect for the federal constitution and laws.

President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, in a speech at Actopan, State of Hidalgo, complimented the state on its progressive measures, but his speech was construed by observers as indicating the federal government would not stand for much invasion of private property rights.

"There has been some criticism recently," he said, "of a certain progressive and forward-looking law. Already the federal government is discussing with state authorities the means of correcting anything in this law which may conflict with the constitution, although undoubtedly it is based on nothing but the same spirit of progress which inspires revolutionaries throughout the country."

It is believed by observers here that the federal government recognizes the necessity of guaranteeing capital sufficient security to encourage investment of both foreign and domestic funds which Mexican industry and agriculture need urgently.

19 Known Dead in 'Quake.

Mexico City, June 5 (U.P.).—Early reports of several hundred casualties in Friday's earthquake were discredited today when a careful check of the Western States which were most affected revealed only nineteen known dead. Nine persons were killed at Colima, five at Autlan, two at Ameca and one at Zamora, Chuatlan and Manzanillo. Several charcoal burners were reported to have been entombed in crevices which opened in the hills near Mascota and an unstated number of dead were reported at Puerto Vallarta and elsewhere.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS HELD MENACE TO INDUSTRY

and that such transactions are daily occurrences. Gasoline is sold on Mare Island at government contract cost and is exempt from the 3 cents road tax imposed by the state of California.

The Washington State Retail Grocers and Merchants Association has submitted as evidence of government in business a confidential list of firms in Seattle and Bremerton compiled at the Navy Yard at Bremerton and issued to patrons of its commissary "identified by their permit cards". The list sets forth the names and addresses of 64 companies doing business in those two cities and discounts offered by each, ranging from 25 per cent on jewelry to 50 per cent on Standard Oil products in bulk.

Other companies listed include dealers in clothing, motor car supplies, paint, stoves, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, sporting goods, furs, radios and furniture. A beauty parlor, offering a 10 per cent discount, also appears on the list.

Retailing Is Fought.

Chambers of Commerce of Leavenworth, Kans., and Kansas City, Mo., have long carried on a fight against Government retailing at Fort Leavenworth and the Federal penitentiary, but with indifferent success.

It was at the post exchange at Fort Leavenworth that Representative Shannon' secretary purchased a pair of women's pink pajamas, perfumes, beads, necktie and cigarettes without question as to civil or military status. These pajamas were later included in an exhibit before the House, prompting Mr. Shannon to inquire of that body what military necessity might require the sale of pink pajamas at an Army post.

An Army captain, seven sergeants and additional civilian employes are engaged full time to conduct this post exchange. According to a protest from the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, the exchange offers a long list of commodities for sale, including men's and women's clothing, groceries, meats, vegetables and fruits and articles not stocked, such as furniture, radios, silverware, furnaces and rugs, are obtained on order. The business of the post exchange and a book department operated by War Department employes at the Command and General Staff School is estimated to exceed $600,000 annually.

That the Army also runs a chicken farm at Fort Leavenworth with a major directing its operation by a detachment of colored soldiers is vouched for by the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce. Chickens and eggs are said to be sold to any one who cares to buy, at prices no private concern can meet, as are also flowers and produce from Government-operated greenhouses and truck farms.

Make Shoes and Brooms.

The Department of Justice, in its relation to Federal penitentiaries, conduct other lines of business through the two prisons located at Leavenworth. Manufactured products include shoes and brooms, in addition to other articles made for the use of inmates. Few facts can be obtained on the volume of shoes manufactured, as the goods are sold to other departments of the Government. The Army and Navy Journal recently cited the sale of shoes to the War Department for $150,000, more than $18,000 in excess of the sum paid to a St. Louis manufacturer for the same number of pairs of shoes.

In the retail line the prisons operate laundries and dry cleaning plants, an ice plant, a bakery to take care of not only governmental agencies but civilian employes and as many of their friends as are wished to accommodate. The prices charged for laundry and dry cleaning are stated to be approximately half the regular commercial rates.

Recently a retail store was set up in each of the Federal penitentiaries at Fort Leavenworth. Each of the more than 6,000 prisoners in the two institutions is permitted to make purchases to the extent of $12 per month. All employes of the stores are on the Government pay roll and the prisoners are not allowed to make purchases from any other source.

Reversed by Gen. Hines.

In contrast attention has been directed to the operation of stores at the Soldiers Home in Leavenworth. Formerly a number of retail establishments were conducted at the home in the usual manner. When Gen. Hines took control of the Veterans' Bureau he decided to take the Government out of business insofar as he was able, with the result that the buildings in which the businesses were operated were leased on a competitive basis to private enterprise. The Government now receives considerable revenue from this source and the business is passed back to tax-paying individuals.

Meanwhile, trade associations over the Nation are assembling further facts and exhibits in an effort to convince Congress that after the Government pays its employes it has no further obligation to procure merchandise for the employes' private needs at a price with which business at large can not compete.

(Further competition of Federal agencies with tax-paying retailers will be told in tomorrow's Post.)

5 Soldiers Killed By Italian Blast

Six Badly Wounded and One Stricken Dumb During Celebration.

Naples, Italy, June 5 (A.P.).—While artillerymen were firing a 21-gun salute today in honor of the anniversary of the proclamation of the Italian constitution, five soldiers were killed, six were badly wounded and one was stricken dumb.

The casualties were caused by an explosion in a pile of ammunition on San Vincenzo dock at the naval base, where the artillery pieces were mounted. Exactly what caused the explosion was not established. Several artillerymen were hurled into small boats alongside the wharf and others were flung as far as 50 feet along the wharf itself.

Soldiers and sailors rushed to the scene immediately after the blast to recover the bodies of the dead and to get the injured off to hospitals. The twelfth man of the group assigned to the salute guns was unable to tell what happened. Shell shock rendered him dumb.

Flood Death Toll In Oklahoma Is 7

City Cares for 3,300 Refugees in Vacant Buildings; Waters Receding.

Oklahoma City, June 5 (A.P.).—The known death toll in the disastrous flood which inundated hundreds of lowland Oklahoma City homes Friday, reached seven today with the finding of the body of T. W. Tarkington. Search continued for Tarkington's 14-year-old son, the only person still on the missing list.

The city was caring for upward of 3,300 refugees. Most of the 38 registered homeless families were housed in vacant buildings in the business section. Waters of the North Canadian River and Pightning Creek which traverse the city oil field area, were fast receding to the normal stage.

Special policemen continued their vigilance to prevent the looting of abandoned homes. Twenty-three persons injured in the rainstorm and flood remained in hospitals. Authorities expected to establish a temporary haven for the homeless in the old municipal airport.

Debt Cancellation Urged by Britons

Churchmen Send Appeal to American Council in Form of Manifesto.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Dean Luther A. Weigle, chairman of the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, announced today that an appeal for the cancellation of war debts and reparations has been forwarded to the council by 50 prominent English churchmen.

The appeal, he said, is in the form of a manifesto, entitled "An appeal for the remission of reparation payments and international war debts," and the signers acted under the auspices of the British Council of Christian Ministers.

The English church leaders addressed their appeal "To all who owe allegiance to Christ in their own country and, so far as words can reach them, in other countries also."

Charles Town Man, 27, Dies in Fall From Train

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 5.—Gerard D. Moore, 27, son of the late former county clerk, Gerard D. Moore, was killed early today in falling from a Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train at Hinton. He was on his way to meet his mother in Baltimore.

Interment will take place here probably Tuesday. Mr. Moore held a position with General Motors for several years with headquarters at Charleston.

Veteran's Body in Winchester.

Winchester, Va., June 5 (A.P.).—The body of Charles E. Hummer, 39-year-old World War veteran, who died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, was brought here today for burial tomorrow.

HOHENZOLLERN RULE SEEN IN 18 MONTHS

Lord Rothermere, Publisher, of London, Says Germans to Welcome Return.

London (Monday), June 6 (A.P.).—Lord Rothermere, British publisher, said in the Daily Mail today that there is no safer political prophecy than that the Hohenzollerns again would occupy the throne of Germany within eighteen months.

His statement was telephoned to the Mail, one of his newspapers, from Berlin, where the publisher was visiting.

The prediction was based on Lord Rothermere's investigations on repeated visits to Germany in the past three years and during his present stay, he said.

He expressed belief that the monarchy would be peacefully restored and heartily welcomed by the German people. He said it would galvanize the nation's life and stimulate economic recovery, while he saw no reason why it might complicate relations between France and Germany.

Berlin, June 5 (A.P.).—A government spokesman today issued a flat denial of a report sponsored by influential Nationalists that President von Hindenburg would retire in the fall to make way for a regency under former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm.

"You can not put it strongly enough," the spokesman said. "The president is not thinking of resigning. I admit that many who welcome the new cabinet cherish this hope, but in behalf of President von Hindenburg and the government I assure you there is no thought of any such plan."

The report that the aged field marshal would retire, which swept through Germany yesterday and was featured in many newspapers, apparently had no effect on the president himself. He carried on as usual. This afternoon he kept an engagement to attend the Hoppegarten horse races.

Third Aged Victim Of Gangsters Dies

"Mother" Strohner, 81, Was Robbed of $5 and Beaten.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The death of Mrs. Barbara Strohner, 81, the third aged woman in one neighborhood to be beaten fatally by thugs demanding money, aroused police to redoubled efforts today to find the slayers.

"Mother" Strohner, as she was known, died last night in a local hospital of a compound fracture of the jaw and cerebral hemorrhage brought on by shock. The attack occurred the night of May 21, when the aged woman, who lived alone, was preparing for bed. Two men broke in and demanded money.

One held her while the other beat her violently, she told the police, and then fled after taking $5. Unable to summon aid, she lay suffering all night. She was able to give a coherent account of the attack and a description of her assailants. Police said they are convinced all three assaults were committed by the same gang. The other two women, attacked within recent weeks, also were beaten after robbers demanded money.

16 Shenandoah Valley Cadets Get Diplomas

Winchester, Va., June 5 (A.P.).—Graduating certificates were presented to sixteen cadets at Shenandoah Valley Academy yesterday by Col. B. M. Rossel, superintendent.

The Rev. Robert B. Nelson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, delivered the commencement address. A dance that lasted until midnight brought the exercises to an end.

Both Parties Claim Victory in Panama

Candidates Praise Voters' Deportment; Returns Not Yet Ready.

Panama City, June 5 (A.P.).—Both the doctrinary liberals of Harmodio Arias and the renovation liberals of Francisco Arias Paredes claimed a victory tonight in Panama's national election, although definite returns were not yet available. The leaders of the two parties were rival presidential candidates.

Senor Arias said: "Judging from the results in Panama City, I am absolutely sure of victory."

Senor Arias Paredes said: "I believe we won, but it is impossible to verify, owing to the lack of complete returns."

Both candidates praised the deportment of the voters and expressed pleasure at the lack of disturbances anywhere in the country. Senor Arias Paredes congratulating Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, the retiring president, for taking measures to prevent disorders.

Clew to 2 Missing Fliers Is Reported

Fox Harbor Advices Tell of Plane Being Heard Near There.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, June 5 (A.P.).—A wireless message from Battle Harbor today offered what appeared to be the first definite clew to the whereabouts of Arthur Sullivan and Dr. K. Karl A. Kuehnert, Grenfell mission fliers, missing since last Monday.

The message said that residents of Fox Harbor, 6 miles distant, reported hearing the engine of an airplane Monday night, again at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning and each day after that until Friday. They believed that the plane with the two fliers might be down in Lake Hubbard, near there.

Charles Hubbard, former Harvard football captain, who, with two Boston pilots is aiding in the search for the missing men, dropped a note today while passing over Battle Harbor, directing that a supply of gasoline be sent to Marys Harbor. This was done.

No word was received today from H. D. Wardle, en route from Montreal in another plane to help look for Dr. Kuehnert and Sullivan. He was reported held up at Englee yesterday by bad weather.

Son's Birth May Keep $233,713 in Family

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—A son born to the youthful Mrs. Alice Eno Hopkinson in London probably will keep her from losing a $233,713 trust fund established by the will of her great-uncle, Amos Eno, philanthropist.

The will stipulated she must remain in this country until she was 30—August 19, 1933—and then receive the fund principal.

In 1927 she was married to Henry L. D'Aubigne Hopkinson, secretary to the British Embassy in Washington. Last summer he was transferred to Stockholm, and she went with him.

Now, her lawyer here say, the son's birth will prevent possible loss of the money to the family, the will provided if the trust ended before she was 30 the fund would go to her children.

GANGSTERS QUIZZED IN LINDBERGH HOAX

New York Starts Round-Up of Leaders; Two Beer Barons Detained.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The Daily News says a roundup of every major gang leader in New York City has been ordered in a police effort to determine whether Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the victim of an underworld hoax when he paid a $50,000 ransom for the return of his child, later found dead.

The brief detention today of Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer, described by police as the Bronx beer baron, was attributed by the News as having been a part of the round-up.

The paper ascribes the same police motive to the recent arrest, and subsequent dismissal of Salvatore Spitale, one of the men appointed by Col. Lindbergh to act as go-betweens in an effort to recvoer his kidnaped son.

The round-up was described as having been undertaken independently of the Bronx County and New Jersey investigations of the kidnaping and slaying.

Others marked by the newspaper for probable police questioning included Owney Madden and Morris Rosner.

Schultz was picked up along with his reputed bodyguard, Charles (Bo) Wrenberg, as they left a restaurant in the West Forties early today. Detectives said at the time they were interested in a racketeers' conference supposed to be taking place in the neighborhood.

Schultz and Wrenberg were released soon afterward, however, when investigation revealed no charges pending against either of them. Neither was armed, and a search of the expensive automobile they were about to enter when seized disclosed no weapons.

Police fingerprinted them and then said: "You are not wanted around Broadway." Schultz, the police said, readily promised to stay away.

FEAR FOR HAUSNER'S SAFETY IS GROWING

as to his landing somewhere on the European continent caused concern.

For a while today there was hope that his plane had passed over Ireland when word came from Cork that the noise of a powerful plane was heard over a hill south of that city in the Irish Free State at 12:45 p. m. (7:45 a. m., Eastern standard time).

It was noticed that the engine was much stronger than those in local use, the dispatch said, but the press association that carried the dispatch was inclined to doubt that the plane was Hausner's, regarding it impossible for Hausner to be flying over southern Ireland at that time.

Newark, N. J., June 5 (A.P.).—Stanislaus Felix Hausner, Polish-American flier who has not been reported since he took off for Warsaw Friday morning, planned to fly back across the Atlantic, his friends disclosed today for the first time.

Mrs. Martha Hausner, the flier's wife of a year, remained close to the telephone at the home of Father Paul Knappek. Although he was long overdue, she still waited hopefully for his safe arrival somewhere in Europe.

FESS SEES VICTORY ON HOOVER'S RECORD

Fault-Finding Is Abating and Public Sympathetic, Ohioan Asserts.

(Associated Press.)

Simeon D. Fess, who will be at the little end of the gavel that calls the Republican national convention to order next week in Chicago's broad cavern of political confab, apparently is confident the gathering will strike a harmonious note that will be a prelude to a paen of victory in November.

The mild mannered college professor who is chairman of the Republican national committee, scoffs at the suggestion that the convention will be a meeting of apprehensive leaders desperately seeking ways to stave off disaster at the polls.

"It will be a militant meeting proud of the Hoover leadership in the Nation's crisis and it will be followed by an aggressive triumphant campaign," Fess says.

Public Has Been in Dark.

"When the real facts get to the people we will win on President Hoover's administration. The public has been in the dark, but it is beginning to see what the President has been doing to guide the country safely through the storm.

"Recently there has been increasing indication that the general attitude of the people is friendly and sympathetic toward Mr. Hoover and that fault finding is abating."

Fess, with characteristic administration loyalty, resisted proposals that the party have some standard-bearer other than Hoover. Now he feels that developments, such as the President's handling of the budget-balancing situation in Congress, have vindicated his position.

Professor-Politician Confident.

The professor-politician from Yellow Springs, Ohio, has been attending Republican conventions since 1888. He predicts this year's conclave, despite the lack of a nomination fight, will be one of the greatest in the party's history. This is due, he says, to the eagerness of the public in a national emergency to hear a party's recital of its accomplishments and its program for the future.

Senator Fess plans to retire after the convention from the party chairmanship he has held since Claudius Huston resigned in August, 1930. Dry, Fess' leadership has been opposed by antiprohibitionists in the party who are working for a referendum plank in the platform. He is not up for reelection to the Senate in this crucial year. When his term expires in 1934, he will have served twelve years in the Senate and ten in the House.

His rise from log-cabin poverty to high political place is a typical success story of the old school. A prolonged fight for an education and advancement to the presidency of a college preceded a succession of political honors.

Child Correction Held Inadequate

Report States Handling of 200,000 Delinquent Cases Faulty.

(Associated Press.)

Alleged failure to deal adequately with the 200,000 delinquent children who come annually before American courts was described as a contributor to adult crime in a report made public yesterday by the White House conference on child health and protection.

"Our conviction that this unhealthy condition represents but a fraction of the total amount of maladjustment, together with the evidence of a spirit of lawlessness running throughout our entire population, carries the problem even deeper," said the report.

Among factors leading to "inadequate" treatment of child delinquency cases, the report listed inadequate school procedures for handling truancy and behavior problems, unnecessary arrests, detention in police stations and jails, juvenile courts presided over by poorly paid judges not well prepared for children's work, absence of psychiatric services, inadequate facilities for institutional care, lack of an effective parole system and of a community program to develop wholesome interests.

Remedies suggested by the report included "a more effective application of the church's teachings to the age in which we live."

ROOSEVELT MEN BACK WALSH AS PERMANENT CHAIRMAN

tion of its officers because of rapidly mounting delegate strength in a claimed majority of the States to be represented.

The governor's camp also has turned a deaf ear outwardly to a suggestion that opposition to Barkley might arise from his tariff views.

Farley said several days ago that a mass meeting of Roosevelt men would be held at Chicago prior to the convention to determine upon procedure.

The Times says supporters of Smith are expected to stick to Shouse and that the 1928 Democratic nominee has called a conference of his leading followers for a luncheon meeting tomorrow. Delegates from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania favoring Smith will meet him at his office and discuss concerted action at the convention.

Among those expected are Gov. Ely of Massachusetts; Howard McGrath, of Rhode Island; Thomas J. Spellacy, of Connecticut; Sedgwick Kistler, of Pennsylvania, and Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City.

(Associated Press.)

Decision yesterday by the Roosevelt forces in the Democratic party to seek substitution of Senator Walsh, of Montana, for Jouett Shouse as permanent chairman of the national convention make certain a showdown fight between the Roosevelt and Smith factions before the convention.

Democratic leaders in Washington accepted the decision as foreshadowing a sharp and bitter contest.

Shouse, who is executive chairman of the national committee, already has been commended to the convention as permanent chairman by the committee on arrangements, of which he is chairman.

To displace him with Senator Walsh, an advocate of Gov. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, will require considerable strategy as well as fightnig.

The sudden decision of the friends of Gov. Roosevelt to force the issue with the allies of Alfred E. Smith came after reports had circulated that Shouse was intending to break precedent and deliver an address to the convention as permanent chairman.

The speaking part of the national convention is usually left to the keynoter, the temporary chairman. Friends of Roosevelt won the selection of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, for this post, but agreed that Shouse should be the permanent chairman.

Regarded as Compromise.

That arrangement, fixed a month ago by the arrangements committee, was regarded as a compromise between the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt forces. Shouse, by his campaign for uninstructed delegates to the convention, has always been identified by the Roosevelt people as opposed to their cause.

Obviously, they are wary now of a move by him as presiding officer of the convention against their candidate.

Senator Walsh has been a leader in the movement for the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt. He presided over the 1924 marathon convention of the Democrats.

"Mystery Special" Rail Excursion Is Big Success

It was a great day for those who set out aboard the Southern Railway "Mystery Special" early yesterday, bound for an unknown destination that for three hours aroused an air of suspense among the more than 500 persons, who watched the passing landscape in an effort to determine where they were, where they were going and just what they would find when they arrived.

Not a passenger knew where the train was headed for when it drew out of Union Station shortly after 9 o'clock. They saw the engineer receive his sealed orders, which he opened only after passing through Alexandria, Va.

Wild speculations and guesses traveled throughout the crowded coaches. Some said the mysterious destination was only a short distance from Washington and others guessed it was as far away as Atlanta, Ga.—even though they were due to return by 9 o'clock.

The secret was well kept, however, until small leaflets were passed out announcing that in a few minutes the "Mystery Special" would reach the end of its run—Fry's Springs, near Charlottesville, Va.

This was a pleasant surprise to all except one curious passenger. He set an alarm clock at 4 a. m. yesterday morning so as to be sure and reach Washington in time to board the mystery train. Loud and long he voiced his disgust when learning the excursion was returning him to the town he had left only a few hours before—Charlottesville, where he was born and raised.

As the train came to a stop just outside the town, a man stepped from one of the coaches dressed in oilskins and hip boots. He carried a long pole and as he stood dejectedly beside the tracks an official of the line approached and asked if he was enjoying himself.

"Sure," the man replied, "But your advertisements said to take bathing suits. I thought as long as we were going to the sea I would catch one of those tarpons I've heard so much about."

The tarpon was never caught and the man returned to the train following the day's outing with a companion he found in the crowd. His friend wore a polo suit—having heard there would be horseback riding.

An orchestra entertained the gay throng during the day and an old-fashioned Southern barbecue was served to top off the program.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

The Men Defend Themselves.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Could a man hop on the band wagon and say a word for his sex? Nan-C claims that every one of ten different escorts proved offensive on the way home. Then take it from an experienced escort, either the girl associates with the very worst class or she acted in such a way during the evening as to imply that she expected the car to be parked. It sure makes a man rave to read a wholesale denunciation of an entire sex by a girl like Nan-C. There is no well-mannered young woman who can tell truthfully such a tale of depravity on the part of my sex. Men take these girls as they find them. I know the Nan-C brand. They want to go. They want dates. And they believe the way to insure them is to make the man think that he can park the car and his conscience. The result is that they have a very astonished escort on their hands when they suddenly turn dignified.

If the young women will stop wisecracking, puffing smoke rings, drinking gin and telling risque stories, there will be fewer surprises on the way home. Any man can recognize a decent girl, and no normal man will make it necessary for her to "put up a fight" going home, but no man considers a girl decent or above board who leads him on all evening and then gets indignant when he acts accordingly. Let me close with one more crack. Any girl who goes out with even five men and is insulted by all five is the one to blame. There is something radically wrong with her conduct. Five men out of five are not thugs—unless, indeed, the lady specializes in that brand.

A DECENT ESCORT.

Dear Frances McDonald: I wonder if I happen to be one of the men mentioned by Nan-C. I took a girl named Nan to a dance Valentine's eve. She is not popular, but goes with my pal's girl, who is popular and then some. I like the other girl and joined the group because of that fact, when I was asked to take Miss Nan. Her girl friend is a straight, clean, dashing girl full of wholesome pep and not a petter. All evening long at the dance Nan angled for another date. I played dead. I had not asked for the dance date—it was wished on me—and I was not letting myself in for any more. She spoke of having the four to the house. I said I was pretty well dated, &c., and so it went. Then she started the vamp act—which I despise as an insult to a man's intelligence. However, as she was a terrible dancer I decided that it would be the less of two evils to cut the dance for a while when she suggested it. Out in the car she promptly placed her head on my shoulder, and feeling a fool I did what seemed to be expected of me. I headed the car for a spot where my friends would not witness the spectacle. She immediately hit the ceiling—no doubt expecting a repetition of some experience she had previously had with some one else I do not know. Anyway I returned her to the hall and drove home. No doubt she thinks I left her because I was disappointed.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THERE is apparently a flareback from N. B. C. listeners in the removal of Ludwig Laurier, a fine musician of the old school, as director of the Slumber Hour. A year ago the slumber music was cut to fifteen minutes and a jazz band was substituted for the other quarter hour. The program director was surprised at the flood of protest by mail and telephone. A vocalist was added and that irritated the audience. They wanted unadulterated slumber music. It was believed that the late audience would prefer so-called vaudeville or dance tunes to slumber melodies.

But those who thought so quickly admitted their error when they read the mail. Laurier, a veteran musician, was called back to the microphone for a half-hour program, and the invisible audience was happy again.

"Now the slumber concert has been changed again. Orrin Dunlap, jr., New York radio critic, comments: "Laurier no longer leads his ensemble to the microphone as he did night after night. Blossom Seeley and Benny Fields, recruited from vaudeville, have been summoned to send the listeners off into dreamland happily. When they complete their program from 11 to 11:15 o'clock a concert orchestra directed by Cesare Sodero is assembled in another studio to play while the cradles of radioland are rocked until the clock strikes midnight.

"The broadcasters are wondering if the same large audience is listening. They wonder if Laurier's fine music is missed when the march to dreamland begins.

"The program department, having made the move, reports it will adhere to the new policy despite complaints from the audience. In regard to listeners' letters the program director has adopted the attitude of the queen in Hamlet—"The lady doth protest too much, methinks"—so mail is likely to be of no avail."

"LITTLE Journeys to the Homes of Great Services" will be the subject of a new series of talks which will be given by Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest (WRC, 4:45 p. m. today). "Gividends" have been for the purpose of showing the dividends which come in terms of human service from the gifts made to the Community Chest and extended to its 65 member organizations. The story of a visit to Friendship House, social settlement, at 323 Virginia avenue southeast, will be presented in this afternoon's talk.

Vinton Haworth, who takes the part of Jack Arnold in "Myrt and Marge," and Raymond Hedge, who plays the part of Clarence Tiffingtuffer in the same program, are visiting Mr. Haworth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Haworth, at 4312 Fourteenth street northwest. They are making an extended tour of the Eastern, Southern and Western States before going back on the air August 29. Mr. Haworth is an old Central High School boy.

A serial presentation of Brahms' Third Symphony has been arranged by Howard Barlow's Symphony Orchestra for this week. The first movement will be heard tonight (WABC, 9:30 o'clock), the second movement, Tuesday, and the third installment on Wednesday.

THE initial program of a new series of dramatizations of Mary Roberts Rinehart's famous "Tish" stories will be heard at 9:45 p. m. over WJZ. The series is scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the same hour during the summer months.

The Trenton State Teachers Choir, consisting of 60 mixed voices, will present a special program of church music, folk songs and spirituals (WRC, 9:30 o'clock tonight). The choir, directed by Mabel E. Bray, is made up of students from the small towns and rural communities of New Jersey, and is regarded as a fine example of the greatly increased interest in choral music.

With the Tarwater Sisters at their home in Tennessee learning new mountain songs to bring to Washington radio listeners next fall, their place on the D. C. Dental Society programs will be taken by Miss Mathilde M. Kolb, contralto soloist of the Mount Vernon M. E. Church South. Miss Kolb will sing over WRC tonight at 7 o'clock, and Thursday at 6:30.

THE Senate's economy program will be discussed and explained by Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, chairman of the powerful Senate appropriations committee, during the National Radio Forum program broadcast over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight. The economy program for the Federal Government, as worked out by the Senate appropriations committee, is an essential part of the administration's plan for a balanced budget.

Richard Crooks will make the first of a series of appearances on the Firestone program at 7:30 o'clock tonight through WRC. The tenor will replace Lawrence Tibbett, who is sailing for a vacation in Europe.

The eighth annual national spelling bee will be broadcast over WMAL from the new National Museum here at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Approximately 20 spellers will compete.

Prior to the famous Rose Festival Week in Portland, the Parade of the States will pay tribute to Oregon during the program over WRC at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

When Ben Bernie comes on the air tomorrow night (WMAL, 8 o'clock) he will be playing his fifty-second program on the current series.

In celebration of the anniversary, he will feature a group of his most popular selections from the year just passed. The program will originate in Baltimore, where Bernie is playing a vaudeville engagement.

ARTHUR M. HYDE, Secretary of Agriculture, will speak under the auspices of the Republican National Committee over WRC tomorrow night. The musical portion of the Lucky Strike Dance Hour will be shared by Anson Weeks and his orchestra playing from San Francisco, and Russ Columbo and his orchestra.

Gus Van, radio star, will be interviewed by Bob Taplinger during the "Meet the Artist" broadcast tomorrow (WMAL, 4:15 p. m.).

Alice Hutchins Drake, whose radio talks, "Famous Paintings of Many Lands," are broadcast each Wednesday from WRC, is the author of a pamphlet on sightseeing in the Library of Congress. This is believed to be the first handbook to give a detailed explanation of the Library's mural paintings.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Color subtility is employed in this summer dinner dress with its black skirt, white georgette blouse and yellow and blue girdle and neck applique. (A Dah-ray design.)

NEW YORK, June 5.—"Poisonally"—I think it's pretty swell!

'Bout the colors we wear this summer, I mean.

'Cause colors do things to people—and for 'em. Why, you can just color yourself into the psy-pshic—py—well, I can't spell it! Ennyhow—you can positively color yourself into the whatever-it-is and however-its-spelled ward of any hospital, you can.

On the same count, you can color yourself out of it, too. You can wear cheerful colors, colors that bring you out, colors that vibrate in your own personality, colors that react on the moods of those who see you—'n' colors that put you back into the mood that all lovely ladies should be and stay in—the calm, waiting, believing and lovely one.

You can't name a color that won't do this summer! Colors are just here—that's all. Some colors are more popular than others, of course—perhaps because they are more universally becoming. Other colors are rare, individual—and nevertheless stylish. Blue, for instance, is the most popular color, because it is so becoming in all its various shadeds and tints. Blondes, demi-blondes, brunettes, all wear blue in some shade or other, because the infusion of red into the blue gives it the warmth necessary for brunette—while in its colder and more celestial shades, it is always becoming to blondes.

Reds, with a touch of vermillion—especially for evening wear, are good and perhaps a bit more individual than the blues. And yellow—tinged and warmed with red.

Well, as I said in the first place—poisonally, I think 'tis pretty swell!

* * * *

Did you ever hear of a truly aristocratic apron? Well, we have one—I mean this week's leaflet tells you how to make one—'n' believe me, it is aristocratic! Fact is, every single one of our very classy friends has 'em—and can hardly wait to get home from the theater with a crowd of guests, just so-es she can put on her wee, funny, yet wholly practical apron, and cook something or other.

'Tis made, sh-h-h-h-h-h, out of two bandana handkerchiefs! And you know that these cost 5 or 10 cents apiece—don't you? And takes about ten minutes to make—and the way it looks—well-l-l-l-l-l-l-l, better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about it, don't you think?

* * * *

It's just lovely! Yes, what you can do with clever fingers, and what you can do with an eye for color Take the design I made for you today—that's any white and black outfit you might have, if you don't want to make a new one—just a black skirt and a white blouse. But what then? Why, a yellow and blue twisted and cotton filled satin girdle and a yellow affair made the same way, twisted around the neck—to form a sort of collar. Then in the front of the blouse, blue flowers, appliqued in such a way flat to the blouse that they gather said blouse to the gathered smartness that is so much the mode. And have you a lovely outfit? Yes!

Au revoir!

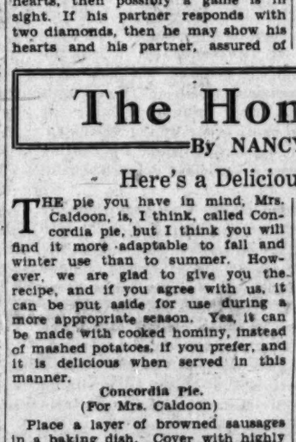
A QUADRUPLE DISASTER.

THE City of Winnipeg, Manitoba, is a center of Bridge in the great Canadian Northwest. Team-of-four play there has excited such great interest that a large number of matches between teams have been arranged, and recently, under the auspices of a leading newspaper, a team-of-eight game was played at Duplicate. One team-of-eight, looked upon by their opponents as almost certain winners, lost the championship of the city because, in every instance, the members of this team reached the wrong eventual declaration on the hand shown below.

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The Bidding:

At Table No. 1:

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1♠	2♡	Pass	Pass
3◇	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

At Table No. 2:

			Pass
1♠	2♡	Pass	Pass
3◇	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

At the two other tables:

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1♠	2♡	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

When played at two hearts doubled, at one table East and West were defeated 5 tricks for a penalty of 1,800 points, while at the other table, where this contract was reached, the penalty was 1,400 points. The North players who failed to double West's defensive Overcall of two hearts thought the result a fortunate one. It is remarkable that West could have averted all his troubles on this hand had he followed the principles of correct bidding. His proper course is not an Overcall, but a double. If happily he finds his partner with strength in hearts, then possibly a game is in sight. If his partner responds with two diamonds, then he may show his hearts and his partner, assured of honor strength sufficient for a Take-out Double, will then disclose his second five-card suit, namely, clubs, and the penalty will be very slight.

Judging the situation from the viewpoint of the North player alone, however, a Double of two hearts is his correct course. If this is the best final declaration, well and good. If South, with the knowledge that North feels strong enough to double a vulnerable opponent's two heart Overcall, decides to continue the bidding, that also would be a satisfactory result. North should bid his hand as he sees it in the light of East's pass, South's opening bid and West's vulnerable Overcall. Apparently, the North and South hands do not afford anything resembling a perfect fit. How serious this misfit may be can easily be discovered without danger by the Double. If South's hand suggests that the bidding should proceed further, then North with potential stoppers in hearts and two honor-tricks outside, must bow to his partner's judgment, but his Penalty Double of West's vulnerable Overcall will give to the South player an opportunity to make a safe, sound and correct decision.

It is, of course, apparent, when seeing all four hands, that East could find a safe rescue in a bid of three clubs, but it is extremely doubtful whether many players would choose the club holding for the rescue or would be content to play at three clubs doubled, without attempting to find later whether there was a fit in diamonds.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Whenever a hand offers a choice between attempting to make game at your own bid and inflicting a penalty loss on your opponents equivalent to it, the penalty should be preferred.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

The Importance of Personal Habits.

ALL of you read in your early school days "As the twig is inclined the tree is bent," and the saying particularly applies to all health and beauty habits. If you were not taught oral hygiene when you were a mere tot, you must learn it now, and habits are harder to form when one grows older. Things drilled into you in childhood become automatic, their performance requires no mental effort.

The same rule applies to regular bathing, which keeps the millions of body pores functioning properly and throwing out impurities, thereby permitting health and beauty to flourish and bloom.

The same is true of care of the hair. If you were taught scalp cleanliness, brush cleanliness, scalp massage, and brushing, when you were a child, it is now a part of your daily routine. And you are amply repaid by your possession of good teeth and lustrous hair, two wonderful assets in life.

All mothers are supposed to be loving. Some mothers, however, are wiser than others and plan healthgiving habits for their children from infancy. And verily her children should rise up and call her blessed. Other mothers are just as loving and devoted, but were so burdened with cares and limited finances that they simply couldn't or didn't give sufficient care to the habits their children formed. A third class of mothers were—merely careless, thoughtless, or negligent. It seems to me that theirs should be the great, great penalty. A pity that their children must suffer through life from such cause.

However, even the middle-aged woman still has a chance to correct her habits. No one with a proper knowledge of health, diet, exercise—of the principles of life—should have bad teeth, pimples and acne. Or too shiny noses. If you are afflicted with any of them ask yourself—why? Ask others—why? And then take steps to remedy the condition.

Firmly Fixed Fastidiousness.

It pays to cultivate fastidiousness. For as one grows older, there is naturally a slight letdown and carelessness and it is wise to have fastidiousness so firmly fixed as a habit that it will be a safeguard against letting down too much. A dainty, well-groomed woman is a pleasing sight at all times. A dainty, attractive older woman is delightful and distinctive. Why be included in the frumpy class? Make the resolution right now (if you have been at all careless) to start the change at once—and remember that it can be done! How charming to know, always, that your skin is clean and fine, free from acne, pimples or pronounced oiliness; your hair always properly dressed, your clothes aans spots or dust; shoes and hats well brushed; gloves and handkerchiefs always fresh; perfumes daintily scented, make-up just right, every detail as it should be.

Young mothers, think this over and by your wisdom and foresight teach your children the personal habits which will prevent their being handicapped in life.

To those of you who are striving for perfectly groomed loveliness, my Beauty Schedule will help you to form the Beauty Habit. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for it.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

Here's a Delicious Dinner Menu!

THE pie you have in mind, Mrs. Caldoon, is, I think, called Concordia pie, but I think you will find it more adaptable to fall and winter use than to summer. However, we are glad to give you the recipe, and if you agree with us, it can be put aside for use during a more appropriate season. Yes, it can be made with cooked hominy, instead of mashed potatoes, if you prefer, and it is delicious when served in this manner.

Concordia Pie.
(For Mrs. Caldoon)

Place a layer of browned sausages in a baking dish. Cover with highly seasoned mashed potatoes, to which has been added cooked chopped green pepper, or cooked hominy, if preferred. Arrange browned sausages on top. Place in oven until thoroughly heated and serve piping hot with apple sauce.

We hope you will like the recipe, Mrs. Caldoon, and also that many of our reader friends will find it to be one which they will want to tuck away in their recipe files.

And now, our dinner for tomorrow, which is truly a summer weather repast.

TUESDAY'S DINNER.
Chicken and Egg Cutlets
Savory Rice
Cucumbers and Onions
Tea Biscuits
Dandelion Salad
Strawberries and Cream
Iced Tea

Chicken and Egg Cutlets.

Mince leftover cooked chicken and to each cupful add two chopped hard-cooked eggs. Make a thick sauce of one cupful of milk and three tablespoonfuls of flour. Flavor the sauce with a few drops of onion juice, a bit of red pepper and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Add the egg and chicken mixture and shape into balls or chop-shaped cutlets. Roll in egg and cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat until well browned. Serve on a hot platter garnished with parsley. Tomato sauce may be poured over the cutlets just before serving, if desired.

Savory Rice.

1 cupful rice
4 slices bacon
Salt and pepper to taste
1 onion
1 green pepper
½ cupful tomato sauce

Boil a cupful of rice in salted water for 25 minutes. Chop the bacon, green pepper and onion and cook in pan until brown. Drain rice and add to mixture together with tomato sauce and seasoning. Bake in casserole for 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Cucumbers and Onions.

6 cucumbers
3 small onions
1 cupful thin cream sauce
1 teaspoonful lemon juice
Yolks of two eggs

Peel and quarter the cucumbers lengthwise. Put them in a saucepan with the onions. Cover with water and boil for half an hour. Drain and add the lemon juice and yolks of eggs, well beaten, to the cream sauce. Cook for five minutes. Arrange the cucumbers on toast and pour the sauce over them.

Tea Biscuits.

Sift three cupfuls of flour with 1½ tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add six level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and mix well. Add a cupful of milk and a cupful of whipped cream (measured after whipping), mixing lightly. Toss on a floured board, cut with a small cutter and bake for about twenty minutes in a hot oven. Split and butter while very hot.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: My doctor has told me to avoid acid-forming foods and I wondered if you could help me plan the right kind of menus. He says no meat, breads or sweets, but vegetables alone never satisfy my appetite. What else can I have?

PERPLEXED.

There are a great many other foods you may have, my friend, as you will see in just a moment. But first of all, suppose we list the various foods according to their nature where the diet and acidosis are concerned. We have, first of all, the neutral foods or those which contain none of the acid-forming elements. These are chiefly, butter, cream, tapioca, sugar and game. Then we have the acid-forming foods under which heading come meats, fish, breads, cereals and eggs. And then the base-forming or nonacid foods which, if taken in adequate amounts, tend to neutralize the acidity caused by acid foods in the diet. These foods include fruits, vegetables, nuts, dried beans and peas and milk.

The practice of moderation in eating both base-forming and acid foods is to be encouraged. Of course, if your physician has ordered you to avoid all acid foods for the time being, I suggest that you follow his advice. I am sure that in a little while, you will be again permitted the use of meats, fish, &c., provided you are also careful to include generous quantities of fruits and vegetables as well.

We have prepared a complete list of acid and alkaline foods, arranged according to their degree of acidity and alkalinity, together with a day's sample menus which we should like very much to send you. I am sure it will help you, as it has so many of our readers. The type of acidosis with which you are troubled is, unfortunately, very common. It is responsible for a great deal of present-day ill health, but a little intelligent thought given to the proper diet coupled with sane and moderate living, will do a very great deal to overcome the condition.

Let us hear from you soon, all we need is a stamped, self-addressed envelope in which to send the list and menus to you, and best wishes for a speedy return to health.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TO EASE ITCHING.

BROWSING through the medical journals, the writer ran across a series of recipes and methods proposed for various skin disorders. It is true that those given were, in most cases, rather simple and old-fashioned, and there is no scientific explanation of their efficacy. That is offset by their proved fields of usefulness. It is also true that the articles dealt with symptoms rather than with diseases. That is offset by the fact that the sufferer is interested in his symptom and not in much else.

In the last few years so much has been written about the skin troubles that are due to ringworm, yeasts and molds that grow on the skin, and about eczemas due to dyes and chemicals, that the people are apt to overlook some of the old-time skin troubles and the remedies used against them.

When a man complains of itching, or pruritus, he is apt to be told that he is talking about a symptom and that he should do his best to disregard the discomfort and spend his time looking for the cause. The advice is good if one can follow it. Itching thrives on attention. The more you scratch the more you itch. The more you think about it the worse you want to scratch. The other half is also right. It is wise to search for the cause. However, there are a few old-time remedies that may help us to forget in order that we may better search.

The sovereign soothing agent for itching is carbolic acid. It almost ranks with morphine, the general soother, and with cocaine, the soother of mucous membranes. Carbolic acid, used to soothe itching skin, is diluted with water, glycerin or some salve so as to make a 1 to 2 per cent solution. The number of carbolic acid combinations and recipes is large. It is well to remember that carbolic acid is a poison; that it is excreted by the kidneys, and that it may cause a form of acute Bright's disease. It should not be overused. If the skin is much scratched up the amount of absorption is increased.

Other remedies that are of service in pruritus are camphor and menthol. Camphor is used as camphor water, or the spirits. It is also used as crystal. The proper strength of a solution of camphor is 1 to 3 per cent. Menthol is used as a 1 to 10 per cent solution. Very hot water is reputed to be of service in allaying this sympton. It is of little practical value.

For all of those eruptions that are caused by skin parasites of the yeast, mold, and small insect group, sulphur, in some form, is the old-time standby. Most of the reputation for curing blood disorders enjoyed by certain springs is due to the sulphur they contain and the power of sulphur preparations to kill skin parasites. Some of these disorders merely discolor the skin, but some of them cause itching and others produce eruptions.

A simple home remedy of the sulphur group is a solution of hyposulphite of soda, one dram to one ounce of water. Hyposulphite is in wide use as a saline cathartic. A preparation commonly used on the skin is a saturated solution in water.

About the itchiest of all troubles is urticaria, or nettle-rash. One physician treats that by drawing one to three teaspoons of the patient's blood and injecting it deep into his muscles. He makes four injections at weekly intervals. Why it should help, I do not know. But who knows?

FATTENING FOODS.

F. D. writes:

1. Which is more fattening, sweet-potatoes or peeled white potatoes?

2. What is a safe amount of coffee to drink?

3. Is a certain amount of exercise necessary?

4. Why do some people eat less and put on weight, while others that eat more remain thin?

REPLY.

1. About the same.

2. Studies have shown that the average man can handle about two medium cups of average strength coffee daily.

3. Yes.

4. The amount of work done is the principal factor. People who handle live stock say type of body build is a factor. Habits of worry and nervousness on the one hand or calm on the other are factors. Regularity and sleep are of importance. So are the ductless glands. Finally, testimony as to how much one eats is notoriously inaccurate.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF June 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:40 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:33 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

June 6 is indicated to be a propitious day, astrologically, for handling weighty matters both in and outside the home. Hands and brains both will be in good working form, and it would be a good time to finish up "left over" jobs. Cupid appears to be very busy upsetting middle-aged people.

The child born on this June 6 will possess average ability. Many of its opportunities through life will be lost through irresolution. It should qualify for some scientific or professional career, in which intellect is more important than practical business ability. Friendship and hospitality are marked features in its make-up.

Born on June 6, you are planted solidly on both feet, and know and go after the things in life which you believe necessary for your comfort and pleasure. The ginger-bread, supercilious things do not appeal to you, and you, perhaps, belong to a less jazz-like and more dignified age. You have a frank and outspoken manner, and are sometimes candid to the danger point. You show your hand too easily and too often for your faults to remain hidden to the world.

You have a studious, busy mind, and seem unable to mentally relax during your waking hours. Your interests are universal, and you will always be fond of asking questions about things in which you are in the dark. You have considerable self-confidence and are inclined to exaggerate either your own importance or ability. You would never be accused of trying to "hide your light under a bushel," and if your faults are naturally self-evident, you see to it that your virtues do not remain hidden. Jealousy and false pride are two weaknesses against which you should fight.

You are fitted for positions of responsibility and leadership. As a servant, you would be both disobedient and discontended. You attract and win the friendship and love of worthwhile, intellectual people.

Successful people born on June 6.

Nathan Hale, Revolutionary soldier and spy.

Catherine A. Warfield, poet and author.

Henry Mosler, artist.

Bruno Oscar Klein, composer and pianist.

John Davey, tree surgeon.

Thomas L. Bradford, physician and author.

BARGAIN TIME.

Twenty leading banks of New York have organized a corporation for investment in bonds and other securities that are now selling far below any reasonable estimate of their intrinsic value. The movement is closely identified with the work of New York's reconstruction committee in putting idle capital to profitable use. When the depression has passed into history this organized assault upon the forces of deflation will probably be recognized as an important factor in the upturn.

The purpose of this pool is not to save the securities markets from collapse or to create artificial prices. Its objective is to make profits for its investors through purchase of securities at the unprecedented prices now prevailing. There is no thought of altruism in the movement. It is a business proposition. The heads of great banking institutions are apparently convinced that deflation has gone about as far as it can go. Consequently, they propose to step in and take advantage of the bargains in the securities markets.

No element of speculation enters into this undertaking. Securities are to be purchased and held for "the long pull" as sound investments. If this were merely a gesture to revive confidence, the public might be skeptical. But the new corporation is a result of confidence that has already found lodgment in the largest financial institutions of the United States. Undoubtedly the faith of Wall street will be contagious.

A complete chain of circumstances is now closing in on the depression. Last fall the financial structure was threatened by an orgy of bank failures and hoarding. Constructive legislation sponsored by President Hoover put a stop to the destruction of unliquid assets. The banking structure was revitalized and became a dam against which a new reserve of capital could be accumulated. The Federal Reserve Banks then proceeded to fill this reservoir with liquid credit, but that credit did not flow freely out into the channels of business and industry, because in the meantime Congress threatened foolish legislation and business men were afraid to move. Now that Federal finance seems to be stabilized, confidence appears in the financial and business world.

At this point the influence of the new investment corporation becomes most significant. Powerful groups are returning to the market to obtain bargains, which will materialize only with the resumption of industrial activity. The action taken by Wall street suggests that this is the proper time to buy necessaries. They will never be cheaper. Price trends are upward, not only in securities, but in all goods.

A sustained wave of buying—confined to necessities and sound investments—would loosen up the economic structure at every point and soon put the depression to rout. If the public will follow the same logic that has induced Wall street to buy safe bonds, and if Congress refrains from disrupting this new spurt of confidence, a constructive upturn is the only logical outcome of the present situation.

AIRSHIPS AS MAIL CARRIERS.

The Crosser bill, dealing with merchant airships, is deserving of immediate attention in Congress, as it paves the way for a new industry. It provides for the legalization of international airship operation by the United States upon a commercial basis, and places commercial builders in a position to compete against foreign mail carriers by granting them the same right to bid for the carrying of mail as is now granted to surface ships.

Without such legislation commercial development of airships operating beyond the borders of the country will be impossible. Airships have a distinct field of their own in over-water transportation, especially over the Atlantic and the Pacific and to the countries to the southward, because they are about three times faster than the average surface ships. This would reduce the time for mail across the Atlantic to between two and two and one-half days. In addition to carrying mail they would be available for the carrying of a limited number of passengers.

No commercial companies in the United States will venture on the building of a fleet of mail and passenger carrying dirigibles today, for the reason that airships have not as yet legal status as common carriers, nor are they eligible to bid for mail. This bill makes it possible for American citizens to enter this new field of transportation before a dominant position has been attained by any other country.

The bill specifically excludes any payment for mail contracts for three years. It does, however, furnish the assurance to business men that the building of airships, with its attendant employment of men, is a reasonable business venture.

By all means Congress should authorize the Postoffice Department to enter into mail contracts with the builders, owners, or operators of American-built, American-owned and American-operated airships.

NOSTRUM VS. NOSTRUM.

Senator Glass has safely buried the Goldsborough price-fixing bill that the House passed with such enthusiasm, but in doing so he has brought forth a measure of his own which is not much less objectionable. The banking and currency committee swallowed Senator Glass' substitute without any audible dissent and hastened to recommend the measure to the Senate. No hearings on this particular measure were held, and Senator Glass himself is skeptical about the wisdom of his device for anything save to slay the Goldsborough bill.

In announcing the action of the committee Senator Glass did his best to get out from under the proposal which bears his name. He said:

> I distinctly disfavor the belief that any of these legislative devices is necessary at this time. I simply offered the bill in question as a substitute for the Goldsborough bill, which I regard with the utmost aversion.

This is curious legislative procedure. Would the senator from Virginia afflict the country with a second nostrum because nostrum number one is abhorrent to him? If he is convinced that there is no occasion for the enactment of an inflation measure such as he proposes, why does he allow the bill to go before the Senate with his indorsement?

By almost unanimous consent the Goldsborough bill is recognized as a cheap gesture at price stabilization. When the great commercial nations are making arrangements for a conference to discuss means of stabilizing commodity prices, it would be absurd for Congress to order the Federal Reserve Board to bring back 1926 prices by some unnamed magical process.

Senator Glass' bill does not err in that direction. It would provide a definite means of inflating the currency for a period of five years. Any national bank could deposit its Government bonds with the Treasury and obtain currency therefor. National banks now have $624,000,000 in circulation. The Glass proposal would make it possible to expand their currency to $1,108,000,000.

It is worthy of note that the banks have not yet exhausted their privilege of putting currency in circulation under the present law. In fact, most of the larger institutions are bulging with money for which no profitable use can be found. What would be the advantage of converting Government bonds into more currency when there is no demand for it? Apparently Senator Glass' proposal is something of a gesture itself.

The inherent weakness of this scheme is that it would offer little or no aid to business in the present situation, but it might lead to abuses if a new era of speculation similar to that of 1929 should begin before the measure would expire five years hence. Inflation is extremely dangerous unless rigidly controlled. This measure would leave control over a considerable volume of the currency in the hands of 7,600 banks scattered throughout the country.

The Senate ought to recommit the Glass proposal to the banking and currency committee for hearings and further study.

FRANCE WILL LOSE GOLD.

The great advantage which the United States maintains over most nations of the world is the favorable trade balance which the nation has continued to enjoy throughout the depression. This has been the case merely with regard to the excess of exports over imports, without taking into consideration the income collected from foreign investments, and the money left in the country by travelers. England has long felt the effects of the drain upon her finances caused by a huge unfavorable balance, and now France, with restricted exports, loss of reparation payments and the very general suspension of tourist travel, faces the necessity of paying unfavorable balances abroad from her stock of gold.

While France has $1,000,000,000 less of gold than the United States, it figures out at about $77 for every French citizen, while the American holding is only about $35 per capita. Even in the big year 1929 France bought more abroad than she sold by $317,000,000. This was increased $60,000,000 in 1930. Last year the adverse balance grew to $461,000,000, and it will be larger this year. So many of France's exports are luxuries that sales are cut sharply in hard times, yet France must continue to buy many necessities in foreign lands.

Shipping services, tourist receipts and other sources of income which formerly made it easy for France to balance accounts against her are now so reduced that the only alternative today is to pay the differences in gold. Liquidation of the deficits in the trade balance in this manner has already begun, as will appear in later financial statements. France has increased tariff duties and imposed quota restrictions in an endeavor to hold down imports and increase consumption of home products, but these measures are not sufficient to balance her trade relations.

Gradually the world is realizing that the United States, with about 40 per cent of the world's gold, is not hoarding an unjust amount of the yellow metal, since this country does 40 per cent of the important business of the world and is entitled to a like proportion of the gold.

CONFUSION IN GERMANY.

Motives behind the sudden change in the government of Germany still remain wrapped in mystery. The new chancellor, Franz von Papen, has announced that there will be no change in German foreign policy. Apparently Chancellor Bruening's government was upset chiefly because of his domestic policies. Yet it is difficult to believe that the differences between President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Bruening on these problems were sufficient to warrant the exchange of a cabinet that had recently obtained a substantial vote of confidence for an administration that has no possibility of support in the Reichstag.

President von Hindenburg has acquired a reputation for independent action. When he was first elected by the military and imperial groups that were opposed to the German republic he became the most stalwart champion of the Weimar constitution. A few weeks ago he went before the electorate as the advocate of a moderate policy and the foe of Hitlerism. Now he has turned out his cabinet by extraparliamentary procedure, and selected a ministry that in no way represents the people who prevailed at the polls. In fact, the military and imperial influence is stronger in the present cabinet than at any time since the republic was formed. Not one of the new ministers is a politician and only one is a member of the Reichstag.

The action of President von Hindenburg in dissolving the Reichstag prevents a test of confidence in the Von Papen cabinet. The president knows that his so-called "government of national concentration" would be ousted at the first opportunity for a vote. Apparently his purpose is to continue governing Germany by decrees until the electorate has again spoken.

Two important aspects of the German situation are of vital importance to the entire world. First, President von Hindenburg seems to have eliminated all possibility of an early settlement of the reparations question. The new government will go through the motions of negotiating upon the subject at Lausanne, but it has no mandate from the people. France knows that any agreement which the Von Papen cabinet might make would probably be repudiated in short order by the Reichstag. Nothing can be accomplished by dealing with a stop-gap government on such a vital issue.

In the second place, it appears that the German president has played directly into the hands of the Hitlerites. So long as the moderate factions were united under Chancellor Bruening the Hitlerites were held in check. Now the people have every encouragement to sweep Hitler into power in the next election and come to a showdown with France. Maybe Von Hindenburg foresaw the triumph of Hitler as inevitable under any circumstances and took this means of bringing about an election as the best way of ending the uncertainty of the present situation. At any rate, the future of Germany seems to have been thrust into the hands of the Nazis.

Massachusetts forbids the exhibition of the man who found the Lindbergh baby. New Jersey does not need to exhibit the police who did not find the child. They exhibit themselves.

The public would like to know how much Representatives Patman and Rankin have contributed to the support of the bonus army which they brought to Washington.

The principal point at issue in that chess game which Judge Seabury started in New York is: Who's going to move first?

Jack Garner keeps mum on the bonus raid, and his Texas colleagues sign the call for a vote. There's leadership!

All quiet on the Atlanta front. Al Capone's press agent must be on vacation.

TWO CHILDREN ON A STAMP

From the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Two Pennsylvania children are doing more "traveling," perhaps, than any other two children have ever done before. They'll be seen in Paris and London, and perhaps in Hongkong, Samoa and Singapore before the year is out.

These youngsters are traveling on a postage stamp—the 2-cent Arbor Day stamp issued April 22 to commemorate the anniversary of the birth of J. Sterling Morton. Morton is considered the father of the idea of a tree-planting holiday.

The children are Ruth B. and Alvin W. Hall, jr., son and daughter of Alvin W. Hall, of Hazleton, Pa., chief of the United States Bureau of Engraving.

The artist who designed the stamp needed a little boy and girl to pose as if planting a tree. So he selected the children of his boss, and they'll have something to tell their grandchildren about.

Ruth and Alvin really have no right to be on the stamp, officials say, as it is against the law to reproduce portraits of living persons. However, as just "a little boy" and "a little girl" they're all right.

As an extra precaution, though, the artist cut up the photographs, rearranged them, and took certain liberties in painting, so that even close friends would have difficulty in recognizing Alvin and Ruth unless they were "in the know."

The stamp, printed in red, is surrounded by a narrow white line border within which, on either side, rises a large tree with spreading branches that meet at the top in the form of an arbor. The central design shows Ruth holding a tree in position while Alvin fills in earth around it.

POST HASTE.

Patman tactics are responsible for the futile bonus march; he should pay the veterans' return fare.

Chile is waiting for the dust to settle to see whether Davila is a Socialist or a dictator.

Speaking of equities, the fellow with the $1,000 exemption under the 10 per cent cut will be $55 better off than the one who formerly got $1,050.

The political ball game was historically and prophetically true to form; an apparent early advantage was lost when the man on the hill weakened, and divided leadership, as usual, threw the game away.

One remarkable feature of the wet and dry debate is the orators on both sides who have in some mysterious way received a mandate to speak for "the people."

Veterans who fought to make the world safe for democracy should give a thought to what would happen to democratic government if the demands of a fraction of 1 per cent of the population could force legislative action for its special benefit.

"Herriot keeps same policy on armaments and debts." Thus showing that he would like to keep his new post of premier more than one day.

"Americans have paid off $30,000,000,000 of indebtedness in the last two years." With what and where is it now?

Sr. Davila and his confiscatory followers will probably relieve the Senate investigation of any disciplinary measures against American copper interests in Chile.

The country is thankful for a completed tax bill—any tax bill—but Congress must realize by now that it wouldn't have passed a worse one the first month.

There are indications that the Roosevelt stopper must have slipped down the drain pipe.

The suspicious thing about the new bond pool is that it hasn't asked the R. F. C. for any money. What kind of chips is it using?

The Democrats missed Mr. LaGuardia's help in the ball game.

EXPLODED ILLUSIONS.

Fond illusions about animals have been destroyed. For instance, says the Los Angeles Times, polar bears will not eat fish but grizzlies will. African apes actually turn pale when they hear the lions roar; Indian apes listen with indifference to lions, but go insane with terror when they hear the Bengal tigers. Man of war birds will eat only fish that are thrown into the air by keepers where they can catch them on the fly. Wild parrots learn to talk from tame parrots put in the cages; the wild animal market is "long" on lions; they can't even be given away.

THE COQUETTISH VIOLET.

I'll swear the dainty violet
Was born to be a gay coquette,
For nestling 'neath a shady tree
Today I saw one wink at me.

'Twas not my fancy! Hours and hours
I've spent among the shrubs and flowers—
And peonies never lift an eye
Or flirt with me when I pass by.

The roses very plainly show
By stately conduct that they know—
And have known since my plot began
That I'm a settled, married man.

The tiger lilies hold their place
With highly cultured poise and grace
And act like ladies at a tea
When near them I may chance to be.

But violets, scented doubly sweet,
Lie waiting in some dim retreat
To capture men who pass their way—
I'll swear one winked at me today!

Only Men and Sheep Are Dumb Enough to Give up Life Without a Struggle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

PERSONS who act without reason and without realization of the probable consequences are classed as idiots.

Intelligent people may at times act on impulse, but as a rule their acts are prompted and justified by reason and the logical result is foreseen.

Here, then, is a convenient measure for the quality called common sense. The degree of sanity possessed by an individual or a group is the degree in which ordinary acts are prompted by reason and their reasonable result anticipated.

Consider now the business of spending money.

To a child, money is merely a magical means of obtaining sweets. The child spends foolishly because it has no understanding of values.

Adults who are witless or drunk spend as a child does—without effort to obtain the worth of their money and without thought of the future. This is also true, in some degree, of those who obtain money without effort.

Adult, sober and intelligent people realize that money is a symbol and measure of life.

When one of these receives pay for a day of labor, he says to himself: "These few coins are food and clothing and shelter for my family, but they are more than that. They are weary hours of effort. They are sweat and grime and backache and headache. But they are yet more. Fate gave me so many hours of life and I exchanged a portion of that precious capital for these coins. The very breadth and blood of my life is in this money. When I spend it, I spend my life."

Life is man's dearest possession, and the sacrifice of it his noblest achievement. But the nobility of the sacrifice depends on the nobility of the cause for which it is made.

Those who give their lives for their country are called heroes.

Do you realize that you are giving your life for your country?

You do not sacrifice it willingly. The tax gatherer takes it from you.

It isn't mere money that public servants appropriate and waste so freely. It is your life. Is it less an offense because they don't realize what they are doing?

What the People Can Do.

Springfield Republican.

One reads much about the people's right to vote on the question of the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment. They can do that now, and do it directly. Each constituency has merely to elect a wet representative in order to exercise the right to cast its influence in favor of repeal or change. Whenever a repeal or a substitute amendment comes up for a vote in Congress, that representative is there to vote affirmatively. The process is simple. If two-thirds of each branch of Congress is wet, the thing is done—the new amendment goes directly to the States for their rejection or approval.

Tipping Over the Pork Barrel.

Boston Transcript.

Speaker Garner would borrow more than a billion dollars for new Federal public works whether the nation needs them or not. Costly new postoffices, roads and muddy creek-channels he would construct in cities, towns and hamlets so numerous that the text of his bill takes 31 pages of solid print merely to list them all.

Into this vast pork-barrel, which Mr. Garner says has no pork in it, Secretary Mills has thrust a strong examining hand, and has dragged out from it many a tell-tale strip of bacon. He exposed the weaknesses of the bill yesterday to the House ways and means committee in masterly fashion. He showed that in town after town, now well satisfied with postoffices in leased quarters renting at only $200 or $300 a year, Speaker Garner would force the construction of Federal buildings at costs ranging from $50,000 to $70,000. What a shocking weight this would be to unload today upon the nation's already overborne taxpayers! As the Secretary truly says, "If the communities should be called upon to erect these buildings at their own expense, the (local) taxpayers would never consent to do so, but would rise in protest."

President Hoover and Secretary Mills are against all such loose procedure, and we believe the people at large are against it.

Stone for Bread.

New York Herald-Tribune.

Speaker Garner's idea is to feed marble post offices to hungry men out of work.

Let's see how it would work. He would have Congress appropriate, say, $50,000 for a post office in Painted Post. The contract would be let to a builder who would have to pay union wages to his employes—ranging anywhere from $8 to $15 a day. The men in the building trades of this town might or might not be among its needy unemployed. The builder would have to make his profit to cover his overhead. The cost of raw materials—of marble in the quarry, for example—would eat up another slice of the $50,000. There would be men at a distance indirectly receiving wages out of the o ation—at the quarry in various factories. But these also would receive the prevailing rate of wages—and might or might not be in need of jobs; but the total number of men to receive wages out of the $50,000 would be tragically small.

To call such a blundering handout of a pile of marbl "relief" for "unemployed" is to insult the intelligence of the country.

A few hundred dollars applied intelligently in neighborhood relief—food, clothing and rent given to those actually out of work and in need—would unquestionably do more good to Painted Post.

There is an excellent description of Mr. Garner and his method of relief in the Sermon on the Mount. It reads: "Or what man is there of you, whom, if his son as' bread, will he give him a stone?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Virginia Democrat" Pays Respects to Speaker Garner and Other Critics of the President.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recent developments among the leaders on the Democratic side in Congress can not be construed otherwise than harmful, not only to the welfare of the country at large, but as also creating a handicap which will not be easy for the Democrats to overcome in the November election.

Witness, for instance, Speaker Garner's pork-barrel proposal for a further raid on the Treasury by additional bond issues with which to build new postoffices, &c., which every one knows are not needed at this time or, at least, can be dispensed with until better times. And when the President justly condemns this sort of wastefulness the Speaker comes back with no better and sounder defense than that both Presidents Coolidge and Hoover have in the past recommended the same or a similar building program.

Surely these Democratic leaders do not expect the voters to be so dumb as to fall for any such veiled and weak argument. Such a building program might have been advisable two, three or six years ago, yet be entirely out of place at the present time. But whether such a program was a a good and sound policy when so recommended is entirely beside the question at this critical juncture. Certainly not even a Democrat will accuse either President Hoover or Coolidge of proposing to finance any construction program with borrowed money. Furthermore, we have all changed our mode of spending in the past two years. What might have been a good and sound policy two or more years ago with respect to expenditures has undergone a great change with individuals, and the Government should conform to this change.

Without further attempt to impede recovery in business, the Democrats will have enough trouble between now and November trying to explain their fight on the equitable sales tax bill, which every member of the Senate and House must know is favored by a vast majority of the citizens. What the people most desire at this time is for Congress to balance the budget quickly and adjourn, so that business may know of a certainty what course to pursue.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Mr. Gauss Says Henry Ford Omits Cheap Fertilizer From Statement of Nation's Needs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Henry Ford's otherwise accurate statement of the present need of the United States omits consideration of one vital factor.

Mr. Ford, although entirely blameless in the matter, is himself largely responsible for the present condition of agriculture, and he may well bend his efforts toward curing the evil he has helped to bring about.

He must appreciate that although all wealth originates in the solar radiations, these are impotent without an earth-born aid.

This is furnished by the decomposition of organic matters and without the products of this decomposition the process of photosynthesis, on which he relies to bring back prosperity through the organization of foodstuffs, can not go on.

The United States has never replaced even to an approximate extent the excess drafts on its agricultural soil, and since the machine age has come to be realized, the overdrafts have increased in an appalling ratio.

I have repeatedly pointed out that garbage, sewage residues and other materials can and should be used to replace these tremendous losses.

How this is to be done has been answered by the results of 20 years of research, and I am now demonstrating the manufacture of material containing all the elements necessary to plant growth. The raw materials are practically unlimited in quantity and are being and will be delivered at the point of manufacture without cost.

Experience shows that this fertilizer can be manufactured, including overhead, at a price which will give new opportunities to the farmer.

Has Congress Legal Right to Support Bonus Marchers? Asks F. H. W.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Has Congress any constitutional right to appropriate public funds for the support of the "bonus marchers?" The writer does not believe it has.

England passed a budget balancing law in three days, but Congress, through political log-rolling, is still wrangling. If the members would reduce their own salaries 25 per cent, to the old amount of $7,500, they no doubt would strike a popular chord in the country.

A DOG'S LIFE IN INDIA.

A correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, writing of India's problems, tells an interesting story in illustration of princely extravagance in that poverty-stricken land:

"One Prince's chief extravagance has been dogs. He kept 700, every dog cared for by its own dog boy; over every 20 dog boys was a captain of dog boys, and over the whole a veterinary surgeon ranking as general. An electric fan whirred night and day above each dog, 'to keep off fleas.'

"The best dogs fed off gilt plates the average dogs off brass ones, the bad ones off iron ones (and very deeply they realized and mourned this humiliation).

"An Englishman who had to see his highness on a sweltering day of 1930 observed, mopping his brow (and not unhopeful that he might be offered a drink), 'It is very hot, your highness.' 'Do you think so?' responded his highness, greatly interested, and touched a bell to summon his prime minister and order a special train to take his dogs to the seaside next day. 'This gentleman tells me he thinks it is very hot.'"

TREASURY TO FLOAT $750,000,000 LOAN

Borrowing to Meet Current Deficit; $3,000,000,000 Issued This Year.

(Associated Press.)

A $750,000,000 issue of securities to meet Government expenses, bringing to nearly $3,000,000,000 the amount of money the Government has borrowed during the 1932 fiscal year, was announced last night by Secretary Mills.

The Secretary said the Treasury would sell, June 15, $400,000,000 of three-year Treasury notes bearing 3 per cent interest and $350,000,000 of one-year certificates of indebtedness bearing 1½ per cent interest. The borrowing will make the total of new money raised during the year $2,986,000,000. Officials hope this will end governmental borrowing to meet its operating expenditures.

Between the 1931 fiscal year and the war years the Government balanced its budget, operating on the "pay as it goes" plan, but in the 1931 fiscal year it incurred a deficit of $903,000,000.

Huge Deficit This Year.

On June 2 of the current 1932 fiscal year the Government had a deficit of $2,689,698,716 piled up since last July 1.

The passage of the new revenue bill, designed to raise more than $1,000,000,000 in new taxes, is expected by officials to return the Government to a balanced budget for the future and make borrowing to meet expenses unnecessary.

The issue of securities brings the fiscal year total to $8,598,328,726. During the period the Treasury has retired $6,326,693,572 of maturing paper.

The money derived from the sale of the securities will be used to meet the expenditures of the Government, furnish funds for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as needed and meet interest payments on the public debt of $100,000,000 due June 15.

Estimate of Tax Collections.

On the same day, the Government will collect the second installment of taxes from 1931 incomes, but it is not expected to amount to more than $100,000,000. In March, the first installment of the tax brought in $195,000,000, and for the fiscal year to date income tax collections have amounted to $896,801,559, as compared with $1,566,578,214 in the same period of the preceding fiscal year.

The sharp decrease in this source of revenue, which in two years dropped from $2,400,000,000 to approximately one-third of that amount, provided the major reason for the Government's huge deficit. Other causes were on the expenditure side of the ledger, where unusual expense to provide employment and aid the economic and financial condition of the Nation required huge outlays.

Program Revealed By Women Voters

Regulated Economy, Aid to Idle and International Cooperation Urged.

(Associated Press.)

Three demands by voting women—Government economy, keeping sight of human welfare; employment relief and international cooperation, including adherence to the World Court—were made yesterday upon the Republican and Democratic parties.

The National League of Women Voters, announced the program and named representatives to press it at the forthcoming political conclaves at Chicago. Marguerite M. Wells, of Minneapolis, will head the delegations.

Women peace workers already are assembling in the convention city to seek disarmament declarations. Feminists who once worked with the Voters League for Suffrage will ask, in the name of the National Woman's Party, for support of an equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS FAVOR MOIST PLANK

of Ohio, national chairman, was not invited.

Attention was focused on the perplexing prohibition issue confronting the party, and Mr. Garfield said he intended to hold further conferences with President Hoover before voicing any views. As the Republicans talked it over, Nicholas Murray Butler was announcing in New York a determination to fight for a repeal submission plank at the national convention. There was also a belief on Capitol Hill that Senator Borah, of Idaho, prohibition champion, might change his plans and enter the convention fight on this issue.

Discussed the Problems.

"We talked over those things which seemed to us to be controversial," said Moses, "including the tariff, monetary bonus and prohibition planks. Fifteen were present and fifteen views were presented. It was decided to sleep upon them. Before Mr. Garfield leaves Washington, there probably will be another meeting with perhaps additional ones present, in an attempt to produce a consensus.

"It was perfectly understood the fifteen gentlemen present, regardless of their individual eminence, do not constitute a majority of the Republican convention. Accordingly, the few and somewhat nebulous conclusions arrived at today are wholly subject to revision at Chicago."

Mr. Garfield said: "I shall not make up my mind as to what this plank or any other shall be until I talk with the resolutions committee at the convention."

Senator Moses Confident.

Moses' confident prediction of a re-submission plank brought into the open the growing reports at the Capitol that some form of declaration recognizing a referendum was contemplated.

But apparently a lot of work has to be done yet in finding the wording satisfactory to the majority of the party. Certainly every element was represented at yesterday's powwow. Hastings was there from Delaware, which recently declared for retention of the eighteenth amendment. Bingham, of Connecticut, the antiprohibition leader, sat across the table.

On the monetary plank, there was every indication that the group would stand on the Senate's resolution adopted some time ago requesting President Hoover to call an international silver conference.

The group was united for a plank declaring against immediate payment in full of the bonus insurance certificates. Of course, it was a strong wet-drift gathering.

the offer of the District to transport them 50 miles from the District line in trucks as "bad business."

"So far," he said, "I have received no official notification of their decision to remain. All I know of their decision is what I have read in the newspapers."

Prospects of food shortage has not deterred the veterans from their purpose of remaining here until their goal—the bonus—is achieved. "We went without food for days on the Western front. We can do it again," the men say.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford yesterday issued a request to the leaders of the marchers to hold muster rolls each day to assure themselves that only bonafide veterans are in the ranks, and to weed out all Communists and Reds.

Plans for Parade.

"Old Glory will be the only flag which will wave in the parade tomorrow night," the legislative committee of the bonus army decreed at an executive meeting yesterday.

The ranks will form at the South end of the State, War and Navy Building at 7 o'clock and will march around the edifice to Pennsylvania avenue, past the White House, and along Pennsylvania avenue to Second street southeast, where it will disband. No demonstration is planned along the route.

The selection of the parade hour was a tactical maneuver to precede the demonstration planned for Wednesday by the Communist Workers Former Service Men's League. What the Communists will do about their parade is uncertain. Emanuel Levin, leader of the Communist group, complained that his organization was not being treated fairly, because it has been barred from the various veterans' barracks.

All veterans, regardless of political affiliation, race or creed, will be permitted to march, but no banners other than the American flag, and flags of veteran organizations will be permitted. Those veterans who are affiliated with Communist organizations will be allowed in the ranks, providing that no banners of an inflammatory nature are exhibited.

Commissioner Crosby said last night: "The trucks which we offered will be still available." Asked whether the District would be able to provide for them if they remain, he replied: "No better than we are able to care for our own 19,000 unemployed." He denied that any arrangements had been made with any of the Army, Navy or Marine units for aid in the event of disorder.

Reds Defy Order to Leave.

The edict of the "kangaroo court-martial," which ordered their banishment from the Capital is being flaunted by Levin and Samuel J. Stember, of New York City, both leaders of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League and the National Provisional Bonus March Committee, both of which are communistic. The sentence was imposed upon them when they sought to create dissension and disorder in the ranks, it was said.

New arrivals poured into the bonus army camp near Bolling Field. From Berks County, Pa., came 246 veterans, transported in fourteen private automobiles and nine trucks, given to them for the trip by merchants and private companies in their home county. From Schenectady, N. Y., came 80 men under the leadership of William Fay, an unemployed automobile salesman. Of his company, 41 are unemployed married men and have families.

All day long cars continued to arrive in the camping grounds. Small groups came from Illinois and Ohio.

A message that the 1,000 veterans in Cleveland, Ohio, had locked up the roundhouse and refused to permit the railroad to remove engines, came to Gen. Glassford yesterday from Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The engines involved are Pennsylvania Railroad property, and in order to move its trains the Pennsylvania Railroad is moving trains over the Baltimore & Ohio tracks to Cleveland.

Lobbying Planned.

Instructions will be given to the men this morning to visit the House Office Building and lobby for votes for the bonus bill. Men will be assigned to make pleas to representatives from their congressional districts. Others will concentrate on the leaders of the House.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, the author of the bonus bill, said last night: "The Government is not going to see t ese men go hungry. They will be given enough food." He said he did not plan to seek the House vote on his bill through suspension of the rules or by unanimous consent. "We've got the votes and they will have to bring it to the floor of the House when the seven legislative days required have expired."

Opposition to the bonus payment has been strengthened in the Senate through the adverse positions taken by Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi.

The decision of the police to shift all the men quartered in vacant buildings to the camp in Anacostia, was modified yesterday when they decided to let the men remain in the billets and use the money which would be used for lumber to purchase food instead. There is less than $200 in the treasury and the only prospect of more money is a boxing and wrestling show tomorrow night in the stadium.

Food Problem Grows.

In doing this, the police were compelled to ignore a request of District Health Officer William C. Fowler that the men be removed from the billets because of unsanitary conditions.

Capt. William G. Stott, in charge of the food supply, estimated that the food, on the scantiest handout, would provide sustenance for the veterans now present until Thursday. The impending arrival of additional thousands, he said, "will change the feeding problem from a serious one to a desperate one."

At a mass meeting of the veterans in the camp at Bolling Field, Harold B. Foulkrod, chairman of the legislative committee of the bonus army, urged the men to remain loyal and parade only under the American flag. He told them the rules of the parade, which are strictly military—with no conversation permitted with spectators.

Others Urging Order.

Others who urged order were Col. Frank van de Krintzinger, a veteran of four wars; and Joseph de Angelo, of Camden, N. J., holder of the Distinguished Service Medal, and several other decorations. He also pleaded with the men to remain until the bonus bill is passed.

"They cheered us in '18, when we brought victory, and we can't go to our homes now in defeat on this bonus bill," he said. "But we will go home with victory."

From the Associated Press came dispatches from all sections of the country on the progress of veteran marchers:

Newark, N. J.: The so-called "radical wing" of the 700 bonus marchers who arrived yesterday in Newark, last night was reported moving southward through New Jersey. Its members spent the night in the Labor Lyceum at Elizabeth after being ejected peacefully from freight yards by police. The American Legion wing of the group apparently had divided into smaller groups seeking rides across the States after failing to get train transportation to Washington. Police reserves were held in readiness in Newark in anticipation of 1,000 more to march in from New York.

Florida Veterans Continue.

Charitable organizations provided food and a night's lodging for the veterans.

J. W. MacKocklin, heading the Florida contingent, said he believed President Hoover would veto the measure. He added that he considered the veterans powerful enough to override the veto.

Cleveland, June 5.—Repulsed in their 24-hour siege of the Pennsylvania Railroad yards, 400 World War veterans from Michigan and Toledo idled under a blazing sun in a suburb, washed their clothes, bought food and held councils of war, still determined to march on Washington to demand payment of the bonus.

Meanwhile, 39 Chicago veterans headed for home on a New York Central freight train from Toledo and a few others rumbled in private trucks through Columbus toward the National Capital. Another band of 145 from Flint, Mich., continued in trucks through northern Ohio.

Columbia, S. C.—Ejected from a Southern Railway freight train here, some 70 Washington-bound bonus marchers from Aiken County and Augusta, Ga., waited quietly on the Statehouse steps for several hours until trucks were provided to take them into North Carolina.

City and county authorities arranged to have the men driven to Pineville, Mecklenburg County, N. C. They left in four trucks.

200 Reach North Carolina.

Spencer, N. C.—Nearly 200 Georgia and South Carolina marchers who met with two defeats to steal rides on Southern Railway freights to Washington, reached here by trucks furnished by Blacksburg, S. C., citizens and officials.

Charleston, W. Va.—A group of approximately 100, with their ranks augmented by veterans from Indiana and Kentucky, set out from here.

Old Robey, Ind.—The Pennsylvania Railroad after first refusing transportation, turned two box cars over to 250 West Coast marchers. They will arrive in Washington today.

Kansas City, Mo.—A group of 180 outmaneuvered railroad police and officers and boarded a freight train on a curve and were off for St Louis.

Wichita, Kans.—About 500 were estimated to be mobilized for the Eastward march.

Transportation Refused.

Denver, Colo.—Freight trains and hitchhiking took 200 Eastward during the day. Colorado officials refused the veterans' plea of transportation to Goodland, Kans.

Yuma, Ariz.—A group of 28 arriving from Brawley, Calif., quit their trucks here and changed to a train of the Southern Pacific Railroad. When last heard from they were crossing the desert toward Tucson.

Dallas, Tex.—Another 300 boarded a freight train here for Texarkana over the objections of railway police and officials. When warned their plan to take the train was illegal, their leader, A. C. Hembree, of Dallas, attempted to persuade the men to leave the railway yards. They refused and he resigned as their commander.

Columbus, Ohio—A group of 400 veterans from Detroit and Toledo camped in the suburbs and held a council of war. They were chased from the city after laying an unsuccessful seige to the railway yards. Another group of 200 from Cleveland was taken to the county line in trucks donated by charity.

Eight Leave From Boston.

Boston, Mass.—A group of 8 World War veterans, out of 50 who met on Boston Common in a bonus "mass meeting," set out on foot for Washington. John J. Doyle, organizer of the Boston group, withdrew with the declaration that he had received information from Federal investigators that Communists were backing the movement.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Texas-Oklahoma "bonus army" of approximately 450 men, still stranded and unable to obtain transportation to Washington, rested in comparative comfort, although their supplies were running low.

The Oklahoma "Army" staged some military maneuvers and during the morning made a serious attempt to commandeer freight trains in the Southern Railway yards. Their attempt was suppressed.

250 Reach Danville.

Danville, Va.—Two hundred and fifty tired and hungry soldiers of the bonus army arrived from North and South Carolina on their northward trip to Washington.

They arrived from Greensboro in five trucks, which immediately returned to the North Carolina city.

Danville police were rounding up an equal number of trucks to carry the veterans to Lynchburg, where they will again be unloaded.

Pittsburgh.—Police were ordered to mobilize before dawn when reports were received that between 1,500 and 2,000 "bonus marchers" were approaching Pittsburgh from the West and North.

During the day, police convoyed four units of "marchers" through the city to suburban districts.

McKeesport was the converging point. About 500 tried to board an eastbound Baltimore & Ohio freight, but only 100 or so found places on the train.

200 Camp at Clarksburg.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—Two hundred "bonus marchers" from Terre Haute and Munice, Ind., camped at the fair grounds. They will continue their trip to Washington in the morning.

Dallas, Tex.—A "Lone Star" delegation of 300 World War veterans heard the Rev. Richard Lamb, of New York, in a prayer for their guidance before they departed by freight train for Washington.

Spartanburg, S. C.—One hundred and fifty New Orleans "bonus marchers" were bivouacked along the banks of Lawsons Fork on the outskirts of Spartanburg after completing another 25-mile trip from Greenville, S. C.

Rioting Here Sends Two to Hospitals

All Available Police Cars Quell Disorders in Southwest Area.

Two persons were in hospitals last night following a series of riot calls in Southwest Washington. Every available police car in the vicinity was sent to the scene and dispersed a mob of more than a hundred persons.

During the melee, B. H. Perry, of 708½ Seventh street southwest, was attacked and beaten with a crowbar by two colored women. Although he was not injured enough to require hospital treatment, one of the women was sent to Providence Hospital, where she is in an undetermined condition with severe injuries. She is unidentified.

A second victim requiring medical aid was Norman Bragg, 19 years old of 905 F street southwest. He is in Emergency Hospital stabbed in the chest and arms. His condition is not serious. The crowd fled in all directions upon the arrival of police cars. Witnesses said a general free-for-all lasted more than ten minutes.

Kin of Abraham Lincoln Among Bonus Army

A kinsman of Abraham Lincoln is among the ranks of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces here.

He is Charles Frederick Lincoln, of Portland, Oreg. Lincoln, sixth cousin of the Civil War President who once fought his country's battle's against the Black Hawk Indians, is regimental sign painter of the bonus marchers.

Lincoln joined the Pacific Coast group at Los Angeles. He is later to go to Weymouth, Mass., where he has a wife and five children. He was a concert singer originally, but his voice failed after the war's rigors and he turned sign painter.

The Great Emancipator's kin says: "We don't want any trouble. We are going to do nothing except seek out rights. We do mean to get those." He is a slight man, deeply tanned by the outdoor march here.

DR. BUTLER WRITES WET G. O. P. PLANK

Urges That Congress Submit Proposal to States for Dry Law Repeal.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The resolution which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will offer to the committee on resolutions at the Republican national convention for incorporation in the party platform reads in full as follows:

"Resolved, that we reaffirm the declaration of Republican doctrine made by the Republican national convention of 1860, when it nominated Abraham Lincoln for President and pledged maintenance inviolate of the rights of the States and especially the right of each State to order and control its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment exclusively, is essential to that balance of powers on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric depends;" and

"That we also reaffirm the declaration of Republican doctrine made by the Republican national convention of 1884, when it nominated James G. Blaine for President, namely: 'The people of the United States, in their organized capacity, constitute a Nation, and not a mere confederacy of States; the national Government is supreme within the sphere of its national duties; but the States have reserved rights which should be faithfully maintained; each should be guarded with jealous care, so that the harmony of our system of government may be preserved and the Union kept inviolate.'

"To the end that these declarations of principle may be made effective, that the distribution of powers between the States and the Nation as originally established by the Constitution may be preserved, and that the several States may be enabled, in such ways as their public opinion shall direct and sustain, to deal promptly, effectively and constructively with the problems of the liquor traffic in the light of the experience of our own and other nations, we ask that the Congress submit a proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment, which proposal shall be submitted for ratification by conventions of the people of the several States in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution of the United States.

"Should the eighteenth amendment be repealed, the Republican party pledges its influence and authority to secure the adoption of such measures for the control of the liquor traffic by the several States as will promote temperance, effectively abolish the saloon, whether open or concealed, and bring the liquor traffic itself, when not prohibited, under complete public supervision and control.

"While the eighteenth amendment remains upon the statute books it should be obeyed."

BEDELL IS ARRESTED IN LEGATION HOLDUP

is problematical. The chief witness, Dr. Leiva, is said to be in New York taking a postgraduate college course. The latter's status as Minister of El Salvador is also open to question, and this fact lends strength to the possibility that he may return to his home country before Bedell could be tried.

Bedell's arrest yesterday culminates a long quest for him by the robbery squad, headed by Detective Sergt. Larry O'Dea. Bedell was arrested not long after the legation outrage with several others. He was later released.

By that time, however, Bedell had left the city. Late last fall he was arrested in New York in connection with a spurious stock certificate transaction. While he was being held in this inquiry, Washington authorities began steps to extradite Bedell.

Later Bedell was released in the stock certificate probe. Then began a series of maneuvers on his part and by the police here against and for the project of returning Bedell here.

Just a few days after the indictment against Bedell was returned, he was released in New York, a magistrate there deciding against issuing the extradition papers. A half dozen attorneys, financed from a mysterious source believed in Washington, conducted Bedell's fight in New York.

CAPITAL G.O.P. TREK TO CHICAGO TO START

Advance Guard to Convention Will Start From Here This Week.

District of Columbia Republicans will begin the journey to Chicago this week when an advance party of local political leaders departs for meetings called by the Republican national committee to approve final arrangements and settle various problems in regard to the nominating convention which opens June 14 at the Chicago Stadium.

The first contingent from the Capital will consist of Edward P. Holladay and Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Republican national committee members from the District, and Samuel J. Prescott, chairman of the Republican State committee for the District of Columbia. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Prescott and Mrs. Eleanor R. Lannigan, assistant secretary of the State committee, who will serve as secretary to the local delegation.

A special State committee meeting to draft last-minute instructions for the District delegation and the advance party has been called by Joshua Evans, jr., secretary, for tomorrow afternoon to approve arrangements for the participation of local representatives in the various Chicago meetings. The State committee also will examine final plans for launching the local campaign, which is expected to be opened shortly after the convention adjourns.

The Blackstone Hotel will be the temporary Chicago residence and office of the District delegation, which will provide a center of activity for Washingtonians. The major portion of the local party will not leave for Chicago until next Sunday.

Mr. Prescott, Mr. Colladay and Mrs. Speel will serve as members of the advisory committee, which will cooperate with the official delegates and alternates in deciding the stand of the District representatives on matters which have not been acted upon by the State convention or State committee. The District's delegates already have been instructed to work for inclusion of a plank favoring representation in Congress for the District, to support characteristic Republican tariff and world peace doctrines, and to uphold the program of the Hoover administration, but have not been given any instructions in regard to the prohibition question.

16,000 troops of the Rome garrison on the anniversary of the Italian constitution.

The police did not suspect a plot against the king, but in view of the arrest of Sbardellotto took every precaution. They searched the royal box and examined the ground underneath. Unusual vigilance was exercised, the police identifying all who approached the scene, but as far as was known nothing was found.

Duce Closely Guarded.

Premier Mussolini went to Janiculum Hill to unveil a monument to Anita Garibaldi, wife of the great liberator, yesterday morning. He was closely guarded as usual and no untoward incident occurred there.

He usually goes to his office in the Palazzo Venezia in the afternoon. It was thought the prisoner might have planned to surprise him on his arrival.

The official announcement of the arrest said:

"About 3 p. m. Saturday in Piazza Venezia public security agents halted an individual carrying a Swiss passport issued to Angelo Gabini. Taken to a police station, the arrested man was identified as Angelo Sbardellotto, from abroad, known to police for some time.

Had Two Bombs and Pistol.

"When searched, Sbardellotto, whose passport was recognized as ably falsified, was found to have in his possession two percussion bombs charged with explosives of high power and a pistol ready for firing.

"Subjected to interrogation, the prisoner confessed that he had gone to the place where he was surprised by the agents to make an attempt against the life of his excellency, the chief of the government."

Michele Schirru, a naturalized American, was the last person convicted of planning an attempt against the premier's life. He was shot in the back by an execution squad on May 29, 1931, that form of execution being customary in Italy for such offenses. Schirru was arrested when bombs were found in his baggage in a hotel room.

Women's League Announces Results of Poll Upon Action at Geneva.

(Associated Press.)

Twenty-three members of the Senate were reported last night by the Women's International League to have expressed a poll by the organization their favor of action by the Geneva disarmament conference that will bring a substantial reduction in world armaments.

Seventeen gave the view disarmament reduction would restore prosperity and fifteen that the United States should take the leadership at Geneva for a worldwide reduction treaty, the Women's League said. It explained the poll was being taken at the suggestion of Ambassador Hugh Gibson and other members of the United States delegation to record disarmament sentiment in the legislative body which ratifies treaties.

The following senators were listed as having gone on record in statements to the organization: Republicans: Davis, Pennsylvania; Norris, Nebraska; Townsend, Delaware; Hastings, Delaware; Capper, Kansas; La Follette and Blaine, Wisconsin; Barbour, New Jersey; Frazier and Nye, North Dakota; Cutting, New Mexico.

GALLAUDET COLLEGE EXERCISES STARTED

All Souls' Unitarian Church Pastor Is Baccalaureate Speaker.

The many varieties of experience that can be derived from life, to the enrichment of the individual's existence, were described by the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church, in a baccalaureate sermon to the senior class of Gallaudet College yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Pierce, who is secretary of the college, had his words interpreted to the graduates by Dr. Percival Hall, president of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf. Dr. Pierce dwelt on the subtleties of the various types of thought, and of the significant part they play in the development of one's daily life.

Prizes will be given members of the graduating class this morning, and Alan Crammatte, of Aberdeen, Wash., will deliver the valedictory address. The senior prom will take place tonight.

Thirty-three degrees will be awarded at commencement exercises at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Twenty members of the senior class will receive bachelor degrees, and two will receive master degrees.

Dr. Vernon Kellogg, emeritus secretary of the National Research Council, and former member of the board of directors of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, will be awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws. The Rev. Arthur D. Bryant, minister of the deaf, Calvary Baptist Church, will be given the honorary degree of master of arts.

SEABURY IS ACCUSED OF ACCEPTING FAVOR

to and from Bermuda last March for $460, but actually used a more expensive suite.

As a public official, by virtue of his appointment as counsel to the Hofstadter committee, Hastings contended Seabury was amenable to a constitutional prohibition against the acceptance of "free transportation or discrimination in passenger rates."

"I direct your attention to these facts," Hastings' letter concluded, "so that they may be presented to the grand jury of your county for indictment or to a city magistrate in your borough for appropriate action against the said Samuel Seabury."

The constitution also provides that the attorney general may sue for the removal of the offending official.

Hastings frequently has assailed Seabury's conduct of the city investigation and on one occasion threatened to punch him.

Seabury returned from commencement exercises at Washington and Jefferson College today and immediately conferred with six of his aids preparatory to drafting a summary of the Walker testimony.

In the analysis to be laid before Gov. Roosevelt, about the middle of the week, it is expected these high spots will include Mayor Walker's relations with the missing accountant, Russell T. Sherwood, and his acceptance of $26,500 in bonds from J. A. Bisto, a broker.

As he returned to his home by motor from Washington, Pa., after having passed the night in Harrisburg, Seabury declined to comment on dispatches from Hyde Park last night representing the governor as feeling that Seabury was "playing politics."

The dispatches quoted an unidentified visitor as promising the governor would act promptly once he is furnished with an official record of the Walker testimony.

Fosdick Attacks Officials.

Seabury is expected to follow the same procedure he pursued in the case of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, who subsequently was removed by the governor for failure to offer a satisfactory explanation of his income.

The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Church, which John D. Rockefeller, jr., attends, declared in his sermon today that "if the people of this community, knowing what Judge Seabury has plainly shown about our government, are content to let a man like Mr. Walker remain mayor * * * we have sunk to depths that take from us the right to call ourselves civilized any more."

The subject of Dr. Fosdick's sermon was "Handling Our Primitive Instincts," and he was talking about pugnacity when he launched into a discussion of the recent public hearings of the Hofstadter legislative committee.

"Pugnacity gone wrong is a tremendous evil," he said, "but pugnacity put to the service of cleaning up the deplorable mess of our city government would do us all honor. There is no possibility of cleaning up this city, with its disreputable officials, who, as Judge Seabury has so plainly shown, have been bossing us right and left and corrupting our government from top to bottom, without some consecrated pugnacity on the part of our citizenship."

Churchmen Hit 'Delay.'

The city affairs committee issued a statement over the signatures of Dr. John Haynes Holmes and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise denouncing Gov. Roosevelt for the representation of his views emanating from Hyde Park last night and praising Seabury.

Dr. Holmes and Rabbi Wise recently engaged in a controversy with the governor in an unsuccessful effort to bring about the removal of a Queens sheriff.

"To Gov. Roosevelt's record of evasion and delay in dealing with Tammany corruption," the statement said, "are now added his charges, through a 'spokesman,' that 'the methods and purposes' of Judge Seabury are not only 'based on a clear desire to play politics,' but 'unethical.' This is the traditional Tammany Hall policy of attacking venomously when cornered, of striking back furiously in order to becloud the issue."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE older order changeth—especially in Hollywood.

For example, this new fashion among the artistic—vacations from the close associations of marriage—develops apace. There was a time when any separation of celebrated filmaniacs was looked upon as a sure sign of infelicity and divorce rumors flew thick and fast. Oddly, under a custom whereby husbands and wives live a considerable portion of the time apart, taking long trips separately and devoting themselves single-mindedly and unhampered to individual affairs, there are fewer rumors of divorce than in the days when no motion picture star went anywhere without husband or wife, and such joint excursions were the talk of publicity departments for weeks afterward.

A wholesale marriage vacation was taken recently by Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Robert Montgomery, Laurence Olivier and Edwin Knopf. They borrowed Cecil B. De Mille's yacht Invader and took a seventeen-day cruise in Mexican waters, terminating the junket with experiments in deep-sea diving off Catalina Island. Mrs. Montgomery, the while, was visiting friends in New York; Joan Crawford, the junior Mrs. Fairbanks, was resting in the mountains; Mrs. Olivier was working and Mrs. Knopf dutifully kept the home fires burning.

Ruth Chatterton recently announced that she would spend the summer in Europe and that Ralph Forbes was not going along.

Mrs. Clark Gable spent several weeks in New York recently while Clark continued working in Hollywood. Hoot Gibson was engaged on a picture not so long ago when Sally Eilers developed a sudden yen to come East. She took an airplane and Hoot took another scene!

Marlene Dietrich and her husband, Rudolph Selber, whose business is in Germany, are separated so much of the time that they constitute the exception that proves the rule. I mean to say that when they feel a vacation coming on they are more apt than not to spend it together. He is now visiting her at her Beverly Hills home—or was a few minutes ago.

Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster come and go as each pleases. Whenever the holiday mood strikes them, they run away together and maybe go tramping—or tramp shipping—around the world.

Edmund Lowe and Lilyan Tashman, completely happy in marriage—Miss Tashman told me so herself, and meant it—make most of their trips separately. And they travel a great deal.

The stars admit that oftener than not they shake the dust of the film colony from off their heels to have a good time and to prevent the jitters that come from the boredom of too much concentrated effort in their profession. Their matter-of-fact frankness wholly disarms some of the gossipers who would like to detect signs of incompatibility in the hegiras.

Nice people, gossipers.

And that reminds me of another of my pet antipathies—the anonymous letter writers, whose personal prejudices and half-baked criticisms of artists whose talents they could not possibly match reflect precisely the degree of mental capacity that might be expected of natures so steeped in cowardice that they seek the protective security of nameless authorship in emitting their puerile blasts.

They're nice people, too! And there are too many of them, by asylums full, in every community.

The first organization meeting of the Washington branch of the Warner Brothers Club, which will be devoted to recreational activities, was held Saturday in the Warner executive offices in the Earle Theater building. The meeting was attended by both theater and film exchange employees of the company.

John J. Payette, general zone manager of the Warner Brothers interests, with headquarters in this city, was elected president. Other officers were elected as follows: Robert Smeltzer, manager of the Warner Brothers' local branch film exchange; C. H. McKinney, George N. Payette and Mrs. M. J. Estes, vice presidents; Nat B. Brown, secretary; George A. "Cotton" Crouch, treasurer.

The board of governors is comprised of John J. Payette, Robert Smeltzer, C. H. McKinney, G. N. Payette, Mrs. M. J. Estes, Nat Glasser, Guy Wonders, Robert Etris, H. E. Lohmeyer and A. Julian Brylawski.

Many social and recreational activities are planned by the new organization and suitable club quarters are in process of selection.

The famous Jitney Players, headed by Alice Keating Cheney, who played so delightfully for the Washington Junior League recently, will make a return appearance here.

They will give al fresco performances in the garden of Sidwell's Friends Country School, 3901 Wisconsin avenue, June 10 and June 11.

"Caste," a Mid-Victorian, romantic comedy, written by Tom Robertson, author of "David Garrick" and other famous plays of his time, will be given Friday night, June 10. On Saturday night, June 11, the Players will be seen in "The Murder in the Red Barn," a blood-curdling melodrama of 1827, which is hilariously funny as interpreted by Mrs. Cheney and her troupe.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Casanove Lee and other prominent women will be the patronesses for the two performances, which will be sponsored by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

In his "Radio Impressions," during which he impersonates The Street Singer, Singing Sam, Kate Smith, Bing Crosby, Morton Downey and Tony Wons at Loew's Fox this week, Wesley Eddy is scoring the greatest hit of his intermittent local career.

So well did he impersonate Arthur Tracy Saturday night that the "Street Singer's" mother, who was in the audience, went back to his dressing room after the performance to congratulate him. Mrs. Tracy admitted that when Wes sang "Marta," her son's well-known signature number, her eyes filled with tears, she was that proud of them both.

Mr. Eddy expressed himself as amply repaid for the entire week's effort by this single tribute from the one whom he would want to please above all others.

After listening to the prohibition debate between Sister Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, dry, and Walter Huston, wet, on the screen as a special feature at RKO-Keith's this week, it is difficult to decide which is the better actor of the two. Personally, I am inclined to think it is Sister Aimee, who puts a little more stuff on the bawl than her opponent does!

By the way, how could you have done with a bucket of nice cool lager yesterday afternoon?

Yeah, you and me, both!

Suspect in Slaying Is Shot to Death

Apparent "Ride" Victim Was Sought in Radio Crooner Shooting.

Kansas City, Kans., June 5 (A.P.).—An apparent "ride" victim, Earl McDowell, sought for the killing in Chicago of Mrs. Dorothy Renshaw, Sioux City, Iowa, was found shot to death on a country road near here today.

McDowell, who five years ago organized a Kansas City Tile Layers and Terrazzo Union, was believed by officers to have been taken by motor car to the spot where he was found and then shot to death. He was 42 years old.

Mrs. Renshaw, who was 25 years old, was shot and killed in an alleged beer flat in Chicago last March. Other occupants of the apartment said she was struck by a stray bullet when McDowell became displeased with a radio crooner and fired pistol shots at the loud speaker.

When the body was found all marks of identification had been removed except an initialed belt buckle. There was $17 in a pocket. Identification was made by police from a Chicago description.

Youthful Dancers Score at National

"1932 Review" Presented to Large Audience and Wins Applause.

Youth again held the center of the National Theater stage last night when pupils of the Anna T. Mitchell School of Dancing presented their "1932 Dancing Revue" before a large audience. Augmenting the Washington school were pupils from Miss Mitchell's Frederick branch.

From the nature prologue, staged with simple splendor and beauty, to the stirring martial "July 4th" finale, the program was one continuous procession of well executed solo and group routines.

To Wicklein and Martyn Brothers for their comedy dance rendition of "Barnacle Bill," and to Millard Tucker for her Russian doll number must go credit for the more outstanding items on the program. Others deserving especial merit were Dora Pleitner, Jane Stauffer, Rose Carroll, Mary Margaret Carroll, Mildred Tucker, Jean LeNoir, Anne McCollister and Gloria Vogts.

Following the performance medals for service and achievement were awarded by F. Edward Mitchell to Jeanne Adams, Joanne Barrett, Margaret Carroll, Jeanne Coffman, Mildred Covey, Jeanne Davis, Martha Dodge, Gladys Donaldson, Katherine Farley, Elisabeth Guthridge, Doris Herndon, Betty Jennings, Sylvia Kay, Anna Lambas, Jeanne LeNoir, Billie Martyn, Earl Martyn, Helen Moran, Frances Moran, Elizabeth Palmer, Peggy Plantz, Emily Phelan, Edna Pleitner, Dora Pleitner, Carolyn Redmond, Mary Theresa Schwarz, Jane Stauffer, Jane Thompkins, Mildred Tucker, Julia Vaccaro, Gloria Vogts, Betty Whiting and Helen Feck, all of Washington, and to Shandsen Moore and Dorothy Shipley, of Frederick.

2 Dead, 5 Hurt in Polish Riot.

Warsaw, Poland, June 5 (A.P.).—Two persons were shot to death and 5 were seriously wounded when police dispersed a meeting of peasants at Labun, in the district of Bochnia, today. Public gatherings had been banned on account of a scarlet fever epidemic. The peasants stoned the police.

K. OF C. TO UNVEIL STATUE ON AUG. 14

Late James Cardinal Gibbons Memorial Rites Slated During Convention.

A notable addition to Washington's already wonderful display of statuary will be made on August 14 when the memorial to the late James Cardinal Gibbons, the gift of the Knights of Columbus to the people of America, is unveiled here. The memorial will be located in front of the Sacred Heart Church, on Sixteenth street at Park road northwest, and the presentation ceremonies which will mark the unveiling will be one of the high spots of the golden anniversary convention of the K. of C., the first national convention of the organization to be held in Washington.

Presentation of the memorial to the people of the United States will probably be made by Martin H. Carmody, supreme knight of the order, and it will be accepted by President Hoover or some high official designated by the Chief Executive to act for him. The event is expected to bring together one of the most notable gatherings of high State, governmental and ecclesiastical officials ever gathered together in the National Capital.

Plans for Convention.

Local arrangements for the convention are in charge of a committee of District Knights of Columbus appointed by Fred J. Rice, State deputy supreme knight, which is headed by P. Michael Cook as chairman. Mr. Cook has appointed a strong array of committee chairmen to assist him in preparations for the meeting. The fourth degree of the District will have a prominent part in the parade which is to precede the unveiling of the memorial on August 14. Arrangements for the religious program in connection with the unveiling have not yet been made.

The monument to Cardinal Gibbons, showing his eminence in a characteristic pose, is the work of Leo Lentelli, whose work is well and favorably known throughout the United States and Europe. The design was selected from a group of five models submitted by leading sculptors of the country, the committee making the selection being headed by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore. The design for the statue was also approved by the Fine Arts Commission of the District.

The idea of erecting a memorial to the late Cardinal Gibbons originated with the late Charles W. Darr, at that time State deputy supreme knight of the District. Mr. Darr conferred with ecclesiastical authorities and with the supreme officers of the Knights of Columbus and the plan was launched. A joint bill was introduced into the House and Senate by Representative Fred N. Zihlman, of Maryland, and Senator Millard A. Tydings, of the same State, authorizing the erection of the memorial and fixing the location. It was unanimously passed by both houses.

50,000 Visitors.

Under the plan submitted by Mr. Darr, which was warmly approved by Archbishop Curley, the Knights of Columbus were to contribute the fund for the statue as a gift from the order to the people of the United States. This idea was submitted to the national convention in 1929 and unanimously adopted. The selection of the model followed.

More than 50,000 visitors are expected for the unveiling. The golden anniversary convention of the Knights will bring a large crowd of visitors, while the place in the affections of all the people held by the late Cardinal Gibbons insures an additional large influx for the unveiling ceremonies, especially from nearby Maryland and Virginia, while special trains from States slightly farther away are being arranged.

Because this is the first annual convention of the national order to be held here, the District Knights, according to State Deputy Rice, are planning to make it one of the most notable in the history of the order.

New Ocean Vessel Named Washington

Ship Built for U. S. Lines to Be Launched at Camden in August.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The second of the transatlantic liners now being completed for the United States Lines will be christened Washington when it is launched next August at the Camden, N. J., shipyards of the New York Shipbuilding Co.

P. A. S. Franklin, chairman of the board of directors of the Roosevelt Steamship Co., which operates the lines, said the name was selected by the directors as a fitting tribute to the First President in this Bicentennial year. The sister ship of the New Manhattan will be launched in the Delaware River not far from the scene of Gen. Washington's historic crossing.

The Manhattan and Washington, the largest commercial ships ever built in the United States, are the first liners to be built in this country for the North Atlantic trade since 1897. Both will be operated in the New York - Channel ports - Hamburg service.

Capital Murder Rate Larger Than Chicago's

Chicago, June 5 (A.P.).—Last year there were 44 cities of more than 100,000 population where the proportion of murders was greater than Chicago's, Col. Henry Chamberlain, director of the Chicago Crime Commission, announced today.

In 1930, Chicago was thirty-ninth on the murder list, and Col. Chamberlain insists that this year shows signs of another drop. Among cities listed as having a larger murder rate were Washington, D. C., Cincinnati, Kansas City, Miami, New Orleans, Louisville, Memphis and Houston.

MACKS DEFEAT NATS, 11-7, BEFORE 15,000 CROWD

Bonus Show To Include 25 Bouts

City's Fistic Figures Answer Call for Benefit at Park.

THE greatest array of boxing talent ever brought together in a Washington ring will parade before the public Wednesday night in Griffith Stadium in the bonus marchers' benefit show.

This fact was assured yesterday when arrangement of the program was completed in less than an hour during a meeting of local boxing leaders, presided over by Maj. Harvey L. "Heine" Miller, at 458 Indiana avenue northwest.

Eleven professional bouts and fourteen amateur bouts were placed on the program which will open at 8:15 o'clock. Exactly 58 boxers, several of them from other cities, volunteered their services along with six referees, three timekeepers and many other persons who will serve in various capacities in the conduct of the show.

Amateurs to Show First.

The amateur section of the show will occupy the ring first, followed by the professional boxers. There will be a short intermission after the amateurs conclude their part.

In order that there may be no delay between bouts, there will be stationed two boxers at all times outside the ring and another pair standing by. Thus, in the event of knockouts the usual interruption caused by the sudden ending of a bout will be forestalled.

Eight of the 58 participants who registered with the committee yesterday will be on hand only as substitutes. There may be more added to this group before Wednesday night, and one or two changes may be effected in the card.

Those standing by for emergency call are Roy "Kid" Manley, of Arkansas; Chuck Anderson, of Memphis, Tenn.; Babe Truehart, of Massachusetts; Don Whitlock, of Florida; Billy Edwards, Stellar Washington colored middleweight; Jack Baxter, Tech High School football star, and Leroy Bonbrest, Leonard Tucci and Toby Ross, all of the American Legion Team coached by Jack Whitely.

Gen. Glassford Addresses Group.

The meeting was addressed by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of police, who pointed out just what difficulties local officials face in housing and feeding the bonus marchers. Gen. Glassford conceived the idea of the boxing benefit. Maj. Don S. Knowlton, surgeon of the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade, who has been attending approximately 150 patients daily, also discussed the veterans' needs. The committee named Maj. Knowlton the ringside surgeon.

The show will be free to the public, the sole financial return being dependent upon the generosity of the spectators who will be asked by Jimmy Lake in a special explanatory announcement to contribute to the aid of the bonus marchers. A group of Washington society girls will collect donations.

The following were appointed to serve in various capacities:

Referee—Goldie Ahearn, Denny Hughes, Eddie Lafond, Joe Bateman, Billy Whipp and Charlie Reynolds.

Timekeepers—Jack Tulloch, Billy Dechard and Abe Martin.

Seconds—Charles E. Cornell, Toots Ellis, Jim Manders, James E. Foley, James Lynch and Jack Whitely.

Equipment officer—Jimmy Gallagher.

Finance officer—Capt. Paul Sullivan, Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade.

Amateur superintendent—Dr. O. U. Singer, District of Columbia A. A. U.

Managers of seating, ushers, &c.—Lieut. C. W. Cousland, Boiling Field, and Winfree Johnson, District of Columbia A. A. U.

Announcer—Jimmy Lake.

Assistants to Maj. Miller—Charles E. Cornell, Patsy Donovan, Joe Turner and Frankie Mann.

N. Y. Mayor in Golf Benefit With Jones

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker announced today he had accepted the offer of Bobby Jones to play in an exhibition golf match on June 26 at the Fresh Meadow Club, the proceeds to go to New York City's unemployed.

The national open championship tournament, in which Jones will not take part, will end at the Fresh Meadow Club on Saturday, June 25. The mayor said today that in the exhibition match the following day Jones will probably be paired with Tommy Armour against Gene Sarazen and Billy Burke, present national open champion.

The Fresh Meadow Club is in Flushing, Queens, within the city limits of New York.

BRITISH OPEN PLAY TODAY FOR 236

Sarazen Is Favorite; Armour and Smith Other U. S. Hopes.

By FRANK H. KING.

SANDWICH, England, June 5 (A. P.).—Britain's best golfers, with the exception of Enid Wilson, were gathered at this ancient little port town on the English Channel tonight, ready for an attempt to turn back an American challenge for the British open, starting tomorrow.

Miss Wilson, who beat America's best in the women's championship at Saunton last week and who can fill almost any man's golf shoes, would be a strong recruit for British golfing ranks which for a decade has been trying without much success to keep the British open title from being carried off to the United States. No woman ever played in the open, but Miss Wilson may have to be drafted eventually if native manhood fails this week to turn back the small but highly competent delegation of American pros headed by Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen and MacDonald Smith.

Already Sarazen is the favorite of the experts because of his good record high among the finishers every time he has competed in the British open. Gene has been playing fine golf since his arrival here and scored a 66 on one practice round on the prince's course. They don't pay off on practice scores, but who shoots a couple of 66s on prince's this week will win the championship.

Armour, the defending champion, hasn't had much practice, for he arrived only a few days ago. Mac Smith has been tuning up at Carnoustie, his native heath, for a month.

The prince's club observes a "no Sunday golf" rule, so final practice rounds were played over St. George's today and played none too well by the Americans. Sarazen looked like he was shooting an 80 rather than a 66 and Armour also was having difficulty with many shots.

Sixteen scratches today reduced the starting field to 236. Among those withdrawing was Charles Sweeny, American member of the Oxford University Golf Team. This reduced the American contingent to 13 with Armour, Sarazen and Mac Smith the only real threats.

Tomorrow the first eighteen holes of the qualifying round will be played, half the field touring the prince's course and the other half the neighboring Royal St. George's. The field will be reversed for the final eighteen holes of qualifying play Tuesday.

Open Tryouts Here Today Draw 65

Congressional Scene of Section Qualifying Round.

D. C., Virginia, Maryland, Carolina Stars Will Compete.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

GOLFING interest today will be centered on the struggle at the Congressional Club, where the sectional qualifying round for eligibility to compete in the approaching national open golf championship will be played. The entry list includes 65 professional and amateur golfers, the majority representing Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, but with professionals from as far south as North and South Carolina also competing.

All of the out-of-town contestants were on the course yesterday and the low scores reported by some of them, if repeated today, indicate that local professionals will have to be at the top of their game today to win one or more of the eight coveted positions. For instance, Dugan Aycock, of High Point, N. C., shot a 69 on Saturday and was 71 yesterday, George Slingerland, of Greensboro, N. C., who qualified last year, negotiated the course yesterday in 72. Warner Mather, of the Woodholme Club, Baltimore, played the last three holes of the first nine yesterday in 4—4—2, the last two holes being scored in birdies, and was hoping that he would have the same good luck today.

All U. S. G. A. Rules to Be Followed.

The District Golf Association, which has been placed in charge of the event by the United States Golf Association, has been furnished with a complete list of instructions for managing the competition. Strict observance of all U. S. G. A. rules is ordered, and contestants not appearing within fifteen minutes of their specified time of play will be disqualified. Thirty-six holes will be played, medal score, and in the event of a tie for one or more places, the players concerned must play extra holes until the winner or winners are determined. The par of the course is 72, but it is expected that total scores of 150 will qualify.

The qualifying round for the club championship at the Kenwood Club, scheduled for yesterday, has been continued throughout this week. Among the leaders yesterday were Maury Fitzgerald, the club champion, with 40—39—79; R. B. Warden, 41—38—79; R. M. Bishop, 39—41—80, and Royce Hough, 36—44—80. Hough, playing the first nine in even 4s, had a fine opportunity to lead the field, but encountered trouble on the homeward journey.

Trophy Won by Morrell.

The trophy donated by L. V. Lampson, played for yesterday on the course of the Argyle Club, was won by Foster Morrell with a score of 86—20—66. The low gross winner was John W. Dudley with a card of 40—41—81.

The winners of the mixed Scotch foursome on the Indian Spring course yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, whose card of 40—40—80, led the field with low gross. With a handicap of 10 they also were low net, but chose the low gross prize. The low net winners were Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Vogel with 85—14—71, second place being taken by Mrs. Aline Heap and J. A. Mulvey with 91—18—75. The third low net score was a tie between Mr. and Mrs. J. William Harvey, jr., with 85—11—74, and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wagner, 90—16—74.

The Woodmont Club was crowded with events yesterday, the principal feature being the closing round for qualification in the club team, which will meet the team of the Lakeside Club in Richmond on Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19. The qualifiers were:

Howard Nordlinger, 84, 78—162; Milton Harris, 84, 83—167; Dr. S. D. Gottlieb, 88, 86—174; L. V. Freudberg, 92, 84—176; Gilbert Hahn, 91, 87—178; Robert Baum, 90, 88—178; Fulton Brzyiawski, 96, 83—179; William G. Tilch, 96, 85—181; Albert E. Steinem, 92, 91—183; Jeff Abel, 92, 95—187; Henry Kaufmann, 99, 90—189; Morris Simon, 96, 94—190.

Mrs. Moody Wins Fourth French Net Championship

HELEN WILLS MOODY,
who won the French Tennis crown without the loss of a set. It was her fourth success in the event. Mrs. Moody did not play last year.

Beats Mme. Mathieu, 7-5, 6-1; De Stefani and Cochet Win.

AUTEUIL, France, June 5 (A.P.).—For the fourth time since 1928, Helen Wills Moody captured the women's singles title of the French hard court tennis championships today.

The California matron, out this year to make another clean sweep of the French, British and American singles crowns, defeated Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 7—5, 6—1, in the final round, to regain the title she held for the three-year interval from 1928 through 1930. She did not play in this championship last year, and the winner was Cecilie Aussem, of Germany.

While Mrs. Moody was turning back Mme. Mathieu's bid for the women's championship, Henri Cochet, of France, and George Stefani, of Italy, were reaching the finals of men's singles.

Cochet defeated his youthful compatriot, Marcel Bernard, 6—1, 6—0, 6—4, and De Stefani put out the Czech, Roderich Henzel, 6—3, 2—6, 7—5, 6—4. They will meet in the finals tomorrow.

Although she waded through the best European opposition on her way to the title, tennis experts agreed that Mrs. Moody was clearly below the form she displayed in 1930, when she was last here. She lacked some of the accurateness of her usual play, but it was conceded that that was only a temporary matter which further competition would cure.

She started slowly against Mme. Mathieu and the Frenchwoman, playing against Mrs. Moody in the finals of a French championship for the second time, ran into a 4-1 lead, mainly on the American's errors. As she took the fifth game at love, it looked like Mme. Mathieu would win the set with ease, but Mrs. Moody rallied to take four straight games for a 5-4 lead. The Californian missed two set points in the tenth game and Mme. Mathieu won it to square the match. Helen then took the Frenchwoman's service for advantage and followed with her own and the set at 7-5.

In the second set, Mrs. Moody played up to expectations, serving two love games and yielding only 13 points in an easy 6-1 triumph. Mme. Mathieu was unable to handle the champion's speed which forced her into numerous outs. The Frenchwoman's only game came when Mrs. Moody twice double-faulted.

During the championship, Mrs. Moody won 96 games and lost 31. She did not lose a set.

Her victory in singles gave her a "double" for she and Elizabeth Ryan won the women's doubles more than a week ago. Mrs. Moody also reached the finals of mixed doubles, she and Sidney B. Wood bowing to the British combination of Betty Nuthall and Fred Perry in the championship round.

Wood and Gregory Mangin defeated Christian Boussus and Andre Berlin, of France, in an exhibition doubles match today, 6—4, 6—2.

Yankees Hit Hard; Rout Red Sox, 12-1

Ruth Hits No. 16; Chapman and Dickey Also Get Round-Trippers.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The Yankees cut loose their home run attack against the Boston Red Sox today and won their final game before leaving for the West, 12 to 1.

Babe Ruth hit his sixteenth homer in the first inning and drove in three more runs with singles. Ben Chapman and Bill Dickey hit homers in the fifth. Chapman also hit a triple and two singles and sent four runs home.

Frank Crosetti pulled a brilliant play, stopping Jolley's smash and throwing to Lazzeri while flat on his back to force Webb.

New Pilot of Giants Collapses After Hit

Boston, June 5 (U.P.).—After hitting a single, which scored two runs in the first inning of the second game of the Braves-Giants doubleheader today, Captain-Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, collapsed and had to leave the game.

A physician diagnosed Terry's collapse as caused by a "convulsed muscle" back of his right knee.

Giants Bow Twice To Boston Braves

25,000 See Beaneaters Virtually Tie Cubs for League Lead.

Boston, June 5 (A.P.).—A crowd of 25,000 saw the Boston Braves take both games of a double header from Manager Bill Terry's Giants today and move into a virtual tie with the pace-setting Chicago Cubs, who were idle.

The Braves won the first game in ten innings, 6 to 5, and the second, 7 to 6. Shires' double after Worthington's single, with one out, in the tenth, gave Boston the first game. In the second, the Giants fell on Cantwell for four runs in the first inning, but the Braves fought their way back in front.

Terry made three singles and a double in his first four times at bat. He retired with a cramp in his leg after singling in the first inning of the second game.

Yankees Gain MacFayden In Trade

Red Sox Get Johnson, Andrews and Cash for Moundsman.

Bespectacled Hurler Was Eagerly Sought by Washington.

NEW YORK, June 5 (A.P.).—Bolstering their defenses for the drive toward an American League pennant, the New York Yankees today grabbed Danny MacFayden, bespectacled right-anhed pitcher of the Boston Red Sox.

To secure the Red Sox star the Yankees gave up two pitchers, Henry Johnson and Ivy Paul Andrews, and probably a large bundle of cash as well.

Although MacFayden has won only one game for the tail-enders and lost ten, he is considered one of the best right-handers in the league. Last year he won 16 games, or more than one-fourth of all the victories the Red Sox scored. He is 25 years old and came up to the Boston Club from that famous baseball training ground, Somerville, Mass., High School.

The Yankees, as well as several other clubs, notably the Washington Nationals, have sought to pry the bespectacled ace loose from the Red Sox but the Yankees' bid today was the first that owner Bob Quinn considered adequate.

Both Handicapped By Illness.

Johnson and Andrews both have been held back by illness this year. Johnson was operated on for appendicitis February 22 and did not make a starting appearance on the mound until May 18 when he beat the Cleveland Indians and fanned 12 men. In four other appearances he won one game and lost two. He was knocked out of the box in less than an inning by the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday. Several years ago he was a jinx for the Athletics, beating Connie Mack's club five times in a single season.

Andrews has been out of action since April with influenza and lumbago after a brilliant start. He won two of his first three games and looked like one of the most promising youngsters in the circuit. A native of Dora, Ala., this 23-year-old right-hander came up to the Yankees several years ago from Mobile and was farmed out to Albany. Last summer he was optioned to the Jersey City Club, of the International League, coming back in the fall to win two games for the Yankees.

New Card Is Star As Reds Drop Pair

St. Louis, June 5 (A.P.).—Jimmy Reese, the new Cardinal utility infielder, started like a whirlwind today and helped the Cardinals to take the first of two victories over Cincinnati, both by scores of 3 to 2.

Reese slapped out singles the first two times at bat, hit successfully two out of four, scored the first run, handled eleven chances at second base without error, and participated in four double plays.

In the second game, Dizzy Dean, young Cardinal pitcher, twirled his victory column up to five, with four defeats.

SLUGGERS TO CLASH TONIGHT IN FEATURES AT PORTNER'S

Landers and Fino Due Action

Overlin Faces Bass, Tow and Nerron Scheduled.

Three Eight-Round Battles to Mark Closing Show.

By JACK ESPEY.

As a fitting climax to a season of unadulterated slugging, the Alexandria Day Nursery A. A. presents tonight in Portner Arena, 28 rounds of boxing loaded with prospects of sensational action. The opening bout of this final offering of the Alexandria charity organization is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Matchmaker Frankie Mann has lined up three eight-round bouts, all so promising on paper that it is difficult to pick the likely feature.

Billy Landers, Norfolk bantamweight, who has never failed the Alexandria promoters, is expected to give one of his usual hard-punching exhibitions against Joe Fino, Mexican star who several weeks ago was the victim of a close decision in a slugging match with Baltimore Kid Groves.

Swetman Tackles Raspi.

Another eight-round scuffle will bring together Ken Overlin, impressive Navy middleweight, and Sylvan Bass, Baltimore luminary, while Bob Tow, Georgia heavyweight, will clash with George Nerron, Greek champion, over the same distance. The four-round preliminary lists Doug Swetman, undefeated Washington featherweight, against Young Raspi, former Baltimore amateur champion.

Landers, one of the most popular boxers ever to appear before Capital and Alexandria fans, is out to score his second successive victory after a pair of losses to such national stars as Midget Wolgast and Antol Kocsis. Billy gained a hair-line decision over Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, last month.

Fino, who has fought a draw with Dick Welsh, conqueror of Landers, is confident that he can outpunch the willing Norfolk lad. Fino earned many friends in his losing bout with Groves, whom he conceded nine pounds. Tonight the weights will be about equal.

Overlin Seeks Third Victory.

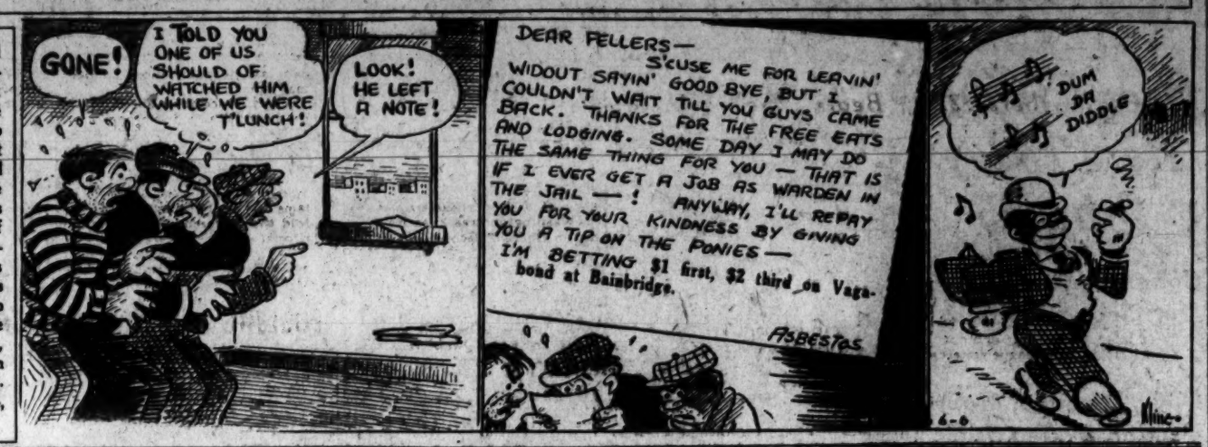
Overlin seeks his third straight victory in the Portner ring. The sailor boy, who packs dynamite in his right hand, decisioned Tony D'Alessandro, of New York, and Joe Smallwood, of Washington, in earl appearances. He should find ass a tougher problem than either of the others, as Bass has been fighting in major league circles, having scored a knockout over Sergt. Sammy Baker, New York veteran.

Tow and Nerron are a pair of young, ambitious heavyweights who stake their chances of winning on the sheer power of their blows. Neither is a polished boxer and each prefers to trade in to sock away at his foe's whiskers. Nerron, who has fought such outstanding boxers as Jack Dempsey, Tuffy Griffiths, W. L. (Young) Stribling, and Charlie Retzlaff, probably will be favored.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Landers to defeat Fino; Overlin to shade Bass, Nerron to beat Tow, and Swetman to decision Raspi.

JOE AND ASBESTOS (Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

Saturday Asbestos stated that while every handicapper in town would pick Evening to win the big race in Chicago he would slip you a code horse that would win the race. Well the code horse did win the race and Evening was scratched. A change of track conditions in Bainbridge again cost Asbestos money. His bank roll is $46.44. Joe's handicap roll is $285 and here are today's horses: Durango, Master Ace, Popcorn, On Leave, Berber, Mad Mullah. Code horse, Belmont, 6, 4, 23, 23, 7, 9.



AT THE POST with Bill Bennings

WASHINGTON PARK.

DEAR AL,

Batted .500 in the big stakes on Saturday. I Say, after making me feel like I had the winner here, folded up when Suntica came along. However, I gave you Faireno in the Belmont Stakes and that 5-1 didn't harm anybody but the bookies. Everything considered, I have had sadder days.

I understand that they may let Tinema go to the post at Belmont today with a 3-1 tag tied on her despite that last victory. Get yours if those odds are quoted. Here's some others that seem well placed—Gully Jumper, Mynheer, Guide Right, Faylin, Woodgain. BILL.

FIRST RACE—BONNIE CAP, a daughter of Hallucination, has only been to the races once. She put on a driving finish for the boys at Aurora which shoved her up to second place, to be beaten a nose for the long end of the purse. True, the opposition in that race was nothing to brag about. There was speed, however. POLYGENY was beaten a length the last time and is dangerous. TERRY LASS is recommended by a good race at Churchill Downs.

SECOND RACE — VOLTAGREEN may make her Western debut in this race, and I can't see her beaten. Gets in a little lighter than at Pimlico. Will miss the riding of Gilbert, however. MILD has always been a sprinter with a certain degree of consistency. SIS AGNES won twice at the Downs.

THIRD RACE—BALLYGRAN and Jimmy Smith, plus that last race, and I believe we have the winner of this sprint. SUN GROS must run back to that winning effort to be second here. HEAD PLAY beat maidens the other day.

FOURTH RACE—BIG BEAU was expected to do big things this year, but failed. However, I see him good enough to take these in camp. Showed a fine race in a sprint recently and may stick out the mile route today. DYAK won his last by five lengths and is mighty dangerous. DURANGO for third.

FIFTH RACE—PROSE AND POETRY takes off four pounds and is asked to go another 70 yards off that last sterling performance, and I believe the son of Omar Khayyam capable of turning the trick. TANNERY comes off the sprints and will be ready if the top one makes mistakes. CAMP BOSS is better than that last.

SIXTH RACE—GARLIC appears to be ready to make it three straight. Seems to like this track as much as Bowie. Danny Meade probably will do the riding. COME ON was a nose behind the top fellow the last time and is second choice. BRASS MONKEY for the show end.

SEVENTH RACE—PEACE LADY did not run a bad race the last time, and, in view of the liberal odds being offered on her chances, I am recommending her. MASTER ACE showed a neat effort the last time. MASTER OGDEN seems to be moving up.

23-limit, even including Kingdon and McLeod.

The executive committee in charge of the "Sam Rice Day" game July 19 will meet today at the Hamilton Hotel at 1:30 o'clock. Routine matters, including the selection of a trophy to be awarded the player, will be taken up.

Bluege made a jumping one-hand catch of Haas' liner in the first and turned it into a double-play, Bishop, who led off with a walk, being caught before he could get back to first.

Dykes made a pretty play ending the home first with the sacks loaded. He went over in front of short for Bluege's grasser to turn in a force-out at the keystone sack.

With the aisles packed in the fourth, Cochrane shot a hot grasser to Judge. Quick handling by him and Spencer caught both a man at home and the runner at first. Judge to Spencer to Judge.

Earnshaw looked like the Statue of Liberty at the plate opening the sixth. He did not take his bat off his shoulder while Weaver worked the count to two and two and then singled.

Reynolds did not have to move for Bishop's liner opening the eighth.

PAN-AMERICAN WINS.

Pan-Americans defeated Filipino Club, eight matches to one yesterday in a Capital City Tennis League clash on Friends School courts. Eugenio scored Filipinos' lone victory, defeating Whiting, 6—3, 2—6, 9—7. Welsh, Pan-American No. 1, conquered Judd after two hard sets, 6—4, 6—4.

THE Dixie Pigs climbed up on equal footing with Ciro's Villagers in Section A, and Columbia Heights went into the lead in Section B of the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League yesterday, by winning over the Union Printers and St. Joseph's, respectively. The Dixies swamped the Printers, 21-4, but Columbia Heights was forced to come from behind to gain a 14-10 decision over its old rival in a slugfest.

Rock Creek Servicenter aided the Heights team in its ascension to undisputed possession of the leadership by winning over Federal Storage, 6-5, in a 10-inning game. The other game played in this section resulted in an 11-10 victory for Diamond Cab over the hapless Federal Employe Unionists.

Hornings Set Back Congress Heights.

Horning Jewelers turned on the highly touted Congress Heights crew and handed it a 9-7 setback in a hotly contested game, while City Cab was rounding out the Section A schedule by swamping Highway Department, 19-5.

Heavy hitting featured yesterday's games. A home run by Everett Russell in the eighth inning tied the score at 5-5 in the Rock Creek-Federal Storage game. Another by Ed Wills in the tenth frame clinched the decision for "Snitz" Nau's charges. Dick Lanahan held the losers to six hits and fanned ten.

Nelson and Frat connected for circuit clouts in the St. Joseph's-Columbia Heights battle. Rhodes, Wellens and Lewis also slugged the horseh1de for long hits. Jake Lewis' spectacular catching furnished the fielding feature of the game. He was all over the park, nabbing fly balls in dozen lots.

Jack Smart's double in the seventh and final inning knotted the score of 10-10 in the Diamond Cab-Federal Unionists fracas. A moment later he came scampering home with the winning run when Holland singled to center. Waldenmaier blasted one to deep centerfield that was good for a round trip.

Dixie Pigs Swing Mean Bats.

The heavy artillery of the Dixie Pigs caused the downfall of the Union Printers. Roberts and Radtke poled homers, "Fee" Colliere smacked a couple on the nose for triples, and Long was credited for four safeties in five trips to the plate. Simons and Holbrook were best for the losers with the flail. Each connected for a pair of hits.

Still more home runs were hit as City Cab broke into the win column. Brutko, Corkins and Olivetti turned the trick, Brutko's coming with the sacks filled to capacity. Walters and Simmons played well for the victims.

"Oh, good morning, Miss Koo-Koo, I didn't recognize you at first."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

OUR ENGLISH COUSINS BROADCAST A DERBY.

"THEY'RE approaching the post now . . . Orwell looks all over the winnah. . . . A splendid beast, Orwell. . . . He seems very fit. . . . I nevah saw such a crowd . . . Where do they all come from? . . . They're swarming like bees all over the Downs. . . . I cawn't see why they come; they cawn't possibly see the race. . . . My word, but Orwell looks splendid. . . . He is the strong favorite, y'know. . . . I cawn't see 'ow he can lose. . . .

• • • •

"They're lining up now. . . . Orwell is behaving just as a Darby 'orse should. . . . The weathah is delightful. . . . No one needs an umbrellah. . . . It's a delightful day, but there is a tremendous 'aze. . . . The visibility is not what it should be and doubtless I shall have some difficulty seeing all that transpires. . . . Lawst year I received many letters complaining that I did not mention all the 'orses. . . . One cawn't do that, y'know, in a thick 'aze. . . . But I shall keep you informed on Orwell. . . . He looks the winnah all ovah!

• • • •

"They're off! . . . Cockpen is out! . . . Portofino is second . . . Miracle is out there! . . . Oh, I say! . . . Miracle is doing nicely. . . . I cawn't make out that fawth 'orse. . . . Orwell is coming out. . . . It's a splendid race. . . . Portofino is out, unless I am grossly mistaken. . . . Corcy is doing nicely.

• • • •

"The crowd is hysterical. . . . Lovely weathah, y'know, with no need for umbrellahs whatsoever. . . . I say! . . . Cockpen is out. . . . It's a duel between Cockpen and Portofino. . . . They'd best watch Peter Planet and Miracle. . . . I shall keep you informed when Orwell makes his move. . . . Portofino is running strongly. . . . Peter Planet is moving up. I cawn't make out the others for the moment.

• • • •

"COCKPEN is still out at the top of the 'ill. . . . No, it's either Portofino or Miracle. . . . Cockpen, they tell me, is out. . . . It's a very good race. . . . I cawn't quite place Orwell, the favorite, but I shall keep you informed.

• • • •

"Cockpen is well out. . . . It's Portofino. . . . Miracle is running a surprising race. . . . They're coming into the stretch. . . . It's Cockpen. . . . Cockpen! . . . Portofino is out now, I think. . . . My, but Miracle is closing fawst. . . . It's Cockpen. . . . Cockpen. . . . I can see King George, Queen Mary, the Duke of York and the Prince of Whyles standing up and cheering. . . . It's Cockpen or Miracle.

• • • •

"Well, wot a surprise. . . . April the Fifth has won! . . .

• • • •

"April the Fifth, as I live, has won the Darby.

• • • •

"Dastur is second. . . . Fawncy that!

• • • •

"Miracle is third. . . . It's quite beyond me what happened to Orwell. . . . Everybody is jolly well surprised. . . . April the Fifth? . . . Oh, I say!"

A WARNING.

DR. S. BERNARD WORTIS tells the American Psychiatric Association of a new disease, which makes a man fall asleep in a taxi after kissing a girl. We still think it a dangerous way to get rid of insomnia.

An American League baseball umpire has had a pitched battle with four players which wound up in a hospital. This may be the beginning of a serious effort to restore baseball to its old-time popularity with the fans.

TO OCCUPY HIS SPARE TIME.

A private citizen has put in a bid to operate the new New York subway. Well, every man is entitled to a little hobby.

The name of the Roxy Theater in New York is to be changed to the Taft. Possibly on account of the Big Bills.

TERRORS OF THE TOMB..
A MEETING OF THE "NATIONAL ARCHEOLOGICAL SOCIETY"
—AND NOW, GENTLEMEN, LET ME READ YOU PROF. TAYLOR'S AMAZING REPORT!
DURING THE ELEVEN MONTHS OF OUR EXCAVATIONS IN THE RUINS OF THE ANCIENT TEMPLE OF ISIS, WE LOST FIVE MEMBERS OF OUR EXPEDITION AND A DOZEN OF THE NATIVE WORKMEN WHO DIED OF STRANGE AND MYSTERIOUS MALADIES WHICH DR. ROBERTS WAS UNABLE TO DIAGNOSE!
BECAUSE OF THIS OUR LARGE FORCE OF SUPERSTITIOUS LABORERS HAS DESERTED US AND LEFT US TO SHIFT FOR OURSELVES. HOWEVER, PERHAPS THIS IS JUST AS WELL FOR MOST THE CLEARING AND DIGGING HAS BEEN DONE.
—AND WE SHALL BE READY IN A MONTH OR SO TO SECRETLY PENETRATE THE GREAT CATACOMBS WHICH LIE UNDER THE ANCIENT TEMPLE. I FEEL CERTAIN THAT THIS LABYRINTH WILL LEAD US TO THE TOMB OF PHARAOH AMON!"
The George Matthew Adams Service, Inc.
ALREADY, I BELIEVE, PROF. STARK HAS REDISCOVERED SOME OF THE MAGICAL AND MYSTERIOUS SECRETS OF THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS BUT HE HAS KEPT THEM SO ENTIRELY TO HIMSELF THAT HE GIVES EVERY EVIDENCE NOW OF APPROACHING INSANITY! NOW FOLLOWS SOME VERY CONFIDENTIAL NEWS, GENTLEMEN. THEREFORE, I THINK IT BEST TO PASS THE LETTER AROUND AND LET EACH OF YOU READ THE REMAINDER FOR HIMSELF!
AND NOW LET US VISIT THE LONELY CAMP OF PROF. TAYLOR AND HIS LITTLE PARTY AMONG THE RUINS OF THE ANCIENT TEMPLE OF ISIS, TEN MILES FROM DER EL BAHRI

WILMA AND I WERE HEADING FOR DOME CITY, IN THE INTERIOR OF GREENLAND, WHERE THE CARNOTITE MINES AND THE CENTER OF THE 25th CENTURY RADIUM INDUSTRY WERE LOCATED—AS DEPUTIES OF THE SCIENCE COUNCIL WHICH GOVERNED THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD, OUR JOB WAS TO FIND AND CAPTURE THE ARCH-CRIMINALS, KILLER KANE AND ARDALA—WE WORE ELECTRO-HEATED CLOTHING AND WERE EQUIPPED WITH DEGRAVITY-BELTS, HEAT-TUBES, PARALYSIS-GUNS, MOTO-TUBES AND DEGRAVITY-RODS—BUT WILMA HAD LOST HER DEGRAVITY-ROD AND MOTO-TUBE—THEN ONE OF THOSE MYSTERIOUS ICEQUAKES CAUGHT US.
THE SURFACE OF THE ICE ROCKED SICKENINGLY.

I'M SO DIZZY I HARDLY KNOW WHAT IS UPWARD!
SUDDENLY THE EDGE OF THE FAULT ROSE SEVERAL FEET.

LOOK! THERE MUST BE SOMETHING TERRIBLE GOING ON DOWN UNDER THAT ICE!
BUT WE WEREN'T THERE TO WATCH ICE CRACKING.
WE'VE GOT TO GET ON OUR WAY TO DOME CITY—IT'S NIGHT NOW—AND KANE'S SPIES CAN'T SEE US.

NEARBY AREA PHONE TOTAL NOW 747,900

Number in Capital and Three States Exceeds Entire Sum in South America.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Telephone development in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia now exceeds that of the entire South American continent, according to statistics prepared by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Companies.

The first-named area of development, containing about 100,000 square miles, is now served by more than 747,900 telephones. In comparison, nine countries in South America, with 6,648,000 square miles, have only 620,000 telephones. With the exception of Argentina, which has 363,000 telephones, and Brazil, with 162,870 telephones, all of the South American countries have far fewer telephones than the District of Columbia or either of these three States.

The District of Columbia is now served by 182,324 telephones; Maryland, 221,500; Virginia, 205,110, and West Virginia, 193,000 telephones. Not only are there more telephones in these States than in the South American countries, officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. state, but there are many cities in this area with even more telephones than entire countries in South America.

Cities with more telephones than a number of those countries are Baltimore, Md., with 138,338; Cumberland, with 6,644; Hagerstown, 6,106; Annapolis, 3,382; Frederick, 3,366; Salisbury, 2,738, and Catonsv. , 2,346.

In Virginia, Richmond is served by 43,345 telephones; Norfolk, 26,879; Roanoke, 16,075; Lynchburg, 8,223; Portsmouth, 5,916; Newport News, 5,225; Danville, 4,555; Alexandria, 4,346; Clarendon, 3,913; Staunton, 2,536, and Winchester, 2,475.

Telephones serving West Virginia cities include Charleston, 16,381; Wheeling, 16,019; Huntington, 13,910; Clarksburg, 7,537; Parkersburg, 7,156; Fairmont, 6,263; Morgantown, 4,877; Martinsburg, 2,838, and Beckley 2,387.

Bolivia, on January 1, 1931, according to telephone and telegraph statistics of the world, had 2,335 telephones; Chile on that date was served by 48,677; Columbia, 29,388; Ecuador, 4,200; Paraguay, 2,090; Peru, 13,745; Uruguay, 29356; Venezuela 27,552, and other South American places, 2,830.

A comparison of world telephone development shows that 61.80 per cent of all telephones are on the North American Continent; South America has only 1.75 per cent. Europe has 29.96 per cent of the total. The remainder of the telephones in the world are in Asia, Africa and Oceania.

Hawaii Fears Disaster From Volcano Tragedy

Hilo, Hawaii, June 5 (A.P.).—The Goddess Pele is angry, old Hawaiians say, because a Portuguese youth slew his sweetheart and leaped with her body into the firepit of the volcano which is the goddess' traditional home.

Natives construe the tidal waves which swept the mouth of the Wailoa River and lower Kuhio Bay yesterday as an omen that Mme. Pele presents having two lifeless mortals at the threshold of her fiery kingdom. Through interpreters they expressed fear that the tragedy which ended the lives of Sylvester Nunes, 20, and Margaret Enos, 17, may lead to some dire calamity.

Dr. Tracy, Noted Psychiatrist, Dies.

Essex Fells, N. J., June 5 (A.P.).—Dr. Ira Otis Tracy, noted psychiatrist and neurologist, died tonight after a brief illness. He was 74 years old. He appeared as a trial alienist frequently during the administration of William Travers Jerome as district attorney of New York.

G. G. Hunter, Advertiser, Is Suicide.

Lakewood, N. J., June 5 (A.P.).—George Grenville Hunter, New York advertising man, was found shot to death at the hunting lodge of a friend, Arthur Munn. A coroner returned a suicide verdict.

SPIRITUAL DECLINE ASSAILED IN SERMON

Education Has Rejected Idea of Soul, Georgetown Seniors Are Told.

Education in which the material overshadows the spiritual was deplored by the Rev. James O'D. Hanlon, of St. Catherine's Church, Pittsburgh, in his baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Georgetown University yesterday morning at Dahlgren Chapel.

Father Hanlon, a graduate of Georgetown University of the class of 1922, declared that "education has rejected the idea of the soul," and that "man now is educated just for his earthly career—just to make money."

"The Catholic Church," he added, "is looking more than ever before to its institutions of higher learning for leaders to answer its summons.

"The world is torn and bleeding from many wounds inflicted by false thinking," Father Hanlon said. "The civilization and culture of former days have been carefully put aside and labeled archaic and unworkable. We seem to have lost our sense of values."

The baccalaureate mass was attended by the regents, deans and seniors, headed by Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of the university. Music was furnished by the mixed choir of St. Paul's Church, under the direction of the choirmaster, Dr. Edward P. Donovan, professor of music at Georgetown. The Rev. J. J. O'Connor was the celebrant, the Rev. Charles J. Foley acted as deacon and the Rev. Gerard F. Yates as subdeacon. Robert (Dick) Douglas, of the senior class, was master of ceremonies.

Southeast New Site For Gentry Shows

Trained Animal Exhibition Locates Near C and Eighteenth Street.

Gentry Brothers' trained animal shows, which played last week in Washington, moved yesterday morning to C street, between Eighteenth and Ninteenth streets southeast, where they close their engagement with two performances today. While here the shows looped twice around Washington, taking the animal actors to the people rather than have patrons travel long distances to the shows.

This is the first visit to Washington in twenty years. Many parents, who saw the shows on their last visit took their children to see the dog and pony actors. The Washington engagement has been highly pleasing to Henry B. Gentry, who established the shows in 1888, and made them nationally known as a children's show.

Today the shows give a matinee at 3:30 and a night performance at 8 o'clock.

The traffic was so dense that one scout car was forced to turn back. The fire apparatus, a patrol wagon and other scout cars managed to penetrate the traffic and reach the scene of the accident, where it was found that Raymond Manchester, 45 years old, of Kent, Ohio, had burned his hands when the stove he was lighting exploded. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and returned to the camp.

CONSTITUTION DAY OBSERVED BY DANES

Flag Dropped From Airplane Simulates Legendary Aid From Heavens.

The Danish Constitution Day was celebrated yesterday at the Shaw Water Lily Gardens, Kenilworth, D. C., under the sponsorship of the Danish Club.

Addresses were delivered by the Danish Minister, Otto Wadsted; H. de Wichfield, Counselor to the Danish Legation, and H. Koppel, of Baltimore, vice counselor. The club's vice president, H. M. Nielson, was master of ceremonies.

The ancient legend of the Danish flag dropping from heaven and turning the tide of battle was reenacted yesterday with a flag dropped from an airplane.

According to the legend, the Danish Crusaders to the Baltic states in 1219, were sorely being pressed and during a battle near Reval, situated between Russia and Poland, the Danes were losing ground, when a flag with a cross on it, supposedly from the Pope, fell out of the heavens, and thus encouraged, the Danes rallied and won the battle. From that time the emblem became the Danish flag, the oldest national flag in the history of the world.

Miss Marie Buch, daughter of a former president of the club, dropped the flag from the plane and it was caught as it drifted to earth by her sister, Miss Ingrid Buch, dressed in a native costume.

The celebration was in the form of a picnic, and besides addresses, Danish and American songs were sung.

AMERICAN U. CLASS TOLD PHILOSOPHY OF JESUS NEEDED NOW

"Chaos" of Present Times Is Stressed by Dr. Clark in Convocation Talk.

"MACHINE AGE" WAYS SEVERELY CRITICIZED

100 Degrees to Be Awarded Today at Commencement Ceremonies.

Declaring that the "machine age" of today had built a "Babel of material interest on false foundations," Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of American University, called upon graduates of the institution in his convocation sermon at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church to turn to the "satisfying philosophy of Jesus to bring this chaos into a cosmos."

Describing the "chaos" of these times when "we are supposed to be in an economic breakdown," Dr. Clark declared "our day is a key-sticking, telephone-ringing, radio-static, auto-adjusting mechanism. We have school-cramming, supersalesmanship, air-mindedness, society-fitting, political conniving. We have an exhibit of high-brow conceit, low-brow abandon, and even religious censoriousness. This is the chaos out of which we must find our cosmos."

Opinion on Present Need.

"We may be dominated by machines and materials; by the bigger and the better; by the confused and the confusing; by the policies of the politician, or by the tyranny of the technician. What we personally need in all this is the teaching-living, beautifying, satisfying philosophy of Jesus to bring this chaos into a cosmos. Man was made to master his materials as well as his moods. His moving motive is a monitor within.

"Values such as moral, aesthetic and religious, are not determined by critics and philosophers separated from the world, but by the hardest-driven masters of mind and machine in the world. We are living in a world that should learn how to live together, not as beasts, but, as human beings."

Task Is Emphasized.

Turning to the province of education, Dr. Clark said, "Let us teach the creative and cumulative romance of humanity, creative literature, art products and distribution, creative science for man's good—creative manners for his pleasure—and c... spiritual forces for his balance in ... and his comfort in living. Here's task for teach and pupil, for youth and age, for every well-wisher of mankind."

Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, offered prayer, there was music by the American University Choral Society under direction of Harlan Randall, with Mrs. James Shera Montgomery at the organ.

Following the convocation services the senior class of the college presented formally to the chancellor a marker for Hurst Hall, Daniel Terrell, president of the class making the presentation.

Commencement exercises will be held this morning at the college gymnasium, with Dr. Henry H. Crane, of Scranton, Pa., delivering the address. About 100 degrees will be awarded.

Champion Police 'Spotter' Will Take Bride July 17

Miss Grayce Lucille Dodd, of Ferrell, Va., and Detective Harold D. Johnson, who will be married July 17. Detective Johnson is known as the champion "spotter" of the police department because of his remarkable memory.

Detective Johnson Famed for Ability to Catch Auto Fugitives.

With his "buddies" of the Twentieth Marines acting as a military guard of honor, Detective Harold D. Johnson, ace "spotter" of the Metropolitan Police Department, and Miss Grayce Lucille Dodd, of Ferrell, Va., will be married July 17 in the Luther Place Memorial Church, it was announced yesterday.

The marriage follows a courtship of several months. Miss Dodd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Dodd. Her father operates a large farm near Ferrell and is widely known throughout that section of Virginia.

Detective Johnson, formerly attached to the Traffic Bureau, has been with the Police Department for more than three years. He is holder of the bronze police medal for heroism and is known to hundreds of Washingtonians who daily passed the corner of Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, where he was stationed for more than a year.

His remarkable memory for the license numbers on stolen automobiles and descriptions of persons wanted by the Police Department, won Johnson the title of "demon spotter." He is known throughout the department for his record of capturing criminals and recovering stolen machines that happened to pass his corner.

Johnson was promoted to detective and transferred to the Seventh Precinct March 20. He is a sergeant major in the Twentieth Marine Reserves and members of his battalion will form the military escort at the wedding.

Miss Dodd is 23 years old. Johnson, who is 27, lives at 1320 Randolph street northwest. The couple will make their home in Washington following a honeymoon in Atlantic City.

SOUL HELD IGNORED IN FIGHT FOR PROFITS

Dr. Enders Says Welfare of World Needs More Than Brute Power.

"I fear that in the striving after power and profits, in the mechanization and industrialization of life we have largely overlooked the fact that man is a living soul," said the Rev. Dr. Charles Enders yesterday at the Concordia Lutheran Church.

"The welfare of this living soul requires more than the development of the natural resources of the earth by processes of mechanical power. This more that is needed is the power of love, and in particular the power of Christ's love," he added.

"This, after all, is the greatest power in the universe, for without the love of God in Christ Jesus all other power is valueless. The breakdown of our materially minded civilization makes it particularly important that we give thought to 'The Dynamic of Christ's Love,' the topic of my sermon."

Dr. Enders took his text from Cor. II, v,14,15, 'The love of Christ constraineth us; because we judge, that one died for all, therefore all died; and He died for all, that they that live should no longer live unto themselves, but unto Him who for their sakes died and rose again."

Materialism Not New.

"Jesus came into a world which was as much in the grip of materialism as is the world today. It is true that His world knew far less of natural law and of the possibilities of the development of mechanical power than does our world. Materialism as understood by modern philosophy was likewise unknown; nevertheless, the world of Jesus' day was trying to live almost solely by bread, by the use of material things. It made up for its lack of power by an almost ruthless use of man power.

"When Christ becomes the center of life, the power of Christ's love will radiate from that life. Then will become true what Paul says about being constrained by the love of Christ. The life that is centered in Christ becomes a channel of blessing unto others.

Limitations of Congress.

"It is because of this power to make of man a channel of blessing that the value of all other powers in the world depends on the power of Christ's love. It is because so few people are gripped and possessed by this power of Christ's love that the world is suffering from its present ills, and that all development of material resources has failed to provide proper sustenance for all peoples.

"We have been looking to Congress to supply remedial measures, but Congress has been wasting much precious time looking out for the political interests of its members. But even if Congress had been on the job 100 per cent and had passed measures for relief, this of itself would not have brought about the desired end.

"All of its efforts to stabilize agriculture and industry have failed because of the selfishness of many people, who are seeking their own profits regardless of what happens to the people at large."

HEAVEN BEST BANK, PREACHER DECLARES

"Getting Rich in Depression Days" Is Sermon Topic of Dr. Dunham.

"To lay up treasures upon earth is to put the world first in our thoughts, our plans and our affections, but to lay up terasure in heaven is to accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Master and to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteouness," said the Rev. Dr. J. Harvey Dunham, preaching last night at the Western Presbyterian Church. Dr. Dunham's topic was: "Getting Rich in Depression Days."

Dr. Dunham said in part:

"The dream of riches has been a potent influence in the lives of men. It has overcome obstacles, surmounted hazards, and driven men to the far places of the earth.

"Every man has a treasure in his possession. It may not consist of gold or silver, stocks or bonds, houses or lands. Nevertheless, it is treasure.

Investing Treasure.

"And every man, consciously or unconsciously is investing his treasure. He is investing it in one of two places. He is either laying up treasure upon the earth or laying it up in heaven.

"Once we have made our personal choice we lay up treasure in heaven by living and loving and loyal obedience to Christ. For centuries men sought how they might turn the baser metals into gold. We now know a secret more priceless. We can change the commonplace services which we render in our every day lives into wealth that will outlast the ages.

"Treasures laid up in heaven are inward treasures and inward treasures are heavenly treasures. A good disposition, a noble character, moral and religious capacity are heavenly treasures. Wisdom, good works, salvation laid up in the bank of heaven are treasures that abide.

Two Banks Offered.

"If every man has a treasure and is depositing his treasure in one of two places, it behooves him to examine wisely and well the two options, the two banks that are offered.

"Treasures laid up upon earth are precarious and perishable. 'Moths and rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal.' But treasures laid up in heaven are safe and secure. We have a positive guarantee against all possibility of loss.

"Moths can not devour it, rust does not corrupt it and thieves can not snatch it from our hands. To make Christ our banker and heaven our bank is to be a millionaire in time and eternity," Dr. Dunham concluded.

Roomer Reports $450 Theft.

Boy, 14, Saves Crippled Cousin, 18, From Mad Dog

Already a hero in the eyes of his companions, Carl Brumback, 14 years old, of Clifton, Va., last night proved that in the face of danger he was ready to risk his life to save another.

Carl, who last summer hitch-hiked his way across the country to his former home in California, was sitting on the front porch of his uncle's house in Clifton last night.

With him was his cousin, Keith A. Brumback, jr., 18 years old. Keith is a cripple. As the two chatted while waiting for the return of Mr. and Mrs. Brumback, a large black dog rushed into the yard. It was foaming at the mouth, apparently mad.

Carl lost no time. He assisted his cousin into the house and slammed the door. As the boys made their way to the upper floor, the dog broke through the glass door and ran upstairs.

Locking themselves in a bedroom, the boys screamed for help. As neighbors arrived with shotguns, Carl grabbed an old saber hanging on the wall and drove the dog from the house. The pair suffered no serious consequences from their experience.
